Another War Looms in Congress.

BY ARTHUR CRAWFORD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon tonight placed the stamp of the Hoover administration's disapproval on the bill increasing the loan limit of bonus certificates held by world war veterans from 22½ to 50 per cent of their face value.

Mr. Mellon in a letter to Representative W. C. Hawley [Rep., Ore.], chairman of the house ways and means committee, urged that the committee reconsider the bill "in order that it should be placed upon a basis which will not damage our whole financial structure."

Faced with Big Deficit.

Pointing out that the treasury is faced with a probable deficit of at least half a billion dollars in the present fiscal year, that there is likely to be an increase rather than a decrease in the public debt, that 1 billion 100 millions of government securities must be refinanced in March, and that there will be additional refunding operations to the extent of a billion dollars during the next 28 months, Mr. Mellon asserted that the problem of current financing is "extraordinarily difficult."

The necessity of raising 700 millions or more for loans to veterans as contemplated under the bill, Mr. Mellon said, would add a greater burden than is justified. It would be necessary, he said, to borrow at least 400 millions in March for veterans' loans, which would mean that a billion and a half of securities would be placed on the market in that month.

Committee Approves Bill.

The bonus bill, as approved yesterday by the ways and means committee and introduced by Representative Hawley, was formally reported today by the committee. The vote was 17 to 4, with four administration Republicans voting in the negative. The four were Representatives Hawley, Carl R. Chindblom [Ill.], A. T. Treadway [Mass.], and C. W. Ramseyer [Ia.] They had been in communication with the treasury and stated that they were doubtful about the financing of the bill. The President is supposed to be in agreement with Mr. Mellon.

Although reports were in circulation during the day that Secretary Mellon was preparing to declare his position, sentiment for the legislation seemed to be strong among Republicans who ordinarily follow the lead of the administration.

Speaker Longworth declared that the bill is "safe, sane, and sound, and provides a financing scheme which offers no disturbance to the treasury."

Tilson Remains Silent.

Representative John Q. Tilson [Rep., Conn.], majority leader, while making no comment, was understood to be prepared to make a fight for a revamping of the bill in such a way as to cut down the cost.

Speaker Longworth and Representative Isaac Bacharach [Rep., N. J.], who will handle the bill in the house for the ways and means committee, said that they expect its consideration in the house on Monday under a suspension of the rules. Passage of the bill under this procedure requires a two-thirds vote, as no opportunity is given for the offering of amendments.

It seemed doubtful tonight that the ways and means committee would grant Mr. Mellon's request for reconsideration of the bill. Its members were aware of the treasury's position when they perfected the measure yesterday.

There seemed little likelihood that the senate would be willing to accept a bill costing any less. Approval of both houses of the bill in this form might mean a veto by President Hoover.

Text of Statement.

The text of Mr. Mellon's statement follows:

"The bill amends the war adjusted compensation act by increasing the loan value of certificates up to 50 per cent of their face value. As the face value of these certificates is 3 billion 449 million dollars, in round numbers, this proposal establishes a potential liability of 1 billion 720 millions. What proportion of these loans will be demanded by the veterans cannot be determined. It will depend upon the circumstances. The estimates run all the way from 550 million to a billion dollars' worth of loans beyond those already made. The suggested use of the adjusted service certificate fund does not alter the situation, as these reserves are in treasury obligations which will need to be converted into

POLICE CLOSE REVUE IN LOOP BEFORE CROWD

It's Obscene, Says Alcock's Critic.

Fourteen policemen with "clean faces" and "shined shoes" raided Earl Carroll's "Sketch Book" revue in the midst of the first act at the Grand Opera house, 119 North Clark street, last night. They closed the show before a packed house and arrested 28 chorus girls, two principals in the cast, and the manager on charges of participating in an obscene play.

The girls, many of them in professional dishabille, were permitted to don coats and then were bundled into four patrol wagons which had been parked alongside the alley stage door. They were driven to the South State street station.

With them rode William Demarest and Don Howard, stars, and the manager, James H. Carroll, brother of Earl of champagne bath notoriety. Two of the girls, whose names were not learned, were secretly released by the police at the station.

Reasons for the Raid.

Ostensibly the raid was ordered because of alleged lewdness and obscenity, but reports credited part of the police action to one skit of the extravaganza which caricatured Chicago's crime theme.

In this skit, portraying a New York speakeasy, two men meet. They recognize each other as Chicagoans, and quickly draw guns and shoot one another—supposedly typifying Chicago. It is known that one politician objected to this portrayal.

Preparations for the raid were made yesterday at the direction of Acting Police Commissioner John H. Alcock. Inspection of the show had been made previously by Henry Melvin, attached to Alcock's office as an investigator.

Warrants Are Sworn Out.

Yesterday he and First Deputy Police Commissioner James B. Scanlon appeared before Judge Justin F. McCarthy of the Municipal court and jointly swore out warrants for Howard, Demarest, James Carroll, and the chorus girls. The names were obtained from a program. Earl Carroll is not in Chicago. It was reported that he is in New York.

Last evening Commissioner Alcock telephoned to Capt. Willard Malone of the First district.

"I want you to send half a dozen men with faces washed clean and shoes shined to the county building at ten minutes to eight tonight," he told the captain.

Capt. Malone went further. He selected fourteen men, seven in plain clothes and seven in uniform, and led them to the county building, which faces the Grand Opera house.

Police March to Theater.

There they met Alcock and Deputy Scanlon. They remained there for more than half an hour until the "Sketch Book" had gotten under way. Then they marched through the alley and to the stage.

All of them had "clean faces" and "shined shoes." They stood in the wings, chatted with the performers, and watched the show. Scene No. 12, "Writing the Hit Song," started. Don Howard was crooning the "Song of the Moonbeams." The girls, and here some of the more sensitive guardians of law and morals blushed, danced lightly onto the stage in bare feet and a few other things. Lights were low.

Suddenly First Deputy James Scanlon made his debut on a stage. He strode determinedly towards Howard. Howard, in surprise, stopped crooning. This was not in the show. Scanlon turned to the audience.

Deputy Stops the Show.

"There will be no more show tonight," he announced. There was a murmur of surprise from the audience which for the greater part had accepted the interruption as part of the performance. All doubt ended a moment later when several policemen motioned to the girls to step into the wings.

The curtain was dropped and the lights went on in the auditorium. Some one stepped before the curtain

FAMILY RESCUED OFF NEARBY ROOF AS HOME BURNS

Nax Nazareth, 1734 Sherman avenue, Evanston, his wife and their two small children, were rescued by firemen last night after they had crawled to the roof of an adjoining building when fire attacked their home and cut off their escape to the street.

Nazareth and his wife were on the second floor with their children, Grace, 3 years old, and Constance, 6 years old, when the fire was discovered on the first floor. They attempted to escape by the front stairs, but were driven back by the flames. Bundling the children in baskets they then crawled to the roof of a fruit store next door. Firemen arrived and carried them to safety. The fire caused $3,500 damage to the home.

Twenty-five men, women, and children were roused from bed and driven to the street early this morning by fire which broke out in the basement of the three story building at 3356 North Halsted street. No one was injured, and the damage was estimated at $3,000 by Divisian Marshal Daniel Carmody. The fire was unusually smoky. Police said many of the tenants might have been overcome except for heroic work of four men who rushed through the building and roused the tenants. The four are Roger B. Slater, Harry Le Mare, 660 Roscoe street; Victor Thuler, and R. J. Platten, 910 Oakdale avenue, who discovered the blaze.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Senator Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota radical Republican, it was shown today, can travel—if not as far, at least as luxuriously — in his capacity as chairman of the senate public lands committee as he did last summer as chairman of the special committee investigating senatorial campaign expenses.

SENATOR G. P. NYE [Fotograms Photo.]

A four day yacht trip by members of the public lands committee, with Senator Nye at their head, cost the public treasury $1,687.50, according to an account filed with the senate contingent expense committee.

Made During Christmas Recess.

The trip took place a few weeks ago during the Christmas recess. The outward reason for it was to inspect the Everglades as the possible site of a national park.

The trip cost the taxpayers something like $3,000 in all.

On the trip were no fewer than three senators of the radical group. These three were Senators Nye, Thomas J. Walsh [Dem., Mont.], and Peter Norbeck [Rep., S. D.]. The three others on the trip were: Senators Otis F. Glenn [Rep., Ill.], Tasker L. Oddie [Rep., Nev.], and Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.]. Several senators had their wives along.

Negro Orchestra Plays.

Romantic as well as financial details of the trip have come out. The yacht excursion was taken in leisurely fashion from Miami, round the cape, and into the Everglades. It occupied three nights and the better part of four days. A Negro orchestra, composed of members of the crew, strummed and sang while the senators drifted through the lazy southern waters.

As for the cost.

One reason why it was a bit heavy, Senator Nye explained, was that the yacht was too large to sail up some of the bayous which the senators felt it their duty to inspect, so a sea going power boat had to be taken along in order to make these necessary side trips.

"This was the only way the committee could thoroughly inspect the Everglades, where it was proposed to establish a national park," Senator Nye said, justifying the yacht expenditures. "Anyway, the committee had nothing to do with arranging the details. These were made by Arno B. Cammerer, associate director of the national park survey, who accompanied us. He hired the yacht from the Pancoast hotel, which also supplied the food, and the committee did not know of the cost until the bills had to be paid. Of course the $1,687.50 paid for the four day yacht trip includes all our expenses during that period."

Nye Defends Expenses.

Senator Nye further justified the expenditure by saying that the senate has passed his bill authorizing the creation of a national park there in the Everglades, provided the state of Florida furnishes the land free of cost to the federal government.

Senator Nye declared that enemies were working against him in exposing this expense account, as well as the $96,500 expense account of his senatorial campaign fund committee. He believed that the Florida trip was made public by senators anxious to undermine his influence in the senate just prior to the move he expects to make next week to unseat Senator James J. Davis [Rep., Pa.], former secretary of labor.

JUDGE TEMPERS LIQUOR LAW FOR SICK BOY'S DAD

The prohibition law of Indiana, which holds the possession of any kind of alcoholic liquor as an offense, was softened yesterday for George Mehas, 220 Polk street, Gary, a steel mill worker.

Police raided his home on Dec. 31, found a pint bottle half filled with moonshine, and arrested him. In another room lay his little son, 6 years old, seriously ill with pneumonia. Mehas pleaded with the officers that the moonshine was for his boy, and was to be used as rubbing alcohol.

Mehas, arraigned yesterday before Judge Herman E. Key in the city court, said the doctor had ordered rubbing alcohol for his boy, but that he could not afford the medicinal alcohol, and had purchased moonshine for the purpose. Dr. A. A. Watts, coroner of Lake county, who had prescribed the rubbing alcohol, verified Mehas' story.

Under the Indiana law, Mehas was guilty of possessing liquor, and was subject to a fine of $130 and a 30 day jail sentence. Judge Key made no comment. He suspended sentence to Dec. 31, 1933, which is the day Judge Key's term on the bench expires.

Guns Kill Two, Wound 3d, in Two Robberies

Two men were killed and a third was seriously wounded in two separate robberies last night. In the first holdup a customer was shot down by three bandits because he turned to run from their guns. In the second, a gunman died in the arms of a drug store owner who a moment before had mortally wounded him. The druggist also wounded a second bandit who was later captured.

Max Fox, 28 years old, was talking with a customer, Miss Ruth Waltman, 4806 West Congress street, when two robbers entered Fox's drug store at 1102 West Van Buren street, and forced them behind the counter at the point of a gun. Fox offered no resistance and while he handed over $27 from his cash register, he asked the gunmen not to harm Miss Waltman.

Opens Fire in Street.

As they left the store in Aberdeen street the druggist seized a gun and pursued them, firing as he ran. At the corner of Aberdeen and Jackson boulevard one bandit fell. Fox helped the fallen gunman back to his store and endeavored to call the police but found that the telephone wires had been cut.

Then he turned his attention to the robber's wounds, but the man was dead. An examination of the dead man's clothing failed to reveal his identity.

Half an hour later Des Plaines street police were called to the alley at the rear of 1035 Jackson boulevard where neighbors said a man was rapping on basement windows. The police found one of the drug store bandits, lying in the alley critically wounded. He was taken to the county hospital where he gave his name as Jack Burns. He said he was 37 years old and lived in a flop house at 617 Adams street. Although he denied taking part in the stickup, he was identified by Miss Waltman.

Customer Is Slain.

Earlier in the evening George James, 60 years old, walked into a cigar store at 217 South Halsted street and was shot to death by two bandits who had just robbed the proprietor and two others. James, who lived in a rooming house at 215 South Halsted street, had the habit of going to the cigar shop each evening to purchase a package of tobacco.

Louis Konefsky, proprietor of the store, his son, and a cab driver were chatting when two men walked in followed by a third who had a pistol in his hand. The robbers smashed the catch of a gate to get back of the counter and line up Konefsky and the chauffeur.

James walked in while the robbers were rifling the cash register of $35 and taking small change from the occupants of the store. Apparently James realized that a robbery was in progress the instant he entered and was shot as he turned to run.

SIX ARE MISSING AS CLOUDBURST STRIKES TOWN

Yuma, Ariz., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The sheriff's office here was informed tonight a cloudburst in the hills back of Wellton, Ariz., 38 miles from here, sent a cataract of water pouring into the town, washing away houses, roads, telephone lines, and a section of the Southern Pacific railroad. The report said six persons were missing.

Reports from Tacna, between Wellton and Mohawk, where another washout was reported by the Southern Pacific, said that a stream of water 250 yards wide swept into Wellton, washing an automobile from the road and bursting the retaining wall on the eastern side of the city.

VETERAN 'EGGS' THOMPSON IN DAY OF TUMULT

Boyle Halts Judge's Speech Broadcast.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Strong arm tactics came to the front in the Republican mayoralty fight yesterday as it reached a new height in the loop at the noon hour.

Three rival candidates held theater meetings within short distances of each other. In front of each theater was a band wagon seeking to draw crowds from the other meetings. On the surface it appeared only as a simple contest of strength.

But before the meetings were over each of the three candidates was condemning the way he had been treated. Mayor Thompson had been egged by a hostile service man, Ernest Shanklin, who was kicked in the face and beaten before he was released by the police.

Rivals Denounce Interference.

There was no connection traced between this incident and opposing political forces, but the other two candidates were emphatic in their denunciations of what the Thompson forces had done to them. His union allies cut off the amplifiers that would have carried the anti-Thompson speeches to the crowds in the street. The Thompson loud speakers blared loudly and continuously.

"Mike Boyle, an ex-convict," was the way in which Judge Lyle spoke of Boyle, head of the electrical workers' union, as he told his audience in the Apollo theater how it was that his speech was not reproduced on the sidewalk.

Police Push Crowds On.

But as a matter of fact the crowd outside his meeting was not so large as the one before the Garrick, where Thompson was speaking. The Garrick lies half a block east of the Apollo and when clusters of pedestrians hesitated before the Lyle portals the policemen stationed there gently pushed them with a warning to "move along" and the push usually was in the direction of the Thompson meeting.

Inside the Apollo a fire guard, after vainly trying to stem the overflow that crowded in and packed the big stage for every square foot of standing room, shooed out of the lobby all those who wanted to wait there for a chance to get in. The Lyle meeting was a rarity for every seat was taken at 12 o'clock.

Amplifier Work Blocked.

The temporary installation of amplifiers at the Apollo was blocked almost by force and only slightly less drastic methods were used to prevent similar work at the Adelphi theater, two blocks south in Clark street, where Ald. Arthur F. Albert was speaking.

In each instance a representative of Boyle's union, Thomas J. Murray of local 134 of the electrical workers, appeared as the installation was about to start. He served notice on the electricians that they were working for unlicensed contractors and that they would lose their union cards if they went ahead.

It was said that Murray and a man who accompanied him wore Thompson buttons, but, without the evidence of their political associations, it was known that Boyle, who works in close coöperation with Thompson's commissioner of gas and electricity, Michael Kennedy, was one of those officials of local unions who signed the resolution of the "Wage Earners' league" in favor of Thompson early last week.

Union Men Quit Job.

Lyle managers said that the amplifier system they had ordered would have drowned out the system installed for Thompson. For a time some of the headquarters representatives were said to have insisted that the work on the Lyle system proceed, but the union visitors were so emphatic in their orders to the workmen that they dropped their job of wiring.

The Lyle meeting also was disturbed briefly by a heckler who shouted something undistinguishable from the balcony.

"Throw him out!" was immediately sounded, but Judge Lyle took care of the case, silencing the noise and speaking directly to the disturber.

Judge Quiets His Audience.

Then Judge Lyle spoke to his audience.

"Never mind him," he said. "He'll be one of the first I'll take care of when I'm in the city hall."

The judge's speech was on the subject: "Lyle or Capone."

"It is no secret," he said, "that the public enemies, the gangsters and their political allies are going to try to steal 100,000 votes from us on primary day. In addition there is evidence that tremendous pressure and influence are being brought to bear on Democrats to cross over into the Republican primary and vote for Thompson."

He spoke of his record on the bench.

"My record on the bench?" he said. "O, I could have a 100 per cent record in the higher courts without a single reversal if I would discharge all the gangsters, killers, racketeers and extortionists who come before me. My record is the reason none of the denizens of gangdom want me for mayor."

In this connection he alluded to reports that some occupants of the Municipal bench will appear on the platform for Thompson.

"I'm sorry for some of the judges," he said. "They are not free agents. They are involved in the tangle of a political machine that is relentless. They are helpless when the boss speaks. That's the principal reason that a handful of them are against me. I have been independent on the bench. I opposed Thompson when he was nominated and elected four years ago. They are tied to Thompson."

The Present "Recumbent."

In taking up the all powerful control of a mayor over his department heads Judge Lyle said that most of the departments have failed under the present "recumbent."

"The city collects about $4,000,000 annually from wheel taxes for street repairs," he continued. "I don't have to say much about that subject if you drive a car. To get over some of Chicago's streets reminds one of driving over a plowed field or a battleground.

"One of my friends says he has an eighteen hole course right in front of his home. When the present administration does repair streets it pays three prices for Trinidad asphalt, from an island controlled by Thompson's friend, King George.

Discusses Trash Collection.

"The city spends more than $2,000,000 a year from the corporate fund for hauling garbage, ashes, trash and snow. When this present administration took hold there were six collections of garbage a week. Last year there were only two a week.

"Now they are making frantic efforts to clean up things before election. If they win they figure they won't have anything to worry about for the rest of the year and if they lose they will have spent all the money in sight anyway.

"Thompson and his yes-man, Dick Wolfe, installed 5,000 through street stop lights of the flash type. Instead of using the regular commercial current, they installed batteries under each post. Then they paid $18 a year per lamp—5,000 of them—to see that the batteries didn't run down. And the lights cost $168 each and I am reliably informed better ones can be obtained for about half that price.

Rising Deficit of Water Fund.

"Under the present administration the deficit in the water fund, which Thompson said he was going to wipe out, has been increased from $6,000,000 to $15,000,000. Low bidders on many contracts have been ignored. Gangsters have benefited from the pay rolls. There are men on the pay rolls who do not work. Is it any wonder that expenses run high?"

Lyle headquarters were amused by reports received from the second of Thompson's "for women only" meetings, from which men, boys and girls were barred. This one was held at the Ridge theater on the north side.

"Secrets" Are Broadcast.

"This was just like the first meeting at the Harper theater on Thursday," said a Lyle woman worker, "with nothing reflecting on Judge Lyle in any way. The whole thing was a joke, for while the meetings supposedly were closely guarded so that none but women could enter there were amplifiers out over the entrance so that all the men, little boys and girls could hear every word said inside."

Judge Lyle told his audiences that the case discussed in these meetings at the greatest length concerned the prosecution in his court of a rooming house keeper who locked some lodgers, a man and wife, out of their rooms and refused to surrender their clothing or even the husband's eye glasses.

Delay Inquest on Death of Light Pole Climber

The inquest into the death of William Blaske, who was killed on Thursday night when he tried to unscrew a street light bulb to aid in the presentation of a street movie in behalf of the Thompson candidacy for mayor, was continued yesterday to Feb. 21. Two motion picture wagons which had been touring the streets presenting Thompson shows halted at Larrabee and Division streets. There was too much light and Blaske climbed a pole to unscrew a light bulb. There was a flash and Blaske fell to his death. He was married and lived at 144 East Ontario street. The trucks moved on and presented a show on another corner.

U. S. CRIME BILL DECLARED TO BE 6 BILLIONS YEAR

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—This country's crime bill, in terms of money alone, is at least 6 billion dollars annually, or $18,000,000 a day and more than 100 millions a week, according to the Rev. Dr. J. Campbell White, secretary-treasurer of the national commission on crime prevention through moral and religious education. The commission, now being organized, has thirty-five men and women of national influence on its membership but it has not yet been able to obtain a suitable man for the chairmanship.

The Rev. Dr. White explained the purposes of his commission in an address tonight.

He said the commission is being formed to meet the great need for a national agency which will make a continuous study of all the means by which religious training can be extended to the youth of the nation.

LINCOLN CLOCK RUFFLES HOOVER TALK ON LINCOLN

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A clock used by Abraham Lincoln created a disturbance last night while President Hoover was delivering a radio address on the civil war chief executive.

Six minutes after Mr. Hoover started his address at 10 o'clock a strange noise went out over the air along with his praise of Lincoln.

Engineers of the National Broadcasting company heard the interference in New York and ordered its Washington office to investigate. The noise was traced to a clock in the Lincoln room of the White House, from which the President spoke.

COAL MERCHANTS WILL MARK 25TH YEAR AT DINNER

More than 2,000 representatives of mines, railroads, banks, heating plant manufacturing companies, and other affiliated industries are expected to attend the silver anniversary dinner of the Chicago Coal Merchants' association at the Stevens hotel on Monday.

The chief speaker will be Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi. He will talk on the coal industry. Among others at the speakers' table will be George Getz, Stuyvesant Peabody, and State's Attorney Swanson.

EGGS ARE HURLED AT MAYOR; CROWD BEATS THROWER

War Vet Causes Turmoil in Loop Meeting.

Mayor Thompson's noon meeting in the Garrick theater was interrupted yesterday by an ex-service man who hurled two eggs at Thompson. The egg thrower was kicked and beaten by the crowd. He was rescued by policemen, who took him to the theater basement. After the disorder was quelled Thompson took up his speech, but closed it within a few minutes and left the theater.

THOMPSON.

One of the two eggs barely missed Thompson and struck one of his henchman, spattering his trousers with egg yolk. The other splattered the clothing of Mrs. Elizabeth O'Grady, an official of a janitresses' union.

Wounds Dressed, Released.

The thrower, identified as Ernest S. Shanklin by the police, was treated in the theater basement by a health department physician for his wounds. He was held there an hour, according to the police, and then taken out the alley entrance and released at the corner of Randolph and Dearborn streets.

Just before the eggs came flying from the first floor, where Shanklin sat, Thompson was winding up an attack on his opponents with the words:

"Thank God we have got one real friend in the newspaper business. He is a Democrat and his name is William Randolph Hearst."

Then came Shanklin's shout from the audience: "And he has got a halter around your neck, you big skunk!"

Rising from his seat as he shouted, Shanklin threw the two eggs in rapid succession. Startled by the suddenness of the interruption, the crowd remained quiet for an instant. Then there was pandemonium.

Battles with Crowd.

Those near Shanklin leaped upon him, striking from every direction. He fought back as every one in the theater sprang upright and filled the air with shouts of "Give it to him!" and "Kill him!" Several of the Thompson men on the stage leaped over the footlights into the orchestra pit and mixed in the fray.

Several traffic policemen came to the aid of Policeman Frank Fahey, assigned to James W. Breen, first assistant corporation counsel, who reached Shanklin first. Attempting to throw a cordon around Shanklin they hurried him to the musicians' door into the pit. Shanklin's head came even with the level of the stage as the police conducted him below and some one on the stage kicked him in the mouth.

Afterwards Fahey reported that Shanklin hadn't been hurt much but, according to other reports, his teeth had been knocked out.

At the height of the fight a woman was heard to cry: "It's a shame. They are killing him." She was jostled by persons trying to quiet her. It was then that Thompson was first heard to speak. He said: "No, leave her alone. Sit down and leave the lady alone."

Considerable mystery was attached to the whereabouts of Shanklin all afternoon. Reports were that he was at the detective bureau and at the psychopathic hospital. Capt. Willard Malone of the Central station said he did not have the man in custody and Acting Police Commissioner Alcock denied knowledge of his detention. Later it was stated that Shanklin had been released without charges being made against him. The police said he carried American Legion credentials.

Thompson's appearance while speaking aroused comment among some of the spectators as to the state of his health. It was remarked that even before the egg throwing he was not in his usual blusterous form. "It looks as though he has lost pep," said a spectator. "When he first returned from the east last summer he was hale and hearty, but now he doesn't look the same."

"Sorry," Says Thompson.

In a statement issued after the meeting Thompson said it was the first time "any one has attempted to throw rotten eggs at the mayor." He said he was sorry that the young man "was beaten by some of my overenthusiastic friends."

Thompson retired to his office in the city hall after the fight but emerged to witness the spectacle of a cowboy and cowgirl ride their horses into the council chambers, an exhibition ordered by him and to which he had invited members of the council.

The council show was scheduled for 3:30 p. m. but was held up until nearly four o'clock so Thompson could make his entrance ahead of the ponies. While waiting the riders remained at one end of the second floor corridor mounted on their ponies that pawed at the marble composition floor.

In the council chambers the two performers, Frankie Gibson and Buck Spencer, did stunts with a whip while standing on the reading clerk's desk. Spencer cutting paper held in the hands and mouth of Miss Gibson. Thompson sat on the rostrum and applauded.

Fear New York Gang War; Seven Gunmen Are Seized

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Rumors of an impending gang war between Brooklyn beer runners resulted in a raid tonight by seven detectives on a Union street building where they arrested seven men on charges of the illegal possession of deadly weapons. The police said the men were all followers of "Little Augie" Pisano, reputed successor of the notorious Frankie Yale.

Notes of the Mayoralty Campaign

Judge Lyle will speak this noon at the Garrick theater where Mayor Thompson was egged yesterday. The Thompson forces will hold forth at the Apollo where Judge Lyle spoke yesterday. The chief question among politicians last night was whether there would be street amplifiers in front of the two theaters which are only half a block apart on Randolph street.

City Sealer Serritella, Capone lieutenant, is listed as president of an Italian organization that will banquet Thompson at 6:30 tomorrow at the Hotel Sherman. The Thompson headquarters' announcement was that 4,000 Italian-Americans will be present.

Judge Lyle tonight begins a series of short radio talks that will continue up to primary day. At 7:50 he will speak over WCFL and at 8 o'clock over WBBM.

"If such things keep up," read a statement issued by County Chairman Snow following an announcement that 422,301 Thompson pledge cards have been delivered to his headquarters, "they'll be adding in the socialists, communists and prohibitionists."

Judge Lyle's headquarters has distributed facsimiles of resolutions presented to him in engrossed form by the Municipal Clerks Ex-Service Men's association.

Edward Clamage, Republican candidate for city clerk, has been indorsed by the joint council of the Chicago teamsters', chauffeurs' and helpers' union. George F. Hass, another candidate for the same office, has been indorsed by the German-American Citizens' league.

The daily receptions for Judge Lyle under the auspices of his citizens' committee on the street level floor of the Palmer house continue to be a success. Another will be held from 3 to 5 o'clock this afternoon.

It was the Fiftieth Ward German-American club, Frank K. Waldherr, president, that indorsed Judge Lyle recently. By error the organization was mentioned as of the Fifth ward in yesterday's TRIBUNE.

SWANSON BACKS ALBERT IN FIRST CAMPAIGN TALK

Says He Would End Sham in High Office.

State's Attorney John A. Swanson, making his first public appearance in the mayoralty campaign, yesterday indorsed Ald. Arthur F. Albert for the Republican nomination. He declared that Albert's election would give the city a clean, efficient, and intelligent administration.

The state's attorney spoke at a noon mass meeting for Ald. Albert at the Lehigh theater and indicated that he would continue to campaign for the alderman at later gatherings. Another speaker at the Albert noon meeting was William Nathan MacChesney.

"In my judgment the citizens of Chicago are thoroughly disgusted with the sham and hypocrisy which they have witnessed during the past few years and it is now time for this community to judge intelligently the characteristics of its leaders," Swanson declared. "We are proud of the material advance which our community has made. I want one thing more to be proud of—I want to be proud of the mayor of our city and I think if you will make Ald. Albert your mayor you will have reason to be proud of his actions."

Discounts Lyle's Record.

Touching upon the crime problem, Mr. Swanson discounted the record of Judge Lyle, whom he referred to as "a certain judge." Those to whom most of the credit is due for the progress made in fighting gangsters, he said, are United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court, and the members of his own staff. The work of his office and that of District Attorney Johnson in stopping slot machine and dog racetrack gambling were the first real steps in curbing crime, he said.

Declaring that one of the most important duties of the next mayor will be to appoint a competent civil service commission and to see that the police cooperate with the state's attorney, Mr. Swanson said:

"I have a selfish interest perhaps in this campaign. For over two years I have been state's attorney, and from the experience I have had I say that if you elect a mayor of the type I am recommending to you one-half the work which I am now compelled to do will drop from my shoulders. Ald. Albert is the man I am recommending."

Assails Thompson Ballyhoo.

Ald. Albert continued his attacks on both Lyle and Thompson, lambasting Thompson in particular about his employment and prosperity schemes which he described as ballyhoo stunts to fool the public.

"They told Bill he had to do something about people out of work," Albert said, "so Bill said, 'Get out the band, sandbag the contractors, and have a parade.' But that didn't work so he got another idea. He found out potatoes were selling for 25 cents a sack so he said, 'Sell them for 50 cents a peck and give them a coupon.' Now the coupons are to be carted down to the city hall and they're going to raffle off the money they overcharged the people who bought the potatoes.

"Do any of you think you are going to get any of that money? Whoever does belongs in the circus."

Mrs. Albert Is Speaker.

Ald. Albert spoke twice at evening meetings in the 40th and 43rd wards. One of the features of his evening meetings was the appearance of Mrs. Albert, speaking for the first time for her husband.

Pledges to clean out the "gangster headquarters" in the city hall and to get rid of the "parasites" in the mayor's office were made yesterday by George K. Schmidt at three meetings on the north side. The Schmidt headquarters announced during the day that Mr. Schmidt has been indorsed by the German-American Citizens' league.

Feminine Voices Are Heard Above Din of City Campaign

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

The women folks are taking their places alongside the men in the mayoralty campaign. From behind closed doors in the women's divisions of the headquarters of the several candidates, come the sounds of feminine voices. These divisions are not used for social purposes. They are not filled with soft fluttery feminine conversation. They are humming with purposeful plans to help their candidates.

At the headquarters of Judge Lyle in the La Salle hotel yesterday the women were discussing various methods of appealing to the feminine voters. Acting on one plan, they were issuing invitations for a women's tea to be given on the nineteenth floor of the La Salle hotel from 3:30 to 5:30 o'clock next Tuesday afternoon, at which the women will meet Judge Lyle.

Women Are Volunteers.

Mrs. Harriet M. Robertson, chairman of women's activities, explained that all of the Lyle women workers are volunteers. She pointed out that the general committee includes no names of political job holders. The members are Mrs. Clarence Ford Smith, Mrs. Harry Smoot, Mrs. Jewel B. Organ, Mrs. Kittie Ramsey, Miss May M. Brown, and Mrs. Pearle D. Crenshaw.

"I think women are supporting Judge Lyle because they want an orderly, well governed city so that their children will be reared with respect for the law," Mrs. Robertson said.

Two Leaders Help Albert.

Mrs. Charles H. Parkes, 1910 Lincoln avenue, chairman of the women's state committee for Senator Deneen in his primary campaign last spring, and Mrs. Arthur W. Sullivan, 3235 Union avenue, wife of the Eleventh ward Republican committeeman, are co-chairmen of the women's division in Ald. Albert's headquarters in the Morrison hotel.

Other women who are devoting all their time to working with them in headquarters are Mrs. Burt R. Hopper, Mrs. Ora Henry, Mrs. F. J. Dickson, Mrs. A. J. Cameron, and Mrs. Richard McMahon.

"The women working for Albert have no political jobs and none is being paid," Mrs. Parkes said. "We are backing Mr. Albert because of his unimpeachable record for honesty and integrity. From a woman's point of view it also is important that he appreciates the needs of the public schools."

Ald. Albert's wife, who is in her early twenties, made the first speeches of her young life last night. She spoke at a meeting of the Fortieth ward at 4700 North Kedzie avenue and at a Forty-third ward meeting at 404 West North avenue.

When the Thompson women's division was visited in the Hotel Sherman, a crowd of Negro women was being addressed by Mrs. Anna L. Smith, commissioner of public welfare, appointed by Thompson. Mrs. Smith told the women that Mayor Thompson stood for love, that his every heart beat understood humanity. She recited:

"For Christ again has preached to thee

Praise for Thompson.

Not only is Thompson a symbol of love, Mrs. Smith told the Negro women, but a symbol of Chicago's growth. She asked them to remember that Chicago was once overrun by "devastating tribes," and pointed out to them that there were now tall buildings in Chicago. "Who could have done it but Thompson?" Mrs. Smith asked.

Mrs. Eva Holland Hamilton of 6629 Ingleside avenue, is at the head of the women's division of Thompson headquarters. Mrs. Hamilton is chairman of the city's zoning board of appeals.

Another woman prominent in campaign work for Thompson is Mrs. Lucille McVicker, who presided at the first women's only meeting. Mrs. McVicker was active in promoting Thompson's coupon scheme.

Miss Molly Baruch, director of the women's division of the George K. Schmidt organization, said that her organization did not find it hard to convince women that Mr. Schmidt is the type needed as a mayor, "because of his spotless reputation in public and private life."

Can't Find Owner

Half sunken and slowly rotting where it was abandoned two or three years ago, what remains of the old pleasure boat Mineral City lies sunken at the west end of Ogden slip. It partly blockades the slip to the detriment of public docking space controlled by the city.

The Mineral City is one of three boats permitted to block navigable waters in the downtown district without paying the city for permits. The others are Mayor Thompson's yacht Doris, docked on the Chicago river between Clark and Dearborn streets, and the scuttled Rotarian, lying in the river between Clark and La Salle streets.

As well as being an obstacle to navigation, the wreck of the Mineral City is an eyesore and a trap for sewage and debris accumulated inside and around its decayed timbers. It is a double-deck pleasure boat 90 feet in length.

Harbormaster Charles J. Agnew, a subordinate of Commissioner of Public Works Richard W. Wolfe, said that his harbor police have been unable to locate the owner of the boat. Originally, he said, it was owned by a Thomas Young, who says that he sold it for one dollar to a man named Murphy. Murphy, according to Agnew, says he sold it to an engineer on either the Gilbert or the Sandmaster. The last two boats have been among the worst offenders on the river in forcing open downtown bridges.

Dr. Ralph Waldo Kirchner, a physician of 8614 Ingleside avenue, was yesterday ordered by Circuit Judge Trude to pay temporary alimony of $50 a week to his estranged wife, Mrs. Adele Kirchner, 2355 West 65th street, pending settlement of her suit for divorce. Mrs. Kirchner sued her husband a week ago charging drunkenness and alleging that after making the round of speakeasies he would bring a number of his "rowdy" friends home with him. She is represented by Attorney Lloyd Faxon. The couple has been married two years.

FIND DEMOCRATS ACTIVE IN POLL OF PRIMARY VOTE

3,955 Straws Sent In for Cermak.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Chief interest in the post card poll on the Democratic candidates for the mayoralty nomination centers upon whatever indication there may be of Democratic participation in the selection of a Republican candidate.

The Democratic organization unanimously indorsed Anton J. Cermak, president of the county board, as its candidate. In the straw vote he has received more than 98 per cent of the votes cast, according to the tests. John B. De Voney, Cermak's only opponent, will poll between 3,000 and 3,800 in the primary Feb. 24, or less than two per cent of the Democratic vote.

How Straws Were Cast.

The post card straws total 14,879. Of these 10,846 were marked for Republican candidates and 4,033 for Democratic candidates. The following table shows the distribution of the Democratic straws between the two candidates in the three major sections of the city, together with percentages:

West	3,179	98.02	44	1.98	2,223
North	845	98.02	11	1.98	856
Totals	3,955	98.06	78	1.94	4,033

Mr. Cermak's 3,955 appears to be unusually large in comparison with the votes cast for Republican candidates. Of the 10,846 Republican straws, Thompson obtained 5,375, Judge Lyle 4,278, Ald. Albert 1,004, former City Controller Schmidt 168 and Eugene McCaffrey 21. The large number of straws for Cermak indicates either personal popularity or strength of the Democratic organization.

Cast Votes for Bundesen.

In opposition, however, were 53 straws cast for Dr. Herman Bundesen and four for Col. A. A. Sprague. These names were written on the post cards by the voters. Neither is a candidate for the Democratic nomination.

There is another feature in the Democratic poll. The Democratic straws are approximately 27 per cent of the total straws.

In 1923 William E. Dever was the Democratic candidate for nomination with the support of the entire organization. George E. Brennan urged a large vote for Dever for two reasons. He wanted to show the power of the organization in a primary and also to indicate much strength for Dever in the subsequent election.

Of the 476,023 votes cast in that 1923 primary of both sides, Dever polled 169,425 votes, or about 35 per cent—8 per cent more than Mr. Cermak has shown in the post card straw vote.

In the 1930 senatorial campaign 702,841 votes were cast in Chicago. Of these the Democrats polled 176,287, or about 25 per cent—2 per cent less than the Democrats have gained in the straw vote.

There is nothing conclusive about the comparison of the percentage of Democratic straws with Democratic votes in the primary, because the post cards may have been sent to more Republicans than Democrats. Naturally in that event more Republican replies might well be expected; but the cards were distributed on the basis of the 650,000 votes cast for Hoover and the 629,000 votes given Smith in Chicago at the November, 1928, election.

Effect on April Election.

It is therefore probable that nearly as many Democrats as Republicans received post cards to vote. If that assumption is true, then to the lack of interest may be ascribed the fact that Mr. Cermak did not receive a much larger post card vote. The importance of the size of the Cermak vote lies in its effect upon the April election and in the possibility that many Democrats intend to vote the Republican ticket at the primary.

If the 1923 mayoralty primary represents a normal ratio between the Democrats and Republicans at a primary, then the straws indicate that 8 per cent of the Democrats are not playing with their party this time. That 8 per cent probably means 15,200 votes. Whether that number of Democrats in the Republican primary will be a deciding factor remains to be seen.

A Night Letter from Ring Lardner

East Hampton, L. I., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Donie Bush, manager of the Chicago White Sox, has issued an edict preventing his players from motoring from one town to another where they play practice games scheduled during the training trip in Texas. He said that last spring his men were always getting lost on the road and showing up just too late for the games. Donie and I were raised in the Central league together and I know he won't mind a suggestion from me that would strengthen his club—namely: that he insist on several of his players using motor cars all the year around and maybe they will get lost and show up just too late for the regular season.

U. OF C. EXPLOSION SHAKES BUILDING; YOUTH IS BURNED

One man was burned, and dozens of students were startled yesterday by an ether explosion in the storeroom of the physiology building of the University of Chicago at East 58th street and Ingleside avenue. The man burned is Harold Reiding, 23 years old, 238 West 108th street, the storeroom keeper.

According to one version, the blast occurred when Reiding tossed a lighted cigaret into a sink down which some ether had been poured a few moments before. The fumes in the drain ignited, causing the blast, and searing Reiding about the face and hands.

The explosion knocked shelves of bottles to the floor, and started a small fire which was extinguished by students who rushed to the storeroom from a classroom laboratory near by. Firemen were called, but the blaze was out when they arrived. Damage amounted to $1,000. Reiding was taken to the Billings Memorial hospital. His condition is not serious.

FIGHT TO FORCE BOARD TO HEAR TAX COMPLAINTS

Owners of Realty Worth Millions Go to Court.

The threatened taxpayers' strike against the payment of 1929 taxes as a result of the refusal of the board of review to hear complaints against the assessments took shape yesterday when mandamus proceedings were begun to compel the reviewers to consider the appeals of owners of 39 downtown properties having a real value of hundreds of millions of dollars.

Attorneys representing the complaining taxpayers announced that they will use every means to obtain an early hearing on the petitions. Should the court rule in favor of the property owners, it appears likely that there will be a still greater delay in mailing out the 1929 tax bills.

The penalty date on the 1929 bills is April 1. The board of review completed its work on the 1929 real estate assessments only a week ago and the books are now in the hands of County Clerk Sweitzer, who has announced that it will take seven weeks to finish his work on the books. A week or ten days will be required to mail the bills, the county treasurer has said, which means that the bills will not be in the taxpayers' hands until after April 1.

Taxpayers' Plea Denied.

The petitions to reopen the hearings of the board of review follow the refusal last week of Reviewer Edward R. Litsinger to grant a group of 50 taxpayers, who appeared in person, the privilege of presenting their appeal for a change in the 1929 assessments. They were informed by Litsinger that nothing could be done because the books had been closed.

Thirteen property owners joined forces in one petition filed in the Superior court by the law firm of Watkins, Ten Hoor & Gilbert. The attorneys said the petition was sponsored by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers, which has taken the lead in demanding a fair hearing before the board of review.

The 26 other complainants filed individual petitions in the Circuit court through the law firm of Scott, MacLeish & Falk.

Buildings Involved in Action.

Among the buildings owned by the complainants are the First National Bank building, Conway building, Roanoke tower, Otis building, Central Trust building, Burnham building, State Bank building, One North La Salle Street building, Postal Telegraph building, Home Insurance Company building, Rookery building, and the Railway Exchange building.

The petitions ask that the board of review call upon County Clerk Sweitzer to refrain from levying the taxes against the properties until the board has heard the complaints and revised the assessments.

The petitions say that the taxpayers were told that the needs of the local governments in the county made it essential that the assessment books be closed immediately without hearing. This action was arbitrary, autocratic, and illegal, the petitions contend.

40,000 Complaints Filed.

Out of 1,300,000 assessments in the county, the board of review made only 6,000 changes, it was pointed out, although there were nearly 40,000 complaints filed with the board. Thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money was spent by the board, it is alleged, in docketing complaints and maintaining a large clerical force which "went through the motions of doing the work of the board of review."

In a statement issued by the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers a warning is given that the filing of the petition is only the first step in the battle. Mandamus proceedings will be started to make the state tax commission call for a reassessment of personal property. If these moves fail, the association says, it will seek to enjoin the collection of taxes in both state and federal courts.

"We consider the action of the board of review," the statement reads, "as serious a blow to government as if the courts should shut their doors and refuse to try cases. The whole process of tax assessment in Cook county has grown up outside the law.

Cites Financial Troubles.

"The processes used in the past are responsible for the city's present financial plight. None of the dire calamities forecast as in store for the city are exaggerated. We do not believe there is any way to save the city's life but by a radical operation. That is why this suit is being started."

Meanwhile the board of review completed its work on the 1929 personal property books and forwarded them to the county clerk. The final figure of the board of review is $675,907,055, a reduction of $17,095,599 under the reviewers' total of $693,002,654 for 1928.

The reviewers cut the board of assessors' figures by $123,752,396, trimming $116,255,241 from the valuations in the city townships and $7,497,155 from those of the country towns.

Two boards' valuations of the city townships for 1929 follow:

Town—	Assessors.	Reviewers.

Cutmore Makes Protest.

Harry S. Cutmore, chief appraiser for the board of assessors, appeared before the county board's finance committee yesterday and predicted that under the present plans of the assessors there will be a reversion by March 1 to the old "haphazard" method of making assessments. Cutmore said his control over the appraisal work had been taken from him and that he had been "subjected to all the indignities" he could stand.

His staff, he said, is to be cut from 240 to 105, and the men he will retain will be unqualified for the technical work. The committee voted to confer with the assessors next Tuesday.

JUDGE ORDERS TESTIMONY FROM H. O. STONE & CO.

Federal Judge Woodward yesterday allowed a motion to compel officials of H. O. Stone & Co. to go into court and testify as to the disposition and location of assets.

The motion was made by attorneys for the protective committee of debenture holders, which was organized shortly after the Chicago Title and Trust company was appointed receiver for a number of the H. O. Stone investment enterprises last fall.

The petition for a receiver charged mismanagement of funds, and alleged that as a result of a reorganization under Delaware laws the company has been able to avoid payments on a sinking fund for a $2,000,000 issue of debentures.

Judge Woodward said the H. O. Stone officials would be heard either in his court or before a master in chancery.

FORECASTS NEAR ZERO WEATHER THIS MORNING

Near zero temperatures of about 10 degrees above in the city, and 5 above in the suburbs were predicted for early today by the weather bureau last night. From a maximum of 35 degrees at 3 p. m. yesterday the mercury dropped sharply in the early evening.

"In certain areas of Chicagoland the mercury may go quite close to zero," said C. A. Donnel, the forecaster. "There will be a moderate cold wave. By afternoon the temperatures should rise to 20 or higher, remaining there during the night. On Sunday it probably will rise above freezing, and may reach 40."

The cold wave originated in the arctic regions, Mr. Donnel said.

See Move to Freeze Out Small Contractors.

Sidewalk contractors who aren't intrenched in the favor of the city administration were organizing yesterday to fight a proposed amendment to the city code which, they charge, would double the costs of walks to the taxpayers. They charge also that the change would keep the small contractors from constructing sidewalks.

James Vignola, a member of the board of local improvements and Republican committeeman of the 31st ward, is reported to be sponsoring the amendment. The small contractors say that the change is in favor of a ring of five sidewalk concerns which now get most of the contracts.

$5,000 Bond Proposed.

Under the present code the contractors deposit with the city controller $200, which is returned four years after they do business. The amount is a guarantee that the sidewalks will be repaired if found defective. The proposed amendment provides that each contractor shall file a surety bond of $5,000. The contractors have been informed that the bond will cost them between $500 and $800 a year.

"If this amendment is passed," said one contractor, "it will freeze out a number of small firms which will be unable to furnish the bond. It also will raise the price of sidewalks from 25 cents a square foot to between 45 and 50 cents. That will make the cost prohibitive."

Ordinance Causes Fight.

The small contractors became aroused after the disclosure that at the meeting of the city council on Nov. 5, Ald. Frank E. Konkowski [31st] obtained the adoption of an ordinance requiring the contractors to deposit $5,000 cash with the controller.

This ordinance was repealed at the council meeting on Jan. 21 on the insistence of Ald. Guy Guernsey [6th], who stated that it would drive a number of contractors out of business. In fighting against the repeal Ald. Konkowski said he had introduced the ordinance at the request of Vignola.

After the repeal and at the same meeting of the council, Ald. Konkowski introduced the amendment which requires a $5,000 surety bond instead of the $5,000 cash specified in the repealed ordinance. This was sent to the committee on judiciary, of which Ald. Oscar F. Nelson [46th], Mayor Thompson's floor leader, is chairman. Action on the amendment has been postponed until after the primary.

POLICE RAIDERS CLOSE CARROLL REVUE IN LOOP

and asked the patrons to redeem their ticket stubs at the box office. The men and women filed out and at the same time the actors and chorus girls walked out the stage door and into patrol wagons.

John J. Garrity, manager of the theater, and Attorney Howard Ellis hastened to the South State street station in time to meet Scanlon, Capt. Malone, and the other policemen. It was about this time that two of the girls were released by Scanlon. The others were taken to the matron's quarters and held.

Girls Jest as They're Held.

Groups of the girls sat on desks and tables and joked about the raid. One, informed that she must appear before Judge McCarthy at 9:30 o'clock this morning, cried out in protest: "Why, I'll have to stay up all night to be up so early."

Meanwhile a hurry call was put in for a judge to sign bonds for the prisoners. Bond of $1,000 was required on each arrest slip. Judge Francis Borrelli was reached at his home, and went to the police building where, after a short conference with Garrity, he agreed to release the twenty-six girls and three men on their own recognizance.

"Mr. Garrity is a man of reputation, and assures me these people will appear in court," explained Judge Borrelli. He signed the bonds one by one and the prisoners left in glee.

Scanlon Passes Judgment.

Efforts to learn the motives for the raid, if any, aside from those explained by the technical charges in the warrants, were unavailing. Deputy Scanlon, it is understood, viewed the show on Wednesday, and reported it as "lewd" to Commissioner Alcock. Alcock was reported to have described the raid as a "good thing" as he waited in the lobby of the county building for the closing of the show.

Officials of the theater declined to comment on the police action, but it was learned from an authoritative source last night that an injunction will be sought today to restrain police interference. The show opened three weeks ago, had a further engagement of two weeks, and was to move to Milwaukee. All officials will appear in Judge McCarthy's court today to protest the raid, it was said.

Yarrow Denies Inspiration.

Earlier it was believed that the Rev. Philip Yarrow, superintendent of the Illinois Vigilance association, had inspired the closing. He denied this last night, but asserted that productions on some of the Chicago stages are "filled with filth." He has furnished Alcock with reports on ten such places, he said, and has been promised action.

"There is nothing about our production which would warrant its being closed as indecent," declared Manager Carroll. "The same play ran a full year in New York and for months in other cities and no cry of smut was raised before."

EVANSTON TWINS HURT AS AUTO UPSETS ON WALK

Car Skids After Crash; Driver Is Held.

Two 5 year old children were injured, one seriously, yesterday when an automobile skidded onto a sidewalk after colliding with a truck at Payne street and McDaniel avenue, Evanston. A 5 month old baby escaped injury when the carriage in which she was riding was overturned by the auto. Those injured are Fannie Lou and Patty Ann Adams, twins, children of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Adams Jr., 2712 Payne street, Evanston. They were taken to the St. Francis hospital, where physicians said that Patty Ann had received internal injuries and probably will die.

Car Skids and Upsets.

The accident happened when a small sedan being driven by Lawrence Hamilton, 1308 Elmwood avenue, Evanston, crashed into a truck being driven by Clarence Woodruff, 1930 Central street, Evanston. Hamilton's car skidded 138 feet, bouncing over the curb and knocking down the twins who were standing on the sidewalk with their nurse, Bertha Talbot.

Before the car stopped it had toppled over the baby carriage in which 5 months old Barbara Jane Adams was riding. The baby was thrown from the carriage but was not hurt.

The Evanston police arrested Hamilton. He said that he had been drinking beer with a young woman whom he refused to name. The woman, he said, jumped from the car and ran away following the accident. Hamilton is married.

Two Killed by Train.

A man and a woman were killed, another woman probably fatally injured, and a second man slightly hurt last night when their automobile was struck by a fast Wabash train at the Calumet avenue crossing in Hammond.

The dead were Joseph Dilney, 40 years old, an iron worker of Gary, living at the Exchange hotel in South Chicago, and Miss Isabelle Johnson, 19, of Streator. The woman seriously hurt is Laura McDonald, 454 Polk street, Gary. Elmo Green, 28, of the same address, was the man slightly injured.

The four had been visiting friends in Gary, and were northward bound for South Chicago in Dilney's car with Dilney at the wheel. As they crossed the tracks the freight train rushed upon them, and carried the machine for almost two blocks.

Hunt Driver Who Fled.

A search was being made yesterday for the driver of an automobile who escaped after crashing into another car, killing Miss Violet Joslun, 26 years old, 3201 South Halsted street, and injuring her escort, Bernie Pettit, 5647 North Washtenaw avenue. According to police, the driver started to a hospital with Pettit, but tossed him out of the car after a short distance and sped away.

Four other deaths yesterday in Cook county raised the 1931 toll to 162. The victims:

Mrs. Rosella Birk, 26 years old, 3261 Evergreen avenue. Fatally hurt when she was struck by an automobile at North and Western avenues. The driver of the car sped away without stopping.

Mrs. Frances Kwiatkowski, 56 years old, 1344 North Ashland avenue. Killed when struck by an automobile driven by Joseph Rudy, 1114 South Troy street, while crossing Ashland avenue at Blackhawk street. Rudy was held.

Mrs. Anna Peterson, 80 years old. Fatally hurt when struck by an automobile as she was crossing Jackson boulevard at Oakley boulevard. Albert Gorchoff, 39 years old, 1011 South Austin boulevard, Oak Park, driver of the car, was held.

ALFONSO BEATS RETREAT; SPAIN'S CABINET TO QUIT

King Forces Berenguer to Resign as Premier.

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Spain, Feb. 13.—King Alfonso tonight beat his first retreat before the forces of revolution that are relentlessly confronting him.

GEN. DAMASO BERENGUER. [Acme-P. & A. Photo.]

With startling suddenness and hardly two weeks before the elections, he abandoned his plan for calling an ordinary parliament, just as though Spain was in the most prosperous of health after seven years of despotic rule.

That he accepted to some degree at least the idea of a constituent assembly to remake the Spanish state was demonstrated late tonight when Count Romanones, Liberal monarchist leader, announced that Premier Damaso Berenguer and his cabinet would resign tomorrow.

Resignation Foregone Conclusion.

The resignation of this unhappy general has been inevitable since formidable political elements undertook to force a revolution by the simple process of abstaining from the crown's program. With King Alfonso agreed to some kind of a constituent assembly it was only a matter of hours before Gen. Berenguer's resignation would take place.

The situation came to a head suddenly this afternoon, when Francisco Cambo, a powerful Catalan magnate, who had been keeping his followers safe for the crown, and Count Romanones, who had agreed to play as the king's enemy in parliament, with Gen. Berenguer getting ready to carry the election at all costs and by any means, did an about face.

They had discovered that the Berenguer election was being contrived to give the Conservatives more than 300 of the 400 odd seats. So they refused to participate. Count Romanones announced he will participate in the elections as a patriotic duty, but that once parliament is opened, he will demand another dissolution and the convocation of a constituent assembly.

King's Decision a Mystery.

This was obviously a trick to make Gen. Berenguer's position untenable and there is no doubt but that it was contrived with the connivance of the king.

King Alfonso's sudden change of heart, is really sensational. Forty-eight hours ago he was serene and sure that nothing any Spanish politician did or said mattered. He could always spring a new dictatorship if they got too nervous.

What actually caused that Bourbon's will to shrink may always be a mystery. But last night the ministry of war turned over to Alfonso the results of a discreet canvass of colonels in all military garrisons. Some of the big political generals were ready for a coup, but the officers in the closest touch with their men decidedly were not, it was stated.

Then Alfonso's attention was called to activities among certain groups of politicians, headed by Sanchez Guerra, who two weeks ago threatened a revolt if the king went ahead with the election.

The resignation of the cabinet, it is stated, will give King Alfonso a free hand to call a concentration cabinet of leaders of all monarchist parties. This cabinet would be given power to change the constitution of 1870 to suit the king's taste.

LEVINE, CAPONE AID, FREED AT VAGRANCY TRIAL

Rules State Fails to Prove Case.

Hymie Levine, Capone beer peddler, was found not guilty on a charge of vagrancy yesterday by Municipal Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Jury court. The judge held that the state failed to introduce evidence to show that Levine's occupation was without the law. The defense did not present a case.

At the opening of the trial Assistant State's Attorney Harry S. Ditchburne asked leave to file an amended complaint to include a record of Levine's five month term in the county jail for operating a disorderly house in 1924. The request was denied when the judge ruled the evidence outlawed by the statute of limitations.

Asks Case Be Dismissed.

Attorney Harry Weisbrod, representing Levine, moved that the charge be quashed because Policeman Roy Van Herrik did not have the vagrancy warrant in his pocket when he arrested Levine. The judge took the motion under advisement. He instructed the state to present its case.

Detectives John Howe and William Drury told of arresting Levine last June in the company of Harry Guzik, gangster, at Harrison street and Michigan avenue. They gave Levine's occupation as a bootlegger, but the testimony was stricken on the objection of Attorney Weisbrod.

Sergt. Patrick McShane told of arresting Levine last Feb. 27 in company with his wife. At that time, McShane said, Levine said he was employed in an auto accessories company at 2015 South State street. Harry Michaelson, secretary of the company, which is operated by Levine's father and brother, said that Hymie was not employed there during the last ten years.

Judge Enters Order.

As the state closed its case Attorney Weisbrod moved that his client be discharged. The judge entered the order.

"I do not blame the police department or the state's attorney's office for their inability to present adequate evidence in these cases," the judge said. "A judge in the Municipal court asked the policemen to sign the complaints and they and the state's attorney's office did their duty in bringing the charges."

Levine was originally arraigned before Judge John H. Lyle, but secured a change of venue and demanded a jury trial. Before Judge McCarthy he waived a jury.

Hearts and Cupids

There were other things that claimed the attention of loop shoppers yesterday as well as the ballyhooing of politicians. For instance, valentines. Late comers to the stores found hearts and darts and cupids shamelessly arrayed on counters, and in many cases had to push their way through in order to make their purchases.

The veteran buyer of valentines was somewhat shocked to find that the frilly, lacy valentines, the kind that open and shut or pull out, disclosing all kinds of surprises, are almost extinct. So are the sentimental rhymes such as "Roses are red, violets are blue." In their stead are valentines of the practical joke variety accompanied by rubber tires, sponges, buttons, and what not. The cynic's rhyme also has found a clientele among modern valentine customers, well illustrated by the pen of the cartoonist.

There were plenty of customers, however, who played safe and stuck to the old sentiment. They left an order with the florist or the candy shop keeper.

Among the Valentine parties yesterday was the one at the Home for Destitute Crippled Children, 1653 Maypole avenue. The Sunbeam league treated the children to candy, cake and ice cream.

And just to show that men are just as sentimental over Valentine's day as women, we'll mention that Samuel Goldwyn, production head of United Artists, who arrived here yesterday morning with Mrs. Goldwyn, hurried out to buy his wife a valentine before continuing their way to Hollywood.

SAM BATTAGLIA'S $400,000 BONDS CUT TO $40,000

Judge Frank M. Padden in the Felony court yesterday decided that a $400,000 bond fixed by his predecessor in the court—Judge John H. Lyle—was too high for Sam Battaglia, leader of the so-called "42 gang" of west side hoodlums, who is under five charges of robbery and three of assault to kill. Judge Padden reduced Battaglia's total bonds to $40,000. He also reduced the $400,000 bonds of George Busk, 23 years old, to $24,000. Busk was with Battaglia in a revolver battle New Year's morning in the holdup of the C. and O. café on North Clark street.

Battaglia not long ago was held on a charge of being one of the men who robbed Mrs. William Hale Thompson, but was acquitted.

After the bond reductions were allowed the trial of the cases was continued to March 12 because the condition of Busk, who was wounded in the café affray and who is still in the Bridewell hospital.

DRY SQUADS RAID 22 SALOONS, TAKE 28 PRISONERS

80 Agents Mop Up in Calumet City.

Eighty federal prohibition agents participated late yesterday in a mop-up of Calumet City, on the south side of the county, and in the beer territory of the Capone outfit. They raided 22 places and took 28 prisoners.

The raids were made simultaneously, with three raiders assigned to each saloon. Deputy Administrator Arthur E. Hamilton and Al Aman, agent in charge, together with a squad from the special dry detail, supervised operations. Search warrants based on a month of undercover work were used. Draft beer, gin, colored alcohol, and some wine were found.

Raiders Find Handbook.

In one place, at 101 State street, a handbook was found in operation and 75 customers were standing around, but they were not molested. George C. Mayer was arrested on charges of selling liquor.

The other places raided and prisoners taken follow:

Vincent Koharko, 34 154th place; Sam A. Goldberg, 305 Plummer avenue; William Logue, 11 West State street; Nels Nelson, 15 West State street; Frank Greenwald, 706 State Line street; Nick Majka, the Lincoln inn, 14th street and Glenwood road; Roy Bazzaro and Thomas Hale, 328 State street.

Thomas Cobak, 208 State street; Anthony J. Pilackas and Josephine Pilackas, roadhouse at Glenwood road and Lincoln highway 30; the Brotherhood of Billy Goats, 21 155th street, Boleslaw Maciewicz and Cylde E. McDaugherty; the Hub cafe, 16 154th place, Charles P. Yates.

Among Drys' Captives.

"In this connection I think I should call attention to the fact that the only funds made available for meeting this liability of 1 billion 720 millions are those in the adjusted service certificate fund, amounting to 772 millions, less $21,000,000, which must be reserved for the payment of death claims this year.

Billion May Be Needed.

"This would indicate that unless congress is prepared to incur an obligation without providing means of meeting it, an appropriation of approximately a billion dollars is necessary.

"Aside from the merit or demerit of the proposal the immediate consideration is the amount of cash that can be obtained by the treasury through borrowing without disorganizing the finances of the government and adversely affecting the security market to which the government must resort to cover its obligations.

"This question cannot be disassociated from the present financial situation of the treasury. That position is, at best, a trying one at this time, and the difficulty of obtaining these additional great sums cannot be fairly appraised if considered alone or as if times were normal, but only if this consideration is made a part of the general picture and viewed against the background of the great financial problems already facing the treasury.

Revenues Falling Behind.

"We are confronted with a probable deficit of not less than a half billion dollars for this fiscal year, which must also be made good by borrowing; the revenues of the government are steadily falling behind not only the figures of last year but below what we reasonably expected to receive at the beginning of this year. In addition to the normal expenditures of the government, we have been called upon to find funds for emergency purposes of various kinds, including relief measures and an increase in public works and construction activities of the government for purposes of increasing employment. For construction work alone we will spend this year over 600 millions, as compared with 275 millions in 1928.

"If the bill in its present form becomes law the funds to be provided must be raised either in the first instance or at a comparatively early date by long term bond issues. The treasury, even without this burden, is already in a difficult position. A statement of the public debt situation will make this entirely clear. There is at present outstanding a short term debt of approximately 2 million 800 millions, which, under existing circumstances, is already too large. On March 15 next 1 billion 109 millions of old obligations mature. In June, 1932, 1 billion 933 millions of first Liberty loan bonds become callable, of which 536 millions bear 4¼ per cent interest.

"In October 1933, 6 billion 268 millions of fourth Liberty loan 4¼ per cent bonds become callable. Irrespective of the desirability of retiring the 536 millions First Liberty loan 4¼ per cent bonds and the 6 billion 268 millions of fourth 4¼ per cent Liberty loan bonds because of the high interest rate they bear, it is obvious that refunding operations must be undertaken in 1932, since it is unthinkable that 6 billion 268 millions of obligations should be allowed to mature in the single year 1933. It is evident, therefore, that important refunding operations must be undertaken, both in the immediate and in the near future.

"On June 30 our short term debt amounted to something over 3 billion dollars. At that time it was reasonable to anticipate that ordinary debt retirements, through sinking fund, foreign repayments, and other smaller amounts, would permit the reduction of the short term debt by about 1 billion 800 millions in the three year period ending June 30, 1933. Present indications are that there will be no decrease in the public debt, but rather an increase this fiscal year and a very material cut in the estimated debt retirement figures for 1932 and 1933. So that in the three year period, the public debt will be reduced by probably not more than 800 millions, or 900 millions, leaving a short term debt outstanding on June 30, 1933, of approximately 2 billion 200 millions.

Billion to Be Refunded.

"At least a billion dollars should be refunded some time before that date. If to this be added 700 millions or more required for loans on adjusted service certificates it becomes apparent that, leaving out of consideration the first 4¼ per cent Liberty loan bonds, it will become necessary to undertake in the course of the next 28 months, exclusive of those of March 15 next, refunding operations to the extent of a billion, and, in addition, to raise 700 millions more or less of new money, which directly or indirectly must be obtained through the medium of long term securities.

"Coming to the operations that must be conducted next March if the treasury is obliged to borrow 400 millions to take care of the potential loans that may have to be made until the June quarter day, the treasury will be obliged to offer a billion and a half of securities in a single month, of which 1 billion 100 millions will be of a refunding character and 400 millions will have to be sold to new buyers to obtain additional funds.

Cannot Approve, He Says.

"The treasury wishes earnestly to call the attention of the committee to the cumulative effect of all these factors which make the problem of current financing extraordinarily difficult, particularly in view of the desirability of the government's not making too great demands upon the investment market at this time. I regret that I cannot, in view of the situation explained above, approve of the treasury assuming the obligations imposed by this bill.

"I cannot too urgently recommend that this measure should have reconsideration in order that it should be placed on a basis which will not damage our whole financial position."

SUBCOMMITTEE GETS MEASURE TO PENSION WORLD WAR WIDOWS

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The house veterans committee referred a proposed pensions bill for world war widows and orphans to a subcommittee today.

Hines estimated the cost of the proposed pension, which carries $20 monthly for widows and $6 for orphans, at $17,946,000 for the first year, $39,248,000 the second years, and increasing amounts to $57,194,000 for the fiftieth year.

BOLD OUTLAWS STEAL YELLOW POLICE FLIVVER

Hotel Robberies on List of Day's Holdups.

A yellow police squad car bearing a sign which designates it as the property of the Chicago police department was stolen last night and every roving police car in the city was searching for it. The alarm announcing that the car had been stolen was broadcast throughout the city at 11:30 p. m.

Policemen Michael O'Grady and James Graham of the central police, who manned the flivver, said they had parked it at Clark street and Wacker drive, where they said they got out of the car to watch two suspicious characters. When they returned the car was gone, they reported to headquarters.

It was last seen going north on Lake Shore drive at Oak street, the police teletype bulletin said. Early this morning it was found parked at Michigan avenue and Monroe street.

Hotels Are Held Up.

Three hotels were robbed yesterday morning by a lone bandit who is believed to be the same one who robbed a dozen hotels in the last week. He appeared first at the Hotel Alamac, 1934 Jackson boulevard, yesterday morning, while Owen Briggs, the clerk, was alone. He took $30 from the cash drawer and departed, unhurriedly.

An hour later a man of the same description walked into the Lincoln Park hotel, 2738 Pine Grove avenue. He forced John Hart, the clerk, into a rear office and departed with $31. He walked to the Arlington hotel, three blocks away, and obtained $10 from Harold MacLeod, the clerk.

Edward Kounovsky, manager of the Fairfield Building and Loan association, 2729 West 22d street, and two employés were held up yesterday morning and $500 of the association's funds were taken. Two bandits entered and after a moment's conversation with Miss Sylvia Smidle, 22 years old, 1637 South 59th court, and Joe Sterba, 2712 West 22d street, displayed revolvers and took the money from a safe.

A bandit who robbed Burton Davis, proprietor of a clothing store at 2622 East 76th street, of $50, was the same man who purchased a shirt from him ten days ago, Davis told police yesterday.

Alexander Kerstein, owner of a shoe store at 4251 Fullerton avenue, was robbed of $45 last night by three gunmen as he was closing the shop.

Watchman Is Wounded.

Frank Ores, 39 years old, 11844 Union avenue, a watchman for the Great Lakes Forge company, 1220 West 119th street, was wounded last night in the left hand by one of two robbers whom Ores caught trying to steal an automobile from the company's premises. The robbers escaped.

Three colored bandits, two of them armed, attempted to rob Andrew Smirley, 60 years old, in his confectionery store, 648 East 63d street, last night. When they ordered him to hold up his hands he grappled with one of the bandits. During the scuffle another of the trio struck him with the butt of a gun. They then escaped without booty.

Charles Howell and Albert Willardo, were held to the grand jury yesterday on three charges of robbery by Judge Matthew D. Hartigan. Howell is suspected of being one of the bandits who obtained $15,000 from the Franklin Park Trust and Savings bank last month.

British Modify Policy Toward Jewish Rights in Palestine

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—"The obligations imposed by acceptance of the mandate in Palestine are solemn international obligations, from which there is not now, nor has there been at any time, any intention to depart. It is the intention of the British government to continue to administer Palestine in accordance with the terms of the mandate, which were approved by the council of the league of nations."

DR. CHAIM WEIZMANN. [Acme-F.&A. Photo.]

Prime Minister MacDonald made this declaration today in an effort to clear up misunderstandings of the government's white paper last October, which stirred up a storm of protest among the Zionists. The declaration was made in a letter to Dr. Chaim Weizmann, former president of the world Zionist organization.

Denies Aim to Injure Jews.

The prime minister in his letter denied assertions that the white paper contained any injurious allegations against the Jewish people.

"Any such intention on the part of the government is expressly disavowed," he declared.

The government intends to institute an inquiry as soon as possible to ascertain what state and other lands can be made available for settlement by the Jews, Mr. MacDonald said, and the government is considering its "obligation to facilitate Jewish immigration and to encourage settlement of Jews on land, which must be fulfilled without prejudice to the rights and position of other sections of the population of Palestine."

Immigration to Continue.

Immigration is to continue, Mr. MacDonald said. The government does not prescribe or contemplate any stoppage or prohibition of Jewish immigration in any of its categories, but, for purely economic reasons, control must be maintained, he added. Immigration in future, however, is to be restored to the old principle of "immigration according to the absorptive capacity of the country," instead of "estimating Jewish immigration with regard to Arab and Jewish unemployment," as the white paper proposed.

Mr. MacDonald also recognizes the "right of Jews to a share of employment on public and municipal work commensurate with the Jewish contribution to public revenues," instead of the method of establishing the Jewish share in this work on the basis of their share in the population of the country.

Concession on Land Purchases.

On the question of land purchases by Jews Mr. MacDonald explains that the term "landless Arabs," who, according to the white paper, were to be taken care of before Jews were allowed to buy more land, referred only to Arabs who were directly displaced from land purchased by Jews.

The prime minister's statement, although nominally "only explaining certain misconceptions which have arisen in connection with the government's proposition," is considered by observers to make many concessions to the Jews and in some cases to reverse the interpretation of the original white paper.

Dr. Weizmann, who resigned as head of the Zionist organization as a protest against the white paper, tonight expressed his satisfaction with Mr. MacDonald's declaration. He declared the Zionists had received a fair hearing and that a basis for coöperation has been reëstablished in Palestine.

Ship 4 More Tons of Gold from Moscow to Berlin

RIGA, Latvia, Feb. 13.—Another shipment of four tons of gold arrived tonight from Moscow en route to Berlin, making a total of more than 20 tons of gold exported from Russia in the last month. Further shipments are expected.

RAIDS ON GERMAN FASCISTI REVEAL MILITARY PLOT

Seized Papers Indicate Treachery in Cabinet.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—Secret documents seized in the headquarters and homes of Berlin's Fascisti in raids yesterday have revealed that "Fascist storm troops would be ready to strike in March. They have been developing into a military force since November and it is expected they will be fully provided with arms in March."

The raids also revealed that Fascist agents had secured a foothold in the cabinet ministries. All the secret orders of the reichswehr were found in the Fascist files. So far the identity of the officers who betrayed the republic's army has not been learned.

Find Letter to Hitler.

Capt. Von Beelitz, wartime commander of a naval airship, offered his services to Adolph Hitler, leader of the Fascisti, according to a letter seized by the police. At the time of writting the letter he was employed in the reichswehr ministry.

The reichswehr today issued a statement that Von Beelitz was engaged only temporarily on a private contract and that he will leave the service on April 1. This statement, however, failed to soothe the public, which sees in the letter and in the fact that the reichswehr employs ex-officers on private contracts, a serious danger to the security of the German republic.

Urge Dissolution of Troops.

The democratic press is clamoring for a dissolution of the Fascist storm troops. This has elated the Fascist leaders. One Fascist chuckled over the idea and said:

"The men in our storm troops are a restless crowd. We have been busy holding them back. If they are prohibited, we will not be responsible for what they will do to the police."

The police are preparing to make raids on secret caches of arms in northern Germany and Bavaria.

The documents seized yesterday have enabled the Austrian police to arrest Capt. Ludwig Von Maltitz at Insbruck, charged with running a bureau to help escaping Fascists wanted for murder and other charges.

PASS 349 MILLION NAVAL BUDGET HELP AIR SPEED

Sharp Exchanges Mar Debate in House.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The house today passed the annual naval appropriation bill after a flurry of debate that produced sharp criticism of the administration's failure to build up toward the tonnage limits of the London naval treaty.

As the bill was approved it carries 349 million dollars, an increase of slightly more than $4,000,000 over the measure recommended by the appropriations committee. Increased funds were provided to stimulate the production of high speed airplanes and quicken federal building activities in the navy yards and docks.

An amendment adding four destroyers to the naval construction program financed by the supply bill was defeated after its sponsor, Representative Loring Black [Dem., N. Y.], had charged that representatives from inland states were responsible for deterioration of the American fleet. Another amendment speeding the recall of marines from Nicaragua was defeated.

Warship Authorization Lags.

Although the supply bill met with little opposition, but little hope was held that the $74,000,000 warship authorization bill can be enacted at this session of congress. Speaker Nicholas Longworth stated late today that while the house expects to approve the $20,000,000 battleship modernization program, no arrangements have been made to take up the warship authorization bill introduced by Chairman Fred A. Britten [Rep., Ill.] of the house naval affairs committee.

While the administration has been represented as desiring the British bill, Speaker Longworth said today that so far as he knew "no determined effort" was being made to secure its approval this year. He added that while the administration would like to have the bill passed, Secretary of the Navy Adams had advised him the White House and the navy desire that priority should be given the modernization measure.

Meets Delay in Senate.

Inquiry on the senate side disclosed that senate backers of the Hale bill, a companion measure to the British warship bill, have failed to obtain a place on the senate program. Chairman Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] of the senate naval committee has completed a speech in which he will urge senate action to start the nation toward a parity navy. Indications here are that delay in passing appropriation bills in the senate will frustrate navy hopes of obtaining approval of the Britten bill, which carries for a cruiser, one aircraft carrier, and two submarines.

Disclosure that America trailed the rest of the world in the development of high speed fighting planes, both for military and naval uses, prompted the house today to add $220,000 to the naval appropriation bill for experimental work.

In the debate on the high speed plane amendment, the army and navy air services were criticized for failure to develop faster aircraft with the funds made available by recent bills. The assertion was also made that until steps were taken to develop speedier fighting aircraft, American naval aviation shortly would be useless for combat purposes against the high speed machines of the major powers.

La Guardia Fights for Speed.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], who commanded an American aircraft unit during the world war, offered the amendment including funds for speeding up American airplanes.

"The whole value of the $20,000,000 carried in this measure for aircraft development depends upon whether the planes actually turned out will compare favorably as to speed and fighting performance with craft produced in other nations," Mr. La Guardia said. "Of course this country wants aircraft, but you cannot create high speed airplanes by simply wishing for them or by submitting specifications to manufacturers. In two years we will be so far behind other powers that our whole naval air force will be rendered ineffective."

Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] opposed adding to the fund for development of experimental aircraft, saying that from about $5,000,000 a year for experimental aircraft in the country "should have had results."

Dr. Lowenstein's Death Accidental, Jury Holds

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Dr. A. Lowenstein, chemical engineer, who was killed on Thursday in a fall from the roof of the North Loop Motor garage. Dr. Lowenstein had been married only six months and lived at 1 East Chestnut street. He was 45 years old, a former vice president of Wilson & Co., packers. He organized the Motoramp Garages of Illinois, Inc.

The assertion was also made that unless steps were taken to develop speedier fighting aircraft, American naval aviation shortly would be useless for combat purposes against the high speed machines of the major powers.

La Guardia Fights for Speed.

Representative F. H. La Guardia [Rep., N. Y.], who commanded an American aircraft unit during the world war, offered the amendment including funds for speeding up American airplanes.

"The whole value of the $30,000,000 carried in this measure for aircraft development depends upon whether the planes actually turned out compare favorably as to speed and fighting performance with craft produced in other nations," Mr. La Guardia said. "Of course this country wants fast aircraft, but you cannot create high speed airplanes by simply wishing for them or by submitting specifications to manufacturers. In two years we will be so far behind other powers that our whole naval air force will be rendered ineffective."

Representative John Taber [Rep., N. Y.] opposed adding to the fund for development of experimental aircraft, saying that from about $5,000,000 a year for experimental aircraft work the country "should have had better results."

Dr. Lowenstein's Death Accidental, Jury Holds

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by a coroner's jury investigating the death of Dr. Arthur Lowenstein, chemical engineer, who was killed on Thursday in a fall from the roof of the North Loop Motoramp garage. Dr. Lowenstein had been married only six months and lived at 200 East Chestnut street. He was 48 years old, a former vice president of Wilson & Co., packers. He organized the Motoramp Garages of Illinois, Inc.

ARMY AIR FLEET WILL 'ATTACK' CHICAGO MAY 19

300 Planes to Engage in Sham Battle.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Chicago will witness an unprecedented air spectacle on May 19, the war department stated today, when nearly three hundred fighting planes of the United States army in battle formation, stage a sham attack on the city.

The planes will be headed for Dayton, O., where they will join other groups in concentration for the annual air corps exercises to be held over New York, Philadelphia, and Boston later in the month.

According to present plans, the First Pursuit wing of about 137 planes and 25 transports, the 11th bombardment wing of 71 planes, and the 3d attack wing of 51 planes and 2 transports, will head for Chicago on May 18. The pursuit group will stop at the Curtis Wright field, the bombardment group at the Chanute field, and the pursuit group at the Chicago Municipal airport.

They will concentrate over Evanston at 9 o'clock on the morning of May 19, the war department stated, and will then proceed with the "attack" on Chicago.

Following the flight over Chicago, the respective groups will separate taking various routes to Dayton. Bombardment, being the slowest, will proceed direct to Dayton, pursuit will go by way of South Bend and Fort Wayne, and attack will visit Indianapolis.

Detroit will also be visited on May 18 and 19 by a group of about 215 army planes headed for Dayton, according to the department.

WOODROW WILSON'S GRANDNIECE WED IN INDIANA ELOPEMENT

Miss Josephine Wilson Cothran, grandniece of the late President Woodrow Wilson, and Thomas Drever Jr. were married yesterday afternoon in an elopement to Crown Point, Ind. They had cut classes, planning to keep the marriage a secret until they finished school.

The bride is the daughter of Perrin Cothran, an official of the Phoenix Insurance company of Hartford, Conn., and Mrs. F. E. Compton of 774 Grove street, Glencoe. Her stepfather is the publisher of the Compton Encyclopedia. She is a senior at the National Academy of Art.

Mr. Drever is the son of the secretary-treasurer of the American Steel Foundry company. His parents live at 135 Beach road, Glencoe. He is a senior at the Walton School of Commerce. He is 21 years old and his wife 19.

After their marriage Mrs. Drever returned to her home. Later she joined her husband at his home. Neither family knew of the marriage.

"I am positive Josephine is not married," Mr. Compton told a reporter. "She was home at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and remained for dinner I have never heard of Drever."

The couple were found at the Drever home. They were waiting to break the news to the bridegroom's parents, who were away. They said they would live with his parents for a time and later take an apartment in Evanston. The bridegroom plans to leave school to work as an accountant. The couple met a year and a half ago at a party in Glencoe.

MARINES TO QUIT NICARAGUA; ALL BUT 500 IN 6 MOS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—American marine forces in Nicaragua are to be entirely withdrawn within the next two years under a plan announced today by Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson.

Approximately 1,000 marines and naval personnel now on duty in the Central American republic will be returned to the United States during the next six months, leaving an American force of about 500 men to assist in instructing the National Guard and to serve as a reserve force in event of an emergency. All marines are to be removed following the Nicaraguan election in 1932.

The announcement that marine forces are to be evacuated from Nicaragua after a five year occupation came as a surprise to the navy as well as congress.

The new program for Nicaragua calls for increasing the National Guard by 500 men at once. All American marines now on combat duty fighting Nicaraguan bandits are to be replaced by members of the local National Guard. The 500 marines who remain temporarily will be stationed in Managua, the capital.

Along with the training of the national guard, the agreement calls for a vigorous drive by it against the insurgents who have stirred the republic to uprisings.

Extra efforts are to be made to complete an extensive road and trail bandit in Nicaragua to facilitate the suppression of outlawry.

The American occupation began late in 1926 and during it twenty-seven marines have been killed, fifteen have died of wounds, and fifty-nine others have been wounded.

At present there are 1,506 naval and marine officers and men in Nicaragua. About 200 are serving as officers of the National guard. The total of 1,506 compares with 5,821 at the peak of American intervention. The Nicaraguan national guard now numbers 1,865 Nicaraguans. A force of 2,500 is planned.

Praises United States Rule.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The decision to retire American marines from Nicaragua is an "eloquent demonstration that the United States came to Nicaragua only to help it solve grave problems," President Jose Moncada said in a statement to the Associated Press tonight.

The president added he had always declared this to be the case and he was therefore "disposed to render due honor to the sincerity and justice with which the United States government has proceeded."

WOMAN, 3 MEN HELD ON WHITE SLAVE CHARGES

A woman and three men, held as alleged members of a white slave ring, will be arraigned today before Judge Matthew D. Hartigan in the South Chicago court.

The arrests were made after an investigation by Policewoman Marion Wichtman on the stories of Jane Zdzanski, 16 years old, 8321 Escanaba avenue, and Irene Rybecki, 17, of 7950 South Shore drive, school girls. They charged they had been enticed away by Mrs. Hungerdorf. The Zdzanski girl was found in Spiro's apartment, and the Rybecki girl in McLaughlin's.

LEO BROTHERS' LAWYER VIEWS HOTEL RECORDS

Attorney Tyrrell Krum, one of the four lawyers representing Leo V. Brothers, who is under indictment for the murder of Alfred Lingle, was allowed yesterday to look over the records of the Riviera hotel, 4900 Blackstone avenue, which are in the possession of Assistant State's Attorneys James McShane and C. Wayland Brooks. The prosecutors volunteered to permit the inspection of the records when Krum talked of asking Chief Justice John P. McGoorty of the Criminal court for a subpœna duces tecum.

The records show that three telephone calls were registered from Brothers' room on June 9, the day Lingle was murdered. The records, however, do not show the hours at which the calls were made. One of the calls was to a girl, another to a Haymarket number.

MICHIGAN MAY TRY 84 STUDENTS ON LIQUOR CHARGE

If Convicted They'd Face 2 Years in Prison.

BY WALTER FITZMAURICE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Prosecution of 84 students of the University of Michigan under the drastic state prohibition law is under consideration by state authorities here. This was revealed today by the county prosecutor, Albert J. Rapp.

The so-called Cuthbertson act provides a $2,000 fine and two years imprisonment for first offenders convicted of possessing liquor and double that penalty for those convicted of selling it. Mr. Rapp said he considers the 84 students technically guilty of possession and cited the language of the statute to prove that the suggestion of prosecuting was no idle threat.

Disorderly Conduct Charges.

The 84 students, members of five fraternities raided by the liquor hunting Ann Arbor police early Wednesday, had a hearing at 10 a. m. before Justice of the Peace Bert Fry, who had issued search warrants authorizing the raids. Following the seizure of liquor in each of the houses, the justice of the peace issued warrants charging the students with disorderly conduct.

As it turned out, the hearing was a desultory proceeding. Refusing to consider seriously the possibility of prosecution, fewer than one-third of the defendants came downtown to appear at the trial.

Only four of the score who came down were able to shoulder their way through the newspaper correspondents and onlookers into the pokey little room where the justice of the peace holds court.

There was a whispered colloquy between the prosecutor and the justice of the peace. Raising his voice, Mr. Rapp then announced that the hearing would be continued one week.

Orders All to Reappear Friday.

"You boys must take this seriously," he admonished the four defendants as they filed out. "I want every one of the 84 here next Friday. You can spread the word to the rest of them."

Surrounded by reporters as he walked from the court room to his office down the street, the prosecutor was asked if he actually considered carrying through the disorderly charges, in view of the fact that most of the boys were asleep when the police raiders entered.

"Under the law they are technically guilty of not only disorderly conduct, but of possessing liquor," he said. "They were living in a fraternity house where liquor was found and must have been aware the liquor had been purchased and stored there. That's sufficient for conviction."

"I am not prepared at this time to say whether the boys will be prosecuted," he continued. "I am working with the police to clean up the liquor situation on the campus. Fraternity houses are just like any other house, as far as I am concerned."

Emphasizing that he was "not trying to make criminals of the boys," Prosecutor Rapp criticized the university for what he construed as laxity in permitting liquor in the fraternity houses.

Calls Students to Blame.

"It was the duty of the university to discipline them," he said. "The dean or any of the faculty could have gone into those houses any time. They should have known the liquor was there. Neighbors have complained both to the police and to my office of noisy and disorderly parties in the fraternity houses."

The prosecutor said the students could blame no one but themselves for the padlocking of the fraternity houses, valued at $550,000, for the next seven months. The university committee on student affairs ordered the houses closed within 36 hours after the raids.

Commenting on the prosecutor's observations, Dean of Men Joseph A. Bursley said the university authorities considered it the duty of the police exclusively to deal with the campus liquor traffic.

700 Couples Dance at J Hop.

Seemingly undismayed by Prosecutor Rapp's announcement, most of the 84 boys were frolicking at the J hop, campus term for the junior promenade. Seven hundred couples danced in the huge intramural gymnasium to music provided by two Chicago orchestras. Unlike previous J hops, the punch was of pure fruit juice and no hip flasks were in evidence.

FIGHTS RETURN TO CLEVELAND AS POTTER'S SLAYER

Cleveland, O., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Extradition of "Pittsburgh Hymie" Martin from Pittsburgh to Cleveland was sought tonight to face a first degree murder charge here in the killing of former Councilman William E. Potter.

The murder warrant was issued today. Several hours later Gov. White asked for Martin's extradition. Tonight Cleveland detectives sought additional evidence to place a similar charge against a second suspect and endeavored to learn whether there were "higher-ups" in the case.

County Prosecutor Ray T. Miller, who issued the warrant for Martin, said: "Martin was the paid gunman, the cold-blooded killer of Potter. Our job now is to find out who hired him."

PLANE PROPELLER KILLS SON OF CHURCH LEADER

Joseph W. Lewis, son of F. J. Lewis, 4929 Woodlawn avenue, capitalist and church leader, was fatally injured Thursday when he was struck by the whirling propeller of his airplane at Spencer, Neb., it was learned last night.

Lewis was 32 years old, and made his home in Omaha for the last 12 years. He was a member of the Clarke-Lewis company, a financial house of that city. For the last three years Lewis was an aviation enthusiast, and made all business trips in his own ship, which he piloted. Thursday he was about to leave Spencer when the starter of his plane failed to respond. He stepped out and spun the propeller. The blade struck him. He died several hours later from loss of blood. His parents immediately left for Omaha.

Surviving Lewis are his widow, Mrs. Berlinda Lewis; three children, Allen, 7; Howard, 3, and Berlinda, 1; his parents, a sister, Mrs. John P. McGoorty Jr., and five brothers, John R., F. Jerome, Thomas, Philip, and James. Funeral services will be held tomorrow.

ADMIRERS RUSH CHAPLIN AT SHIP ENGLAND BOUND

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles Spencer Chaplin sailed on the Mauretania tonight to visit his native England for the first time in ten years. Guards had to use force to save him from admiring throngs, who rushed him at the pier, most of them demanding his autograph.

An admirer told tonight how the film comedian had failed to appear the other night at a dinner given for him. Instead, Chaplin was shanghaied by a newsboy who spoke to him on the street and persuaded him to visit his home, where Chaplin spent a quiet evening chatting with the boy and his parents.

Kansas House Votes Yearly Tax of $50 on Chain Stores

Topeka, Kas., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Proposed as an anti-chain store measure, a bill under which a $50 license fee would be required from each unit of concerns operating two or more branches in Kansas was approved today by the house of representatives. Municipalities would be authorized to levy a similar tax.

DRY BILL TAKEN FOR 'MERRY RIDE' BY BRITISH HOUSE

Even Lady Astor Helps to Vote It Down.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The house of commons took Great Britain's worn out prohibition bill for an hilarious ride this afternoon when members in an hour's debate joked the measure through to a voting stage and then gently killed it by a vote of 137 to 18. Before a vote was taken it was noted in the lobby that the number of the bill was 13 and that this was Friday, the thirteenth, and less than a fourth of the house bothered to vote.

Edwin Scrymgeour of Dundee, Scotland, militant prohibitionist, sponsored the bill, which he has seen turned back in mock seriousness before. As the only member of parliament who is a member of the prohibition party, Scrymgeour has been fighting to prohibit the use of alcoholic liquors in the United Kingdom for years.

Lady Astor Enters Debate.

Lady Astor, a temperance advocate, entered the debate when she vigorously assailed a statement by Sir William Wayland that Americans were drinking more than ever under the dry law.

"I'm voting against the bill because I believe in local option and free option," she said. "The first thing to do is to get the drink trade out of private hands and vested interests. The influence of the liquor trade is powerful in the house of commons but it is more powerful in the house of lords. The upper house could be called the beerage and not peerage."

The speaker interrupted by saying that "the noble lady must not say anything disrespectful of the other house."

"Why go around the world to see the effects of drink?" Lady Astor continued. "We need only to look around the house. The liquor interests spend $4,000,000 a year for advertising, while only $100,000 is spent for advertising milk, which is very healthy."

"Milk? It's Beastly Drunk."

Frederick A. MacQuisten, another Conservative, declared that more people die from boredom than from drink, adding it was more remunerative to be a prohibition agent than President in the United States.

Scrymgeour, in trying to push the bill through, marshalled all his old standbys, such as "national degradation" and the "licensed octopus, which is sucking the very life blood from all sorts and conditions of people." He quoted Senator Borah and former President Taft as saying the growth of lawlessness in the United States was not attributable to prohibition. He was aided in the debate by the Rev. James Barr, Laborite.

Some other speakers pointed to prohibition's "success" in the United States while others attempted to describe its horrors. But most of the members took the measure lightly and, with considerable banter, shoved it aside.

WOMAN JURORS DECIDE 1ST CASE IN KANE COUNTY

The first Kane county jury upon which women were permitted to serve yesterday returned a verdit awarding $12,000 to Joseph Friedman of Aurora, whose suit against the State Life Insurance Company of Indiana started last Monday in the court of Judge John K. Newhall at Geneva. Five women, four of them living in Aurora, sat on the jury.

Attorneys Fred B. Shearer, for the insurance company, and L. A. Stebbins, for Mr. Friedman, indicated that they were satisfied with the verdict and did not ask a rehearing.

After the verdict had been returned Judge Newhall said: "The first women jurors to serve in Kane county have given good and conscientious service. Are there any of you who would like to be excused from serving the remainder of the February term?" None asked to be excused.

Friedman had sued the insurance company for $123,000, which he contended was the total of payments guaranteed him in the case of total disability, which he said he incurred after an operation.

The women jurors are: Mrs. Joseph Heitkotter, Mrs. Matthew Millen, Mrs. Lee Mighell, and Mrs. Olive Briggs of Aurora, and Mrs. G. Walter Rollins of Sugar Grove.

Ioanna Fights to Keep Catholic Faith.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

[Associated Press Photo.]

"While incredible intrigues and maneuvers are going on around her, the young queen fulfills tranquilly her obligations as a Catholic," La Libre says. "She does not limit herself attending mass in the chapel of the palace. Very often she attends solemn services in the Catholic church of Sofia, piously, modestly, and without any ceremony, quite like any simple parishioner."

Seek to Oust Papal Legate.

Orthodox circles, however, according to La Libre, are trying to win back their complete hold on the royal family by ousting the papal legate, Cardinal Roncalli. The organ of the Bulgarian clergy, Pastirsko Delo, published an item recently to this effect:

"Msgr. Roncalli, who of late has tried to play a political rôle in our country, has been recalled by the pope. The cause for this recall is well known to the initiated, but considering what high personalities are involved, we shall not mention the reasons. Please to heaven that the representative of the pope grow wiser and think no longer that Bulgaria is located in Afghanistan."

In point of fact, the pope has not yet recalled Msgr. Roncalli, La Libre says.

Press Told to Keep Silent.

The battle between Orthodox and Catholic clergy in Sofia has grown so intense since the marriage of King Boris and Queen Ioanna that Bulgarian newspapers have been told to keep silent about religious matters. The Christmas address of the pope to his cardinals did not reach the Bulgarian public through the press. The pope in that address termed it "scandalous" that Orthodox priests had had the Bulgarian royal couple go through a second, Orthodox, marriage ceremony after the Catholic Italian one.

The pope's encyclical on "Chaste Marriage" also was not published in Bulgaria.

BRITISH TEXTILE LOCKOUT ENDS; WEAVERS VICTORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Lancashire cotton mill owners today bowed to their workers' demands and on Monday 250,000 weavers will be back at work. The plants have been idle ever since Jan. 17.

The owners announced they had abandoned their efforts to introduce "more looms per weaver" system, under which each weaver operating four looms would take over twice that number. An increased wage scale was offered under the system but the workers objected.

The weavers will resume work on the old scale and working hours.

GANDHI TO ASK INDIA'S VICEROY FOR FRANK TALK

Revolt Leader's Request Seen as Peace Move.

ALLAHABAD, India, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Prospects of peace in India's political turmoil became brighter tonight when it was learned Mahatma Gandhi, leader of the civil disobedience movement against British rule, may seek an interview with the viceroy to discuss the situation.

In the meantime the working committee of the Nationalist congress, which shapes the policies of the party, began its own round table conference here today. No decision was announced after discussion of the congress' attitude toward the proposal of Prime Minister MacDonald for a qualified dominion status in India.

Before the congress announces its decision it is probable Gandhi will visit Delhi to have a free and frank talk with Viceroy Lord Irwin. He is expected to request the conference by letter tomorrow. It is considered likely such an interview will meet with Lord Irwin's approval. This latest development is interpreted here as a distinctly hopeful sign in the situation, which until today had been considered almost hopeless.

Two Slain in Religious Riot.

BENARES, India, Feb. 13.—(AP)—One Hindu and one Mohammedan were killed today and fifty others seriously injured in rioting between Hindus and Mohammedans. The disturbance grew out of a demand by the Moslems that all Hindus close their stores during the funeral of a Mohammedan merchant who allegedly was killed by a Hindu Nationalist volunteer for selling foreign cloth.

Threaten to Bolt "Rebels."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The right wing of the All-India Nationalist congress is ready to go a long way to coöperate with the Liberals and others who were represented at the round table conference in London, according to word received here today.

The leaders of the right wing are Pundit Mahan Mohan Malaviya, Dr. Ansari, Mrs. Sarojini Naidu, and Sen Gu Ota. They propose to introduce to the congress' working committee a series of resolutions under an agreement that if they are not accepted they will bolt the party.

The resolutions concern chiefly safeguards. One of them expresses their willingness to accept the round table decision if military safeguards are limited to 20 years, after which time the army would become an all-Indian army and British troops withdrawn. While negotiations are pending they further demand the withdrawal of British repressive ordinances and a cessation of Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience campaign.

Ask Meeting with Princes.

The Hindus and Moslems, they declare, should be allowed to settle their own quarrels, and the Indian princes should also be asked to meet the Nationalist congress to discuss their relations with British-India and the status of subjects in a new Indian dominion.

It is reported that Gandhi is greatly upset by the recrudescence of violence, particularly by the murders of traders of imported cloth, which indicates that the movement is getting beyond his control and assuming an anarchical character.

DIVIDED DECISION MADE BY COURT IN MINERS' UNION CASE

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A divided decision, declaring the United Mine Workers of America, headed by International President John L. Lewis, the only recognizable American miners' union, but at the same time enjoining Lewis permanently from interfering with affairs of the Illinois mine workers, was announced by Circuit Judge Harry Edwards in the Sangamon County Circuit court here this afternoon.

Judge Edwards declared the Indianapolis headquarters of the U. M. W. of A. the only true international headquarters for the miners' union, but at the same time he declared the insurgent element had a perfect right to hold the Springfield convention, and that Lewis was acting without authority in interfering in Illinois affairs.

Consequently the judge made the injunction permanent, restraining the Indianapolis headquarters from hampering the Howat organization.

It gives the Howat organization a free rein in Illinois, but a doubtful prospect for growth nationally.

The judge indicated he would enter the written decree as soon as it was prepared, and then assist lawyers in appealing the judgment to the Supreme court.

ATLANTA JUDGE RULES OUT NEGRO SEGREGATION ACT

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Judge E. E. Pomeroy of Fulton county Superior court today ruled Atlanta's ordinance to segregate Negroes was unconstitutional.

The judge also enjoined Chief of Police James L. Beavers from interfering with the residence of Negroes on designated streets.

The Atlanta ordinance provided that no families of the Negro race should occupy tenement houses in a section wherein there is more than one white family.

Nutt Denies G.O.P. Received Funds of Postal Lessors

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The intimation by Senator John J. Blaine that postoffice lessors had contributed $1,250,000 to the Coolidge and Hoover campaigns was described today by Joseph R. Nutt, treasurer of the Republican national committee, as "utterly false an dentirely inexcusable."

JOSEPH R. NUTT.

In a statement through the Republican national committee Nutt asserted the intimation by the chairman of the senate postoffice lease investigating committee was "just another instance of a loose tongued senator making statements which are false."

The facts are, Nutt added, that only one contribution—for $200—had been received while he had been treasurer of the national committee. He said that was from J. A. Love of St. Louis and had been returned to the Missouri Republican state committee.

Meanwhile Senator Blaine announced he would produce evidence of large political contributions by postoffice lessors "at the proper time." He was replying to a statement last night by Postmaster General Brown that the lessors had contributed only $500 since 1924.

Nutt's Statement.

Nutt's statement follows:

"As treasurer of the Republican national committee I take serious exception to a defamatory statement broadcast through the press of the country that postoffice lessors contributed $1,250,000 to the Coolidge and Hoover campaigns. This charge is utterly false and entirely inexcusable.

"Authority for this statement is attributed to Senator Blaine of Wisconsin. At a recent public hearing the senator inquired of Gov. Bartlett, former first assistant portmaster general: 'Would you be surprised to learn that the beneficiaries under postoffice leases had contributed something like $1,250,000 to the last two political campaigns?'

"While the remark was worded as a question, it implied that the senator was prepared to answer it affirmatively. It was construed by the press as a flat charge that postoffice lessors had contributed this tremendous sum to the Coolidge and Hoover campaigns. Apparently this was what Senator Blaine intended, as he has made no effort to correct this flagrantly false statement.

Found $200 Contribution.

"The facts are these: I have carefully checked my records to ascertain what, if any, contributions were received from the individuals who have figured in the leases of postoffice quarters. I find that on Oct. 23, 1928, Mr. J. A. Love, 4th and Pine streets, St. Louis, Mo., contributed $200.

"This contribution was secured through the organization in St. Louis and was sent to me with the understanding that I would immediately return it to the Missouri Republican state committee, which was done.

"This is the only contribution that has ever been received since I have been treasurer of the national committee from any one who to my knowledge has in any way figured in the leases of postoffice quarters.

Calls Blaine Loose Tongued.

"Complete statements are on file at the capitol showing every contribution of $1 or more than I have received as treasurer of the Republican national committee. These records are public. They may be examined by Senator Blaine or any one else.

"Considering that the charges fathered by Senator Blaine contain not a shadow of truth I presume that he did not avail himself of these records; such an omission was inexcusable. It is just another instance of a loose tongued senator making statements which are false."

SENATORS HEAR MRS. SANGER ON BIRTH CONTROL

Told Parenthood Should Not Be Accident.

GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Margaret Sanger, the mother who insists that parenthood should be voluntary, appeared this Friday the seventh before a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee and told Senator Gillette of Massachusetts, chief man in the senate, that she was in favor of his birth control bill.

Delegations from many women's organizations throughout the country and a hundred or so of Washington's most prominent wives and widows applauded this crusader whose arguments have more than once brought her to jail.

Conveyed by Doctors.

Through the preliminaries of flashlights Mrs. Sanger sat quietly in the front row, almost obscured by the coterie of frock coated doctors, ministers, and professors who were supporting her support of the bill.

She was the first to speak, and she started right in without any preamble of flattery to the legislators. First of all, she emphasized, she was not advocating that all sex problems be removed from the law and be given to the medical profession, but that she was advocating the Gillett bill [it is frequently called the "doctors' bill"], which authorizes the dissemination of scientific birth control information by licensed physicians, hospitals, clinics, and medical schools.

Above all, she argued, the bill would remove such information from the category of "indecency and pornography," where it was placed by congress which, in 1873, at the instance of Anthony Comstock, so classified it, forbidding its circulation through the mails.

"Motherhood," said Mrs. Sanger, "should be conscious and controlled. Parenthood should be a splendid assignment, not a casual accident. We want mothers to have adequate knowledge so they may spare their families in consideration of mother's health, the father's earning capacity, and the child's future welfare."

Use Not Compelled.

Anticipating the opposition to it, the proponent of the bill said once, and then repeated, "There is nothing in this bill which compels the use of contraception by any individual or group who may for religious or personal reasons object to it. But we do ask congress to give to millions of mothers throughout this country the right to have proper scientific information through the proper medical channels."

Denial of such information has led, Mrs. Sanger maintained, to a vast and unwholesome bootlegging of unscientific and ineffectual substitutes. She also charges the present law with the death, "directly or indirectly," of 1,500,000 mothers and of 15,000,000 babies during their first year of life.

These statistics and some legal, scientific data drove the fringe of thrill seekers in disappointment to the corridors. But they drifted back, presently, attracted by the laughter that greeted an observation of Dr. Sydney A. Goldstein of New York's Jewish Institute of Religion.

"Denied the Poor."

"You will agree with me," he said, "that the highest types of families are familiar with birth control, which, however, is denied the poor. Just recollect that it is used in the families of doctors, of lawyers, of ministers, yes, and," he hesitated just an instant, "if you will permit me, Mr. Chairman, in the families of legislators."

Senator Gillett smiled. Senator Bratton of New Mexico scowled.

Dr. Goldstein continued:

"Birth control is not contrary to the laws of God. It is contrary to a mandate given twice in the Bible, the command to 'increase and multiply.' But do you know when that was given?"

Adam and Eve the Audience.

Nobody answered him, so he told them.

"It is given in the first chapter of Genesis, in the garden of Eden, when Adam and Eve were the entire population.'

"And the second time it is given was just after the flood. Reports tell us there were only eight people then."

The Rev. Charles Francis Potter, New York, clergyman, had this to say:

"I know the father doesn't usually come into these discussions; but he should. I have seen young fathers reduced to discouragement and despair. They are sunk in debts; their wives are ill; these families are wrecked and they could have been saved if I could have given them contraceptive information."

It was Dr. Potter, too, who argued that birth control would tend to abolish war.

Doctor Criticizes Law.

Dr. J. Whittridge Williams, for more than 40 years professor of obstetrics at Johns Hopkins university, deplored the "inconsistency of permitting me legally to give a woman proper contraceptive advice in my office, but making it a federal crime for me to send her that advice through the mail, or even to send her the name of a reputable physician from whom she could get the advice."

"But then," shrugging his large shoulders, "if I were to tell you what the average doctor thinks of Uncle Sam and his laws you'd call one of these policemen to arrest me."

Tomorrow the opponents of the bill will have their program.

COUPLE SPURNS BUGABOO; WED ON FRIDAY THE 13TH

Walter F. Stahl, 3148 Monroe street, and Miss Ruth Fleming, 114 South Western avenue, both 21 years old, aren't a bit superstitious. They're in love. The two walked into the chambers of Judge Thomas A. Green of the Municipal court yesterday, Friday the 13th, and announced a desire to be wed.

"You've got plenty of spunk," commented the judge as he married the couple. "Friday the 13th isn't a favorite day for weddings."

The newlyweds assured Judge Green the so-called hoodoo day meant merely a happy day for them, and that they weren't superstitious. This attitude was reflected generally throughout the city. The old bugaboo of Friday the 13th failed to discourage general social and other activities and the sun rose and set as usual.

Gangsters Invade Store, Fire Shots Into Ceiling

Three men, believed to be gangsters, swaggered into the grocery of Fred Knippenberg, in Lake street, west of Mannheim road, in Melrose Park, late yesterday, and inquired for "Joe." When Knippenberg denied the presence there of any one of that name one of the trio drew a revolver and fired three shots into the ceiling. The men then departed. Police believe they were seeking a rival whom they meant to take for a ride.

VICE SPOTLIGHT TURNED ON CASH OF LIEUTENANT

Referee Seeks Higher-ups in Gotham Graft.

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Deposits of $237,235 made in the last six years by Police Lieutenant John W. Kenna, supervisor of about 1,000 policemen in the Third division, known as the "Tenderloin," and by his mother, Mrs. Anna Kenna, were revealed in the Appellate division inquiry today. The fact that $147,246 of this sum had been withdrawn from their numerous bank accounts by checks to unidentified payees caused Referee Samuel Seabury to express a belief that money banked by policemen was going to "higherups" and to add: "We must find out where it goes and who gets it."

Kenna and his mother shared the witness stand with Magistrate Jean H. Norris, who, after having testified in emphatic terms that she never changed the stenographer's record of trials held before her, was shown to have made extensive changes in the record of the trial of Mary Disena Labello, tried May 18 and 19, 1927, convicted of vagrancy, and sent by Magistrate Norris to the workhouse for 100 days.

1,000 Speakeasies in District.

The police lieutenant was preceded on the witness stand by Deputy Inspector Alexander C. Anderson, next in charge in the Third division to Inspector Patrick S. McCormick. Inspector Anderson said there were about 1,000 speakeasies in the district, which is, roughly, a part of the Times square area, extending down the west side to Thirtieth street, and that there were many enterprising bookmakers and other types of gamblers and vice practitioners scattered throughout the section.

Kenna testified he had been on the police force about fifteen years. Early in 1926 he was appointed a lieutenant and fifteen days later he and his mother rented safety deposit boxes in the Mount Morris branch of the Corn Exchange bank.

In 1923 they had purchased for $38,000 four tenements in East 134th street. On this they paid approximately $16,000 cash, half put up by each. On Feb. 2, 1925, Kenna had opened an account in the Emigrant Industrial Savings bank, with a deposit of $100, and followed that up on the same day with a deposit of $4,000.

Lieutenant Questioned.

"Do you know Officer James T. Brady, who has testified here before?" Prosecutor Schurman asked Kenna, who said he did.

"He got about $4,000 at about the same date. Did that have any connection with your $4,000?" Kenna was asked.

"No," he replied.

Kenna testified that he always gave his pay check to his mother. He gave her other sums, too, he said, for sometimes he collected the rents which he turned over to her. It was shown that he had opened accounts in the Harlem Savings bank, the Bowery Savings bank and the Railroad Building and Loan association, all after establishing the one in the Emigrant.

In these accounts, it was shown that he deposited from Jan. 1, 1925, to the close of 1930, $9,453 in cash, $30,403 by check and $2,500 in an unidentified manner.

Came from His Mother.

Accrued dividends, profits of interest and the like, ran the total deposits to $45,442.69.

Kenna said that it all came from his mother.

Mrs. Kenna testified the total of her deposits in the same period were $184,227. She had accounts in all the banks in which her son had them and in some others. She testified that she received about $13,000 a year from the tenements. Another property in Westchester paid her about $1,700. She received about $800 a year more working as a practical nurse. She made about $600 a year by lending money to her Negro tenants, with which they gambled on policy slips. All told, her yearly income was about $16,500, she estimated.

Saved $9 Out of $10.

Performing some verbal arithmetic, Mr. Schurman showed her that in the six years in question the total available for deposit in banks could only come to $99,000. To this he added the $20,000 which her son had given her in the form of pay checks, making a total of $119,000. Mr. Schurman pointed out to her that between $119,000 received and $184,227.93 deposited there was a discrepancy of $75,000.

"Where," he shot, "did that money come from?"

"I must have had it," the witness replied. "The first $20 I ever made is still in the Emigrant Savings bank. I've saved money all my life. If I earned $10 I saved $9 of it. That's how I've lived."

Free Chicago Passenger on Wild Airplane Ride

James T. Mangan, advertising manager of the Mills Novelty company of Chicago, who was held for observation in the psychopathic ward of a Detroit hospital Thursday night after his eccentric actions had imperiled the lives of two passengers and the pilot of a Detroit-bound plane of the Tri-State airways, was released from the hospital yesterday, according to dispatches from Detroit. Hospital physicians expressed the belief that his sudden mental disorder may have been induced by air sickness.

DRY LAW ARRESTS IN JANUARY 4,500; LIST SINCE JUNE, 35,687

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Arrests for violation of the national prohibition act totaled 4,500 in January, bringing to 35,687 the aggregate since last June 30.

In making the announcement the prohibition bureau said on Dec. 31 there were 23,725 prohibition cases pending in the courts, while 3,755 had been added during January. During January 3,570 persons pleaded guilty and received average jail sentences of 197.2 days and $165.48 in fines.

During the month 732 permanent equity injunctions were granted, while 613 automobiles, 1,924 stills, and 4,022 beer fermenters were captured. In the month agents of the bureau seized 664,041 gallons of beer and 234,247 gallons of spirits. Beer seizures since June 5 totaled 4,605,057 gallons and spirits 894,449 gallons.

Since June 30 24,678 persons have pleaded guilty to prohibition violations and 1,758 were given trial by jury.

SENATE ACTS ON DROUGHT RELIEF MEASURE TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The senate entered into an unanimous consent agreement tonight to limit debate on the pending $20,000,000 compromise relief measure and to take a final vote not later than 2 p. m. tomorrow on the conference report on the interior department supply bill to which the relief measure is a rider.

The agreement on the final vote came after an all day filibuster over a minor item in the interior department bill. It was undertaken and maintained by two senators, Elmer D. Thomas [Dem., Okla.] and Lynn J. Frazier, North Dakota, insurgent Republican. Between the two of them they kept all business at a standstill.

24 Expected to Vote No.

When the vote is taken tomorrow it is expected that the conference report will be agreed to. Not more than two dozen votes will be recorded against it, it is believed. These votes will come from the radical Republican bloc and from Democrats, who are dissatisfied with the leadership of Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], who heads the minority party.

Senator Thomas filibustered for nearly five hours in an attempt to force those handling the interior department bill to send it back to conference, with instructions to right what he claimed was an "injustice" to certain Indians in the matter of a $31,000 item in the Indian bureau appropriation.

This sum he claimed was being taken from a trust fund belonging to the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribes and was intended to be used for the benefit, not only of these, but of other tribes. He closed his five hour speech with a motion to recommit.

McKellar Admits Defeat.

There was a chance for but one speech on the $20,000,000 compromise relief amendment, and this came from Senator Kenneth McKellar [Dem., Tenn.] His speech was both a protest and an admission of defeat. He would vote for the compromise amendment, he said, but it would be "the most embarrassing vote" he ever cast.

As a member of the conference committee in which the compromise was finally agreed to, he had held out for the original $25,000,000 Red Cross appropriation, Senator McKellar explained. He had refused, he said, to sign the conference report.

"Like President Hoover's farm relief program, like the $45,000,000 appropriation for feed, seed and fertilizer loans," Senator McKellar declared, "this compromise amendment is entirely inadequate and will do little good. It will not help the destitute persons who really need help. It is typical of Mr. Hoover's dealings with the farmer. He gives the farmer only the husks."

Might Help Dairy Industry.

The agreement to make loans for all live stock instead of for work stock only, however, might help the dairy industry of his state, said Senator McKellar. Therefore he "hadn't the heart to vote against the conference report."

Then he swung into an attack on Hoover that was reminiscent of the bitter attack he made on the President last December, when he openly questioned Mr. Hoover's administration of the $100,000,000 fund for European relief following the war.

The senator listed appropriations made "this very year" with the President's approval for ship building subsidies, battleship construction and repair, civil service pay increases, the farm board's revolving fund—"largely used in gambling in future"; for foreign and air mail subsidies, for reclamation projects—"at the same time that he says the farmers are already producing a surplus"; and for tax refunds.

Lists 600 Millions in Grants.

"These appropriations total $596,575,000," Senator McKellar declared. "Mr. Hoover is willing to give freely to the powerful interests which need no help nearly 600 millions of the taxpayers' money.

"Nor can these sums be called loans. They are grants of wealth to persons and corporations of great wealth. But he is unwilling to give a dollar to the poor and starving.

Senator McKellar denounced those who feared the effect of a special session of congress on business and the country's welfare.

"If I felt that congress was a menace I would resign from this body," Senator McKellar declared. He concluded with a statement upholding the actions of Senators Robinson and T. H. Caraway, the two Arkansans who led the relief fight, only to give in at the last, and who have spent the last three days arguing for the adoption of the compromise.

"I am not criticizing them," said Senator McKellar. "They got the best they could from an unwilling President."

E. SAPP, WHO ELOPED WITH FREEPORT GIRL, IS PAROLED TO FRIEND

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Everett Sapp, salesman, who eloped last December with Helen Shaner, a Freeport waitress, was paroled to his friend, Walter Wittke of Dixon, at the expiration of a 60 day jail sentence imposed for larceny of phonographs he was selling.

His wife, father, and brother, all of Chicago, paid $100 of a fine of $500 and costs which had accompanied the prison term. He then pleaded guilty to a charge of nonsupport and was ordered to pay $15 a week to his wife and two children. Wittke furnished bond of $1,000 to guarantee payments.

Mrs. Sapp left the court with her husband, but said she would place him on "strict probation for a long time" before she would agree to take him back.

LONG RAIN ENDS 8 DRY MONTHS IN MID-ILLINOIS

Restores Flow to Dry Creek Beds.

Pana, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—A continuous 12 hour rain has broken the eight months' drought throughout central Illinois. Rain, beginning to fall late yesterday and continuing throughout the night, was succeeded by snow early today. More than one and one half inches of water started the dry streams running again, and will replenish thousands of wells in this section that have been dry two months or more. The rain will also greatly benefit crops.

Heavy Around Duquoin.

Duquoin, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The first rain of consequence in months has fallen throughout this section of southern Illinois in the last forty-eight hours, and late this afternoon there was a marked drop in temperature. Farmers say no growing crops suffered from the prolonged drought, since the ground has been amply wet for a foot down to sustain growing vegetation.

Relieves Marion.

Marion, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—An all-night soaking rain last night poured thousands of gallons of water from the vast watershed into the Marion city lake and raised the level of the water several feet, removing all fear of a water famine for Marion.

Kentucky Expects Plenty.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 13.—(AP)—With heavy rainfall reported throughout Kentucky, J. L. Kendall, meteorologist at Louisville, said today the year old drought in this state apparently is on the eve of a complete breakdown.

"I believe the state may expect a rainy season, beginning at once, with rains every few days for some time," he said.

Rain starting last night and continuing through today brought moisture in appreciable amounts to many state points for the first time in a year. Precipitation of a half inch and more was recorded in the driest area.

TRY TO STRANGLE WILD OIL GUSHER IN OKLAHOMA

Oklahoma City, Okla., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Bizarre, masked figures toiled in a fog of gas and oil mist today to strangle another wild petroleum gusher.

It was an old story for the gas masked experts who labored away at the fuming maw of Mary Unsell No. 4 of the Indian Territory Illuminating Oil company. The well, a portion of the field remote from Oklahoma City business and industrial districts, attracted little of the apprehensive interest aroused by other wild gushers close to the city's tall buildings and fine homes.

Those in charge of the job of repairing broken pipe, clearing the derrick floor, and stabbing a "Christmas tree connection" into place over the casing top believed the final effort would be delayed until tomorrow.

$4,000,000 Patent Suit Filed Against Government

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A suit for $4,090,200 against the United States government was filed today in the Court of Claims by the Dock and Terminal Engineering Company of Cleveland, O., and a group of its officials. The suit charged infringement of a patent owned by William S. Ferguson, a party to the case, in constructing improvements on reinforced concrete docks and piers. The infringements were attributed to the war, navy, commerce, and treasury departments and the Panama canal.

Gen. Edwards Undergoes Operation for 2d Time

Boston, Mass., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, wartime commander of the 26th [Yankee] division, today successfully underwent a second operation at the Massachusetts General hospital for intestinal trouble. In announcing the success of the operation, hospital authorities said that contrary to previous rumors no malignant trouble was discovered. Immediately afterwards a blood transfusion, the third in a few days, successfully was performed.

BREAD PRICES ARE TOO HIGH, CAPPER SAYS

Convinced Big Companies Dictate Cost.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Testimony in the senate's investigation of food prices has convinced Chairman Capper of the investigating committee that the price of bread in many cities is "too high" and is "dictated" in some of them by a few big companies.

Capper expressed his views today after the committee had completed its inquiry into bread costs, and turned to sugar and other commodities.

Says Price Too High.

"I am convinced," he said, "the price of bread is too high in many cities. The low prices of wheat and flour have not been reflected in the price of bread to the consumer.

"There has been a drop of from 20 to 30 per cent in the prices of other foodstuffs generally, but a drop in price of bread of less than 10 per cent.

"It is the one important commodity which hasn't responded to the economic trend of the last year.

"In many of the large cities two or three big companies that have been created under the general consolidation program of recent years are in control of the bread market and dictate prices. Their influence is steadily in the direction of keeping prices up."

Senate to Get Report.

Capper said he did not want to discuss possible remedies until he has conferred with other members of the committee. He added, however, a report will be made to the senate week after next, shortly after conclusion of hearings on the prices of dairy products and meats.

J. F. Abbott, president of the American Sugar Refining company, testified today that, eliminating the tariff, the public is getting refined sugar at the "lowest price in the world's history."

His company, he added, is selling brown sugar in bulk for $3.75 a hundred pounds and white for $4.50. The price of brown sugar is higher, however, when sold in small packages.

Denies Any Combine.

Both Abbott and J. H. Post, president of the National Sugar Refining company, denied any combination in the sugar industry to control prices.

George Shibley, director of the Research institute of Washington, testified there is a "monopoly" in the baking industry. He suggested the committee obtain the income tax statements of the big baking companies and their officers to ascertain profits.

Two Canadian Air Force Pilots Die in 1,000 Ft. Dive

CAMP BORDEN, Ont., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Two members of the royal Canadian air force were killed today when a training aircraft crashed from an altitude of 1,000 feet. They are Pilot Officer Carl Alan Kaspner Gill of Trail, B. C., and Napoleon Albert Duval of Contrecouer, Que.

Mrs. Kudigunde Ahlheim was granted a divorce yesterday from Ernst Ahlheim, 309 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, who has been in the county jail since November of 1929 for his failure to pay temporary alimony to his wife. The decree was granted by Superior Judge Desort on grounds of cruelty.

The Ahlheims were married in Germany on March 3, 1928. Three days later, Mrs. Ahlheim alleged, her husband left her and came to Chicago. She followed, she said, and after finding him they lived together until July of 1929, when she sued for divorce.

When Ahlheim failed to pay temporary support money he was jailed and, enjoying jail life, according to his wife, has since refused to seek his freedom and find a job. He was taken to the courtroom yesterday and agreed to the divorce, providing he would not have to pay alimony. He was ordered, however, to pay up $1,000 in back alimony.

CHURCHES SPEND HALF MILLION TO AID UNEMPLOYED

Survey Shows Work Done Since November.

The Protestant churches of Chicago have expended approximately half a million dollars for unemployment relief since last Nov. 1. This was revealed yesterday in a survey conducted by the Chicago Church federation. This is in addition to and separate from the governor's relief fund.

Dean Shailer Mathews, president of the federation, believes that Chicago churches have done more relief work during the last winter than ever before. In addition to the $500,000 fund, thousands of baskets of food, bundles of clothing, and coal have been distributed. The survey showed that 1,750 jobs have been found for unemployed men, mostly with dependent families.

1,200 Churches Tell of Work.

The extent of relief work was learned in a questionnaire sent to 1,200 Protestant churches in Chicago. This revealed that about $200,000 had been raised within congregations for the care of the unemployed. In addition, Dr. Mathews said, it was learned that more than $250,000 had been given to denominational agencies and charities, including relief societies and institutional churches.

"Many of the 5,250 jobs are permanent," Dr. Mathews said. "This achievement has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars to relief agencies and also reveals how efficiently the churches can function in an emergency."

Aid in the Emergency.

Dr. Mathews said that the fact the churches were already highly organized, ready to begin service, aided in the emergency. The churches were also ready to throw their help to the governor's relief fund, and did, under the leadership of George W. Dixon, vice president of the federation and chairman of the church committee of the emergency relief fund campaign.

"I believe that definite spiritual results will accrue to the churches because of their unselfishness," Dr. Mathews stated. "Not only will new members be gained, but new strength added because of the gratitude and appreciation of the people who have been helped."

Walter R. Mee, extension secretary of the federation, said that the special relief work will be continued throughout the winter and spring.

FUND NEAR GOAL

The personal solicitation drive conducted by twenty-eight trade division teams composed of Chicago business men and operating under the direction of Philip R. Clarke, at noon today concluded their part in the $5,000,000 relief fund drive being conducted by the governor's commission on unemployment and relief.

Actual contributions last night stood at $4,683,015, not counting provisional subscriptions, valid only if the entire amount is pledged. If these are included the pledges total $4,776,535. Mr. Clarke expressed the belief that a direct mail campaign, starting Monday through franked mail, will enable the raising of the quota.

Donations yesterday amounted to $55,952. A middle aged lady in a faded tattered dress appeared at the drive headquarters with a cash donation of $100. She told Mr. Clarke her father had died recently and she wish[ed] to make a contribution from "daughter." One of the stenographers at the headquarters who has been donating her services for the typing practice yesterday made a cash donation of $1. One contribution of $1 was accompanied by a note explaining that it was all the donor could afford. It was signed a "crippled friend."

SUICIDE LAID TO GRIEF.

Charles Meiers, 75 years old, 5640 Argyle, who shot and killed himself Thursday, committed suicide while despondent over the recent death of his wife and over ill health, a coroner's jury decided yesterday.

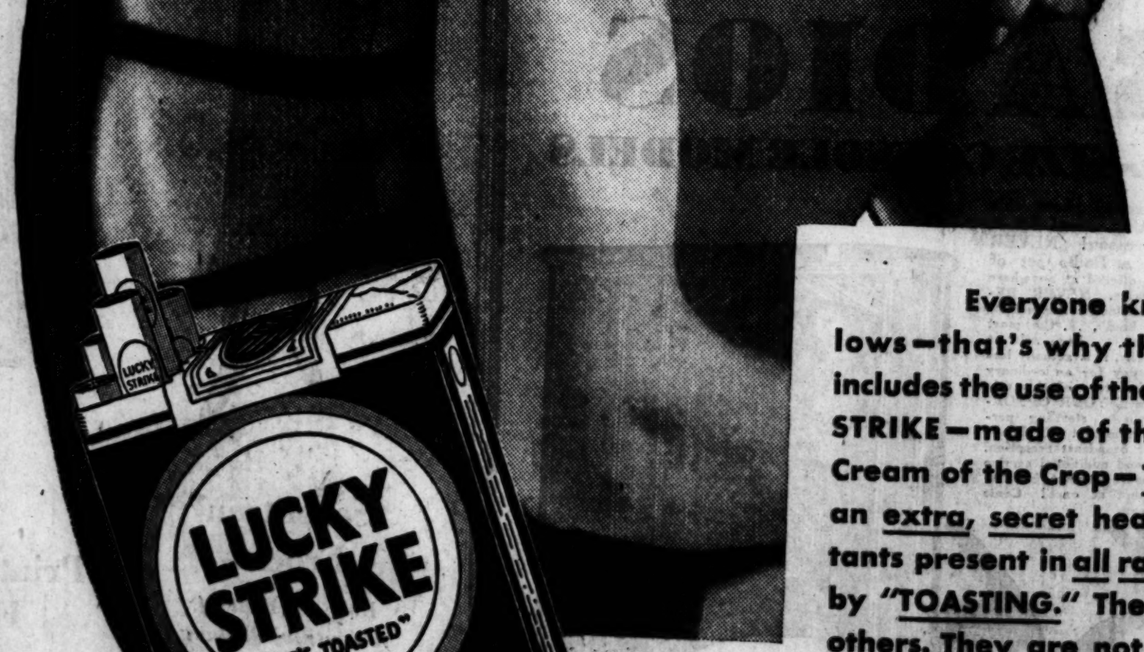
SUNSHINE MELLOWS

Heat Purifies

The advice of your physician is: Keep out of doors, in the open air, breathe deeply; take plenty of exercise in the mellow sunshine, and have a periodic check-up on the health of your body.

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat



Everyone knows that sunshine mellows—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobaccos—the Cream of the Crop—THEN—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret heating process. Harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in your LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

The extent of relief work was revealed in a questionnaire sent to 1,300 Protestant churches in Chicago. It revealed that about $200,000 had been raised within congregations for the care of the unemployed. In addition, Dr. Mathews said, it was learned that more than $250,000 had been given to denominational agencies and activities, including relief societies and institutional churches.

"Many of the 5,280 jobs are permanent," Dr. Mathews said. "This movement has saved hundreds of thousands of dollars to relief agencies and also reveals how efficiently the churches can function in an emergency."

Aid in the Emergency.

Dr. Mathews said that the fact the churches were already highly organized, ready to begin service, aided in the emergency. SALLY URGES YOU AGAIN TO HELP A DEAF JOB SEEKER

Veteran Also Wants a Chance to Work.

Not one response was received yesterday to the plea Sally Joy Brown made in yesterday's TRIBUNE for a job to be given to a young man of 24 years who is deaf and unable to find work.

He can qualify as handy man, can do cleaning and painting and can act as shipping clerk or printing helper. Miss Brown, who aids the unemployed by offering all jobs she can obtain for them to the Illinois Free Employment service, 116 North Dearborn street, again asks for help for the deaf man.

No Charity; Just a Job.

Yesterday she heard again from Mr. G., the former service man who though penniless has made a valiant struggle to retain his self-respect and his immaculate appearance. Mr. G. has found nothing. He does not want charity. He wants a job. He is an experienced salesman.

"I would take any sort of job in the world, providing it were honorable," said Mr. G. "I wouldn't mind risking my life. Nothing could be worse than the hell I am going through now, which is becoming unendurable."

A cheerful number of varied jobs were offered through Miss Brown by readers of THE TRIBUNE yesterday, however. A theater on North La Salle street wanted to employ as doorman a "tall, distinguished looking man." The C. manufacturing company in the 1200 block on South Paulina street would pay union wages to a man for a part time job repairing a dishwashing machine.

Woman Creates Two Jobs.

Mrs. E. L., in the 2400 block on West 54th street, created two jobs, for each of which she guaranteed good pay. She wants a cabinet finisher to repair and revarnish furniture, and she wants an experienced weather stripper to work on 14 windows. She will pay for the material and pay the worker $1 to $1.50 a window.

"Mrs. E. L. has shown ingenuity and the most kindly spirit," said Miss Brown. "We hope other housewives will follow her."

H. W. R., on South La Salle street, offered a job to a legal stenographer, to start at $18 a week. Mr. R. L., in a bank on the near north side, said he would pay $60 a month to an inexperienced switchboard operator. Mrs. F. O., in the 3500 block on Rokeby street, offered a job varnishing floors at 75 cents an hour.

Spring Cleaning Is Here.

Jobs for cleaning women at 50 cents an hour were offered by Mrs. E. N., in the 2300 block on North Harding avenue, D. C., in the 1600 block on Juneway terrace, and G. W., in the 1900 block on West 78th street. G. W. specifies that if the woman is good at spring cleaning she will be employed once or twice a month.

An "experienced carpet layer" was offered a temporary job, perhaps lasting a week, by H. C., in the 3600 block on Cullom avenue, at from $3 to $5 a day.

Mrs. D. E., in the 2900 block on Sheffield avenue, wanted a man to wash windows at 15 cents a window. Mrs. I. V. A., in the 1400 block on Hollywood avenue, offered a window washing job for 50 cents an hour and carfare.

Simultaneously with the news yesterday that THE TRIBUNE Good Fellow fund had gone over the $94,000 mark came word that the 16th Good Fellow family has been rehabilitated and another needy family chosen to take its place as one of the beneficiaries of the fund.

Mr. G., father of two children, has a job now and gladly releases the rest of the aid he had been promised to another family in less fortunate circumstances. Mr. G. was self-supporting until three months ago. Mrs. G. has been ill since the birth of their first child and is now in a hospital while her mother cares for the children. But now that Mr. G. has a job things are a little brighter.

The family, nominated by the Jewish Social Service bureau, to take the place of the G. family is composed of a father, mother, and five children. Mr. K. is a painter by trade, but except for three days' work last month he has not had employment for a year and a half. He has been ill several times during this period. The home is immaculate. The K.'s are the 305th family taken under Good Fellow care.

All families are investigated by the United Charities, Salvation Army, Jewish Social Service Bureau, and the Central Charities bureau [Catholic] before they are nominated for Good Fellow aid.

U. S. HAS 22,731 MOVIE THEATERS; LEADING WORLD

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The United States had more motion picture theaters on Jan. 1 than any other country of the world and approximated the total for all Europe, according to the department of commerce.

Throughout the world there were 62,365 theaters, with 22,731 in this country, the latter figure representing an increase of 7 per cent over 1929. Throughout all of Europe there were 28,454 theaters, compared with 27,379 in the preceding year, while Latin America had 4,954 in 1930, compared with 3,981 in 1929.

There were 19,984 sound motion picture theaters throughout the world, with 12,500 in this country.

LAWYER DEFENDS LEITER'S CARE OF VAST ESTATE

Enriched by His Efforts, Court Is Told.

Whatever errors of judgment Joseph Leiter may have committed as trustee of the $30,000,000 estate of the late Levi Z. Leiter, pioneer Chicago merchant, he stayed at home and attended to business while the relatives now arrayed against him forsook Chicago and went to England to live. Through his management, the estate, in which they participate, is richer by millions than it was when Levi Leiter died.

That was the gist of the argument advanced yesterday by Attorney Roswell B. Mason, representing the Joseph Leiters' children, Thomas and Nancy, in the Appellate court, where three judges are sitting en banc to hear the case which is to decide whether Joseph Leiter is to continue as trustee of the estate. The judges—Kickham Scanlan, the presiding judge, and Judges Otto Kerner and Martin Gridley—are reviewing a decision handed down in 1926 by Judge Denis E. Sullivan, who denied the plea of the English relatives of Joseph Leiter that he be removed as trustee.

Reviews Leiter's Work.

Leiter's 26 years of trusteeship and his management of the extensive Leiter real estate in Chicago, the Wyoming ranch lands, and the mines at Zeigler, Ill., were reviewed by the attorney in an effort to show that any mistakes Leiter might have made were more than counterbalanced by his achievements.

From the sale and lease of Chicago real estate Leiter turned over a total of $9,241,000 profit to the estate, the attorney declared. An additional $2,700,000 was brought to the estate through his management of the Zeigler mine properties, Mr. Mason asserted.

Estate Enriched, He Says.

"There was no wrongdoing on his part," the attorney said. "Everything was open and above board. The estate wouldn't have all these millions now if it weren't for the management of Joseph Leiter. Suppose he had married and gone to England to live? What would have happened to the estate then?"

The relatives seeking the removal of Joseph Leiter are his sister, Lady Marguerite Hyde, countess of Suffolk and Berks, and her three children; Lady Cynthia Mosley, daughter of the late Mary Leiter Curzon and Lord Curzon, former viceroy of India, and her sisters, the baroness of Ravensdale and Lady Alexandra Metcalf and Lady Mosley's small daughter, Vivian Elizabeth.

Earlier in the day Attorney Horace Kent Tenney, one of the lawyers for the plaintiffs, charged that Leiter had misused $750,000 of the funds of the estate which the will provided be kept for other beneficiaries. Arguments for Leiter will continue Monday.

COOK COUNTY TO GET $3,848,587 FOR NEW ROADS

State Reveals Gas Tax Allotment for '30.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Cook county can draw upon the state treasury for $3,848,587.96 to improve and construct new highways, this being the metropolitan county's allotment of the 1930 gas tax collections. Director of Finance Garrett Def Kenney announced today that $9,194,193.05 now is available for distribution to the 102 counties.

The money was allotted in proportion to the motor license fees paid by county residents. The net gas tax collections for the year reached $27,582,679.16, and of this two-thirds went to the state and was expended for roads build during the year or was obligated by roadwork placed under contract. The remaining third of the 3 cent tax was given the counties.

Cook's portion naturally was larger than that allotted any other county. St. Clair, in the East St. Louis district, was second, and Peoria third.

The counties are not given an absolutely free hand in the expenditure of this money. The law requires that they must submit their proposed road improvements to the highway department for approval. If consent to proceed is given, the counties may draw checks against their allotments for the expense.

TWO GIFTS ADD $35,000 TO FUND OF RED CROSS

A gift of $25,000 from the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad and $10,000 from Armour & Co. were received yesterday by the Chicago chapter of the American Red Cross toward Chicago's $940,000 quota of the national drought relief fund. There were checks for lesser amounts, also, one being for $25 from a north shore woman in celebration of her birthday. The Chicago chapter has issued another appeal urging companies and individuals to send their subscriptions to the Red Cross headquarters, 616 South Michigan avenue, made payable to the American Red Cross drought relief fund.

BENHAM SENDS WORD HE'LL BE HOME SHORTLY

But One Investor Begins Court Action.

Rockford, Ill., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—At the close of a day filled with ever increasing apprehension over the continued unexplained absence of Albert W. Benham, "50 per cent financier" of Belvidere, that town was reassured late this afternoon that its one time man of money was not in hiding or had permanently disappeared in a statement telephoned to the Morning Star by an associate of Benham.

The message was telephoned from Beloit by a man who denied he was Benham, but who would not say whether the financial wizard was in the Wisconsin city. It reads in part:

In Ill Health, He Says.

"My wife and I are in ill health. In Belvidere we are constantly harassed by newspaper reporters and curiosity seekers. We do not feel that we could serve any useful purpose by remaining in Belvidere. I am sure that my loyal friends and investors will not begrudge us these few days to recuperate our health and obtain the sorely needed rest.

"The report that I am in hiding is not true. I wish to state that we shall be back in Belvidere when we have had a little rest.

"A. W. BENHAM."

Return of indictments against several former associates of Benham, as well as himself, loomed today as possibilities when the Boone county grand jury reconvenes in Belvidere Feb. 17.

Moves to Recover $7,250.

The first legal step taken to recover funds loaned to Benham came today at Belvidere when Lloyd La Sha began court action in an attempt to collect $7,250 on three judgment notes. His action was regarded as the initial evidence of waning confidence in the get rich quick genius.

DIES AFTER FALL ON SIDEWALK.

Long Head of Newspaper; Founder of School.

Death yesterday ended the career of the Very Rev. Francis Gordon, C. R., considered the foremost priest of Polish extraction in the United States. He was 70 years old and founder and publisher of the Polish Daily News.

FATHER GORDON.

Father Gordon died suddenly in St. Mary's of Nazareth hospital, where he had been taken only the day before. His death was unexpected, although he had been suffering a long while from a diabetic disorder. During the day preparations for a funeral to be attended by high church dignitaries, and possibly Cardinal Mundelein, were arranged. The services will be held at 10 o'clock Monday at St. Mary of the Angels Roman Catholic church, with burial at St. Adalbert's cemetery, Niles.

Founded Large School.

Father Gordon's dynamic energy enabled him to found and supervise one of the country's largest foreign language newspapers. In his religious field he built St. Mary of the Angels church and established the largest parochial school in the world, the St. Stanislaus Kostka school, at Noble and Bradley streets. He also organized the Polish Alma Mater, a Polish young people's society of Chicago, which now has branches throughout the country and an enrollment of 10,000. For 40 years he directed the Polish Daily News and the Polish Publishing company which also publishes a series of Polish text books for parochial schools.

For his enterprise, Father Gordon was decorated June 15, 1924, with "Pro Ecclesia et Pontifice" by the pope. The decoration was bestowed on recommendation of Cardinal Mundelein, who officially lauded him as "one of America's foremost and most useful clergymen."

Only last December Father Gordon was decorated by the Polish government with a cross of "Polonia Restituta," the honor being conferred by Z. Lecki, the acting Polish consul, at a testimonial dinner Dec. 15 in the name of Marshal Pilsudski, the Polish president, and the ambassador of Poland.

Born in 1860 in Poland.

Father Gordon was born in 1860 in Tryszczyn, Poland, and came to America in 1882. He went to St. Mary's college at St. Mary's, Ky., and later studied theology at the Gregorian university, Rome. He was ordained April 20, 1889. Almost from the outset he assumed a commanding position which, among other things, elevated him to the rank for many years of delegate general to the Congregation of the Resurrection, an order of priests.

Another prominent clergyman well known in Chicago who died yesterday was the Rev. William H. Agnew, S. J., former president of Loyola university. He died at Rochester, Minn. At the time of his death Father Agnew was president of Creighton university, Omaha. The body will be taken to Omaha tonight by two of his brothers. The body will lie in state in St. Johns church tomorrow. Funeral services will be held Monday with Bishop Joseph F. Rummel officiating.

INDICT INDIANA CONGRESSMAN AS A BRIBE TAKER

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Harry E. Rowbottom of Evansville, Republican congressman from the First district, was indicted today by the federal grand jury for accepting bribes for using his influence in obtaining postal jobs for Indianians. He will be arraigned Feb. 27.

The indictment alleges Rowbottom accepted $750 from Walter C. Ayer for obtaining the appointment of Gresham Ayer as a rural carrier at Rockport; that Rowbottom accepted "indirectly" $800 from S. Grant Johnson, Dale, for the latter's appointment as postmaster at Dale, and that he took $300 from McKinney Ayer for the postmastership at Chesney.

Investigation of reports that Rowbottom had received money in return for recommending certain persons for postmasterships was started by the postoffice department last December.

The department sent five inspectors into the First district. On the basis of reports by these inspectors the postoffice department Jan. 5 announced summary dismissal of four postmasters and suspension of a rural mail carrier.

Rowbottom was first elected to congress in 1924. He was defeated for congress in the 1930 election by John W. Boehne Jr., Democrat. His terms will expire March 4.

HELD AS SLAYER OF WIFE.

Santo Cassecio, 55 years old, 3220 Congress street, was held to the grand jury yesterday by a coroner's jury on a charge of slaying his wife, Catherine, 48 years old, who was shot on Wednesday.

New Copyright Law Is Urged by Publishers

Seek Senate Action in Next 18 Days.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The president of the Authors' League of America, James Hopper of San Francisco; its executive secretary, Miss Louise Silcox of New York; John Langdon Davies of London, one of the most popular English authors who lecture in America, and Cass Canfield, vice president of the Publishers' association, spoke to the members of the League of American Penwomen this evening in behalf of the new copyright bill. That bill recently passed the house and now is in the patents' committee of the senate. There are only eighteen days before the closing of the session, so the bill—which has been worked on for six years—may not reach the senate for a vote in this congress.

Mr. Hopper said he had been assured by the committee that the bill would be passed in a minute if it ever came to the vote. Every magazine publishing, book publishing, and dramatic and moving picture organization is for the bill, as well as the American Federation of Labor. The exceptions to this support are one publisher of anthologies and two dramatic producers. The chief opponents are the radio manufacturers and radio broadcasters.

The present United States copyright law is, in its antiquity, on a par only with that of Siam, it was said.

Mr. Davies declared that for once England could teach America efficiency, for England has had a copyright bill comparable to that now before the senate committee since 1870.

"We have an English Speaking union trying to gloss over the fact that America and England do not both speak the same language," he said, "and one of the best ways of insuring hands and not fists across the sea is the passage in America of a copyright bill which unites instead of violently dividing the two countries."

At the present time, America is not a member of the international copyright union. With the passage of the pending bill, American creative products will enjoy international protection.

If the bill is not passed at this session, probably it will, of course, have to start all over again in the new congress.

The audience tonight pledged itself to an unremitting bombardment of the patents committee to make certain of its being presented to the senate.

An old tin box which had stood for three-quarters of a century in a dark corner of an old house in Pennsylvania was recently opened to reveal an intimate history of the part played by a Pennsylvania newspaper man during the hectic days of the California gold rush.

"One Man's Gold—the Letters and Journals of a Forty-niner—Enos Christman of West Chester, Pa.," edited by Florence M. Christman (McGraw-Hill), is the story of Enos Christman made from his own journals and the letters he sent to his betrothed, Ellen Apple, and to his friend, Peebles Prizer.

"One Man's Gold" contains the record of the long voyage around the Horn with its pleasures and hardships—it tells of the days of prospecting with their struggles and successes and disappointments, of skirmishes with Indians, of murder and gambling, of the organization of vigilance committees, of the overnight birth of cities and of the traveler's experiences as editor of the Sonora Herald. It is an intimate, authentic record of three adventurous years in one man's career, as well as a vivid picture of the turbulent life in old California.

In preparing her grandfather's papers for publication Miss Christman has taken care to preserve their authenticity. They have been condensed and freely edited, even the names of certain characters have been altered, but no changes have been made in the substance of the book.

Saki's American Success Recalls Fact He's Dead

One of the romances of the publishing business has been the success in recent years of the works of Saki coming after years of neglect and failure. Unfortunately, its author did not live to see his success in this country. Several years after his death, which occurred during the war, the Viking Press began to bring out a collected edition of his works in pocket sized volumes with introductions by Chesterton, Walpole, Milne, Nevinson, and others of his stanch admirers.

AMONG THE NEW BOOKS

FICTION.

River Girl, by Homer Croy [Harpers], is about the gay old days of Mississippi steamboating.

Black No More, by George S. Schuyler [Macauley], is an amusing satire. The author, who is a well known Negro, tells of the scientific bleaching of the skin of Negroes and the results of merging black America into white America.

St. Vitus' Day, by Stephen Graham [Appleton], is a story about the plot which brought the whole world to arms.

My Husband's Friends, by Katherine Bellamann [Century], tells of a brilliant and fascinating scientist who made too many friends.

She and I, by Pamela Frankau [Doubleday Doran], is about three adorers of a hollow headed goddess.

MYSTERY.

The Illustrious Corpse, by Tiffany Thayer [Fiction League], the author of "Thirteen Men," is the story of a weird adventure which overtakes a corpse.

SHORT STORIES.

The White Paternoster and Other Stories, by Theodore Francis Powys [Viking] contains twenty-six stories by the author of "Mr. Weston's Good Wine."

The Tragedy of Ah Qui and Other Chinese Stories is an anthology of short stories by young Chinese authors.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Under Three Tsars, edited by Rene Fulop-Miller [Dutton], contains the memoirs of Elizabeth Narishkin-Kurakin, who lived at the courts of Nicholas I., Alexander III., and Nicholas II.

Behind the Green Lights, by Capt. Cornelius W. Willemse [Knopf], is a stormy picture of New York crime by a man who has been a member of the New York police department for twenty-five years.

Dumas Father and Son, by Francis Gribble [Dutton], tells of those two exciting but so radically different men, the author of "The Three Musketeers" and the author of "Camille."

Tad Lincoln's Father, by Julia Taft Bayne [Little-Brown], depicts the home life of the Lincolns. Mrs. Bayne was a girl of 16 when her two young brothers were the inseparable companions of Willie and Tad Lincoln.

Massacre, by Robert Gessner [Cape and Smith] is a study and the sensational story of American Indians today.

Axel's Castle, by Edmund Wilson [Scribners] is a critical appraisal of the works of many contemporary authors, among them W. B. Yeats, James Joyce, T. S. Eliot and Gertrude Stein.

ABOUT PLACES.

So You're Going to Spain, by Clara E. Laughlin [Houghton-Mifflin], is the seventh book in the famous "So You're Going" series. Like its predecessors, it is guide book, a history, a travel book, and an up-to-date volume of information on shops, restaurants, and other exciting details.

NONFICTION.

The Art of Study, by T. H. Pear [Dutton], is a test of mental equipment and tells how to use study for delight as well as for the acquisition of knowledge.

When the Daltons Rode, by Emmett Dalton [Doubleday Doran], is the story of lawless days of the vanished west told by the only survivor of the Dalton gang.

Work, by Adriano Tilgher [Harcourt Brace], describes the evolution of human thought in regard to work. The book is translated by Dorothy Canfield.

Anne Green Scores with Her Second Novel.

During 1930 there were only three of the year's novels which achieved a sale of over 100,000 copies. A first novel of an unknown writer was one of the three [the other two were by two of America's most popular authors]. It was a book called "The Selbys" by Anne Green, the sister of Julian Green. It came as manna to the depressed. It was sheer gayety, about a half mad, but wholly charming American family living in Paris, and its success in a year of gloom was inevitable. It wasn't "important."

ANNE GREEN.

It wasn't a step this way or that in the American novel. It didn't pretend to have any special meaning. It wasn't notable for its style. It just had "It" and the public took to it the way middle westerners are supposed to drink down good speakeasy brew when they venture to New York. It had charm and—as an extra blessing—no purpose whatever. Every one was delighted, so almost overnight Anne Green became a best seller.

That first book always has a chance for success that the second lacks. Readers ask that a successful author repeat his or her success doubly in a second book. Not "just as good as" but "better than," is demanded. And the familiar ninety-nine and forty-four one-hundredths per cent of authors do not meet the demand. Anne Green is one of the fifty-six one hundredths per cent who do. Her new book, "Reader, I Married Him" [Dutton], is, despite its bad title, a whim and a wham.

The characters in "Reader I Married Him" are even more happy than in "The Selbys." There is a father who has inimitable and illimitable charm and a handsome figure and just can't be downhearted no matter what happens—even abysmal lack of funds; a grown daughter, the heroine, who hasn't had a penny to spend since she can remember, but who manages to have her clothes made by Lanvin. There is a son, but he doesn't count much in the book. There is a fabulous woman, indeterminate in age, with a beautiful face and a body like a tun, who is in love with the father and takes the daughter to live with her.

There is the father's mistress, who is a delightful woman with two children and an impeccable social position, who refuses to marry him on account of her little girls. And there is the young man with whom the heroine is passionately in love and who, in turn, accepts her devotion, engages himself to a wealthy but peculiarly unpleasant young thing, misses his earlier love so much that he actually falls in love with her, and finally bores her to death with his devotion.

Through all of her emotional crises—and she is the sort who can have an emotional crisis at will—the heroine lives by the fortune telling of her Jamaican maid—who is another amusing character—and the professional fortune teller who peacefully enjoys her precarious trade through the fact that she is the wife of a police inspector.

Nothing terrific ever happens! Even the tensest emotions are froth, but it is all wholly delightful froth, the gayest spun sugar of novel writing. The characters would drive you to murder if you had to live with them, but their antics have the allure of the completely irresponsible when viewed from a safe distance.

We'd like to have one of those popularity fever thermometers pinned on to the Times Square building and watch the mercury in it leap on its way to another 100,000 sale. F. B.

More Stories About 'Tish' Promised Soon

BY ALTA MAY COLEMAN.

New York. — [Special Correspondence.]—"Mother is in town and we're having a little party tomorrow afternoon" was the telephone summons to the publishers' tea given on Wednesday in honor of Mary Roberts Rinehart.

MRS. RINEHART.

Mrs. Rinehart's sons, in association with John Farrar, are the publishers of her recent books. They issued "The Door," which was one of the three books of fiction which sold over 100,000 copies last year, and from their press early this spring comes Mrs. Rinehart's autobiography, "My Story."

It is part of the fun of tea parties that you have to wait until the next one to get the answers to some of your questions, so we'll have to wait to learn the origin of our favorite literary heroine, "Tish," until Mrs. Rinehart comes again from Washington. But we have her promise that there will be more Tish stories soon.

Among the guests at the tea were Charles and Kathleen Norris, who arrived last week from the west coast for their semi-annual stay in New York. And Edward McKenna was over from Philadelphia; his new novel, "Tomorrow Once Again," is just out. Katharine Brush made one of her rare tea appearances; the successor of "Young Man of Manhattan" is almost finished and is to appear serially in the Saturday Evening Post. And Larry Barretto, author of the new novel of fascinating title, "The Indiscreet Years," was present.

In the lounge of the National Arts club on Thursday Mary Austin declared that New York is drab. A fortnight of our gray wintertime city has made her long for the warmth and color of Mexico. "There is a mysterious élan there," she declared. "As D. H. Lawrence says, there is more feeling of life in Mexico than anywhere else in the world. Each time I return, like a migrating bird, I have the feeling of going to a place inevitably right and appointed."

Mrs. Austin's new novel this spring, "Starry Adventure," is her twentieth book. Her next will be her autobiography.

Lincoln Steffens is in New York to see his autobiography launched; it reaches the book shops early in March. Owen Davis' autobiography, "I'd Like to Do It All Over Again," has just been published. The author of this first book returned from the Artists and Writers' Golf tournament at Palm Beach—bringing back the medal, by the way—in time to be guest of honor at Mr. and Mrs. John Farrar's tea on Monday.

Mr. Davis is, as everybody knows, the author of many plays. He himself doesn't know how many. "I have programs of three hundred," he said, "but in my early days in the theater when I was running a stock company there were seasons when I wrote a play a week."

Authors who think they'd fare better if they owned their own publishing concerns should note the experience of Wilfred J. Funk, president of that staid house, Funk & Wagnalls, which issues dictionaries, encyclopedias, and works on etiquette and right thinking. Mr. Funk recently offered his firm a collection of light, snappy verse which had appeared in magazine and newspaper columns. His own editor vetoed the book as inconsistent with the editorial policy of the house, which had never published anything so frivolous as a book of light verse.

Mr. Funk brought the matter before the board of directors—and they voted him down. Mr. Funk's poems, however, found a publisher. A literary scout took the rejected manuscript to McBride & Co.

BUSY MR. HERBERT TO GIVE READINGS AS OPERA IS REHEARSED

BY FRANK SWINNERTON.

LONDON. — [Special Correspondence.]—Next month A. P. Herbert is going to read aloud to a select London audience some extracts from "Ballads for Broadbrows" and "The Trials of Topsy."

A. P. HERBERT.

His new comic opera, "Tantivy Towers," is being produced by Sir Nigel Playfair at the Lyric theater, Hammersmith, and Mr. Herbert has been telling everybody that he is one of the hardest worked authors in England.

True, the list of his activities is impressive, especially when one remembers that Mr. Herbert is an ardent publicist as well as a writer of the greatest and most ingenious talent. There are several very hard working authors in England, who do not receive credit for their industry. They seem to do everything so easily, and they show such versatility, that they are regarded almost as social butterflies. Mr. Herbert is one of these writers; Mr. Noel Coward is another. Both have my sympathy.

Another author who is to give a reading, although this is not until March, is Mr. John Drinkwater. Mr. Drinkwater is to read from the manuscript of his autobiography! I can only hope that Mr. Drinkwater will live to write another autobiography when he is seventy. But it is nowadays the fashion to become reminiscential quite early in life, and if we are to have the autobiographies of men who are still quite young, none could be more welcome than Mr. Drinkwater's. Though not yet fifty, he has had a full and interesting number of personal adventures and encounters with celebrated persons. He was one of the four poets who collaborated in a mutual poetical publication called "New Numbers," and the other poets included Rupert Brooke. He was for several years connected with the Birmingham Repertory theater, a valuable and noteworthy organization for the advancement of drama in England. His play, "Abraham Lincoln," caused his tours in the United States to be something in the nature of triumphal progresses. He lives in the house of the Pepys family. And he knows everybody. The autobiography of such a man should be full of news such as we all desire to read of the great world.

A new book about London which should be "different" is being written by Percy Harris, a member of parliament. Mr. Harris has long been a member of the London county council, and he is an enthusiast for good local government. He knows the whole business of the running of London as few men know it; and as he has also had experience of that larger form of government to which members of the British house of commons are given, he can see London in its relation to the community.

Mr. Harris is related to the first wife of the late W. L. George. He is a man of tremendous activity; has humor, stubbornness, and honesty; and can express himself.

I expect his book to be a very good one. And it will tell things about London that the usual go-as-you-please, pseudo-antiquarian account omits. It is also sure to be more readable than the stodgy survey of institutions to which solemn students of such things have accustomed us.

But London is to be the subject of several new books this season, and George Cunningham's monumental work is to be reissued in a cheap edition. This work actually records the history of the city street by street—a perfectly gigantic feat!

Here's a Book on Illustration for Children

Tells About Picture Makers Young Readers Like.

BY AGATHA L. SHEA.

The ever increasing importance of illustration in children's books has given rise to an insistent demand for material upon illustration and illustrators by teachers, pupils and general public. Librarians, who are expected by all groups to meet the need, have been at their wits' ends trying to locate material which for the most part did not exist.

Now as a veritable gift from the gods comes "Contemporary Illustrators of Children's Books," edited by Bertha Mahony and Elinor Whitney and published by the Bookshop for Boys and Girls in Boston. I hasten to say it is the most timely, the most valuable and the most attractive book about books and the people who make them that it has ever been my privilege to review.

What may be designated as the second part of the book is devoted to a presentation of tendencies of contemporary book illustration.

Among the influences treated are the work of the Bewicks, early illustrators for children, and that of Cruikshank, Doyle, Tenniel, and Hughes. Jacquelien Overton in her "Tuppence Colored" tells the story of Walter Crane, Randolph Caldecott and Kate Greenaway. Howard Pyle and N. C. Wyeth represent the "Brandywine Tradition," and Rachel Field in a most interesting article tells the story of Lovat Fraser, whose very promising career was cut short by death in 1921.

It is indeed as the compilers wished it to be, "a grand house party with the illustrators of children's books as guests of honor." As for the attractiveness of the book, it must be seen to be appreciated, for the numerous lovely illustrations tell their own story far better than any words of mine could do.

NEIGHBOR
"Neighbor" is one of those interesting words that carry us back to Anglo-Saxon days. In Anglo-Saxon, neah meant "nigh," "near," and gebur meant "dweller," "farmer." These two words were combined into neahgebur, meaning, literally, "a near-by farmer." The word appears in medieval English in the form neighebour and in modern English as neighbor. Its meaning, changing with the evolution of civilization, no longer applies particularly to neighboring farmers, but refers to persons living near each other in apartment house suites or suburban cottages as well as to those on near-by farms. Even nations in the modern world are called "neighbors"—an interesting development of a word that means literally "near-by farmers."

THE QUESTION IS LYLE OR THOMPSON.

Ald. Albert entered the Republican primaries with the belief, no doubt, that he could be nominated; that, at least, he had a fair chance which justified the attempt. The Deneen organization which brought him out may not have had any illusions. It probably was sufficient for Senator Deneen to present a candidate and keep his organization intact behind him. That contemplates other campaigns for other political purposes, but it has been a disservice to the city in this campaign.

It is apparent that Ald. Albert will merely deflect a certain number of votes from effective registry against the city hall gangsters. These votes will not be enough to be of any benefit to him. They will help Thompson. As the conditions are revealed now, Judge Lyle can be nominated. Ald. Albert cannot be. The Deneen group does not expect to get him the nomination. The general appeal in his support is ostensibly against Thompson, but with many underhand blows at Lyle.

Judge Lyle offers that opposition its only chance. Republicans who want to chase dirt, humbug, and rascality out of the city hall and break the connections with criminals and thieves will defeat their purposes if they give their votes where they cannot have the effect desired.

This is the real situation. It does not reflect upon Mr. Albert's character or his record. The question is not whether a certain number of Republicans prefer Albert to Lyle. It is whether they prefer Lyle to Thompson. The latter's chief hope is that Republicans who detest him will so divide their votes that he may profit by the confusion.

A vote for Lyle is a vote for the defeat of Thompson and it is the only one which can be so cast.

A MODEST PROPOSAL.

Rain has come to Illinois, breaking the drought. Still it is far from certain that the subsoil is adequately watered for the growing season, and, of course, the possibility of another dry spell cannot be overlooked.

In the circumstances the duty of the federal government is plain. There is quite a lot of water in the Mississippi, the Ohio, the Illinois and their tributaries. The government ought to build waterworks to pump the water from the rivers to the land. The expense, to be sure, might be considerable, but if the government can spend several hundred million dollars to irrigate the southern California desert from Boulder dam, and about as much to provide Alabama with cheap power from Muscle Shoals and send an airplane carrier to Seattle to furnish the city with electricity, it ought to look with favor upon this relatively modest and useful proposal of ours.

THE COMMUNIST EXPERIMENT.

There has just been published in England a government report of labor conditions in Russia. The British ambassador was not permitted to look into the lumber camps, where forced labor is reported to be at its worst. Articles describing conditions in the camp, by refugees, have been published recently in THE TRIBUNE. The London Times, commenting upon the British report, asserts that it reveals unparalleled regulation of Russia's vast labor resources, and concludes that "if Russia, with the help of foreign credits and foreign engineers, is able to continue industrializing herself at the present rate other countries will be able to compete only by organizing their production and commerce on a similar scale. They must regiment and exploit their labor with the same ruthless thoroughness and reduce their standard of living."

Of course, this conclusion involves a large if. A system of production based upon compulsion in the long run is not likely to maintain a high level of economy and efficiency. One of the engineers to whom the Times refers, an American in charge of the greatest hydro-electric development initiated by the soviet, has recently given the opinion that the five year agricultural industrialization plan is prospering and will be followed by a successful industrialization of all Russian agriculture. This eventuality, he realizes, will have world-wide consequences.

It is obvious that if the Russian workers on the farm and in the factory will continue to submit to the conditions essential to government controlled labor and under this system are industrious and efficient, accepting a lower standard of living than the workers in capitalist countries demand and enjoy, Russian exports will undersell those of countries maintaining higher standards wherever they are allowed to enter. But before we give up to gloomy forebodings we might be permitted to consult our belief that the freeman is more energetic, more resourceful, and more competent than the slave or the worker under an iron government domination. A minority in the Russia of today who are excited to special self-sacrifice and effort by revolutionary zeal and the Utopian hopes held before them by the elaborate propaganda of the communist leaders will function well for a time. But what of the vast majority of the 150 million Russians? It is not likely that they can throw off the centralized power of the soviet government, but will they work efficiently and continuously under the communist system?

Allowance must be made for the fact that they have never had a high standard of living or freedom in the sense of the worker of western Europe, much less America. That is a great advantage of the soviet experiment which may save it. But communism in the long run, in competition with individualism, must prove that men will work better and live better when deprived of the incentive of free competition and individual reward, and when they are ruled by officials and politicians ruthlessly using the force of government.

This, of course, we do not believe. That communism under the special conditions of Russia may show some sensational results is possible and, many believe, probable. But we are confident they will be temporary and delusive successes and that in the long run the American faith in progress through the development of individual intelligence and character, whatever mistakes it makes on the road, will be justified as the best path of human progress.

THE TWO HOOVERS.

President Hoover's Lincoln day address by radio to the nation was a statement of doctrine held determinedly by older Americans, one of individual character, private enterprise, responsible and dependable local government and freedom from the federal almoner, censor, and bureaucrat. Mr. Hoover said that the spread of government destroys initiative and thus destroys character. He said that the shouldering of community responsibility upon government will lead to the superstate in which every man becomes the servant of the state and real liberty is lost. He said that this way leads to enervation and destruction of character.

All this is well said and true. The people need to have it said to them, but they also need more to have the doctrine applied for them. Mr. Hoover does not act as he speaks. He could not read this message of his to the American people and, for instance, repeat his rejection of the majority conclusions in the Wickersham commission report.

It is useless to tell communities to preserve their own dependable local governments and live by their own character if the federal agent is intruded upon them ostensibly as a regulator and a custodian of private morals and behavior, and in reality as a cause of disorder. There could not be a greater breakdown of the responsibility to which Mr. Hoover appeals or the character which he trusts will save the nation. He speaks well, but he does not persuade himself. Consequently he may not persuade others.

His instinct may be against the trend in federal government which pyramids bureau upon bureau, which extends federal interference into activities and enterprises in which it is alien and destructive, but he does not present a successful front to them. The pressure for these extensions invades and pervades Washington and the protections which guarded the communities and individuals go down. The superstate which will command servants is being erected. Even when Mr. Hoover does not support this trend he improvidently compromises with it.

Although he asks the country to preserve its self-reliance, its character and its will, he leads it into international connections which have the purpose of creating another superstate. He does not here depend upon the character and the institutions, but looks to the mechanisms of an outside order for results.

Mr. Hoover cannot advance the ideals set forth in his Lincoln day address if he himself only reachieves the distinction of Charles II., who never said a foolish thing and never did a wise one.

GOOD FELLOWS AT WORK.

The Good Fellow relief fund is now approaching the $100,000 mark and will soon reach it. There are 304 families now being cared for by this fund. Every case has been investigated and shown to be one of real need and deserving of aid. The donors are assured that their gifts are well spent. Not a penny goes astray.

These donations are in all sums, from the small contributions which, combined with others, keep a needy family's heads above water, to large ones. They come from men, women, and children of small means and larger, in all occupations and from all sections of the city. They represent the direct appeal of human fellowship to those who are stricken and often substantial sacrifice on the part of the giver. All this is clear gain to the individuals concerned, the giver, even more perhaps, than the receivers. It is all clear gain to the community as a practical expression of neighborliness and intelligent community spirit.

This work will go on. Although we may fairly believe that the clouds are beginning to lighten, widespread need still exists and will continue for months to come. The springs of relief must not be permitted to fail. The Good Fellows have shown a spirit that does not falter. They will carry on.

Editorial of the Day

[Minneapolis Tribune.]

For many years the state of Wisconsin has had a pay-as-you-go fiscal policy. It has been strictly adhered to and it has saved the taxpayers of that state millions. Wisconsin has no bonded indebtedness. Its state capitol at Madison was built out of income. The interest saved in building it without a bond issue would build another equally expensive structure today.

Naturally, therefore, a proposal pending in the Wisconsin legislature to issue bonds of $5,000,000 to buy lands and erect needed buildings for state charitable and penal institutions is arousing a good deal of interest and discussion, since the method proposed is a constitutional amendment.

Already vigorous opposition to the amendment has developed. It is pointed out that the interest cost of $5,000,000 borrowed for 20 years would be another $4,000,000 and that taxpayers would be required to pay $200,000 a year in interest charges alone before any part of the principal was retired.

Five million dollars would not seem a large bond issue in some states, but it does to many people in a state that has no bonded debt.

Conceivably there are cases in which a state may be justified in issuing bonds for public improvements. Parsimony is often paid for at a high price. Public improvements of such a nature that the benefits conferred offset the principal and interest charge may warrant special financing to hasten their fulfillment when delays would mean a fixed cost quite as definite.

Wisconsin's pay-as-you-go policy has a most definite record commending it. The reception a constitutional amendment will receive when it is submitted to a vote of the people should prove a most interesting test of public sentiment and result in discussions carrying a great deal of practical and worthwhile education on state fiscal policies.

WE ARE GROWING OLDER.

THE average age of population in America is increasing moderately and, what is more important, it is liable to increase more rapidly in the next few years. This increase will continue until about 1950, in the opinion of Dr. Dublin, who supplies the facts for this article. Dividing the population into three age groups and comparing two years and projecting a third, he gives us the following information:

In 1850 a little more than one-half the population were under 20 years of age. In 1920 this group made up two-fifths of the population. In 1950 they will be less than one-third of the whole. In the same years the figures for the 20 to 50 year group are: 1850, 38.6 per cent; 1920, 42.9 per cent; 1950, 43.7 per cent. Over 50 years of age: 1850, 8.9 per cent; 1920, 15.4 per cent; 1950, 23.6 per cent. The ultimately stable population will be divided into: First group, 29 per cent; second group, 40 per cent; third group, 31 per cent.

The trend is due to the downward bend of the birth rate, the low death rate, the increasing proportion of the people beyond the child begetting age, and the decrease in immigration of young people from races with high birth rates. These facts, so far as essentials go, are well known to health officers, physicians, social workers, and farsighted business men. They are profoundly important, even more important than war and peace.

The health officials and physicians are beginning to think about the health of people of middle age and beyond. They are thinking about cancer, heart disease, apoplexy, high blood pressure, Bright's disease, diabetes, and pneumonia. They realize that before long they can forget about measles, smallpox, typhoid fever, and the summer complaints of babies.

The social workers are thinking about old people's homes, employment for old people, part time work, slow speed jobs.

The insurance companies are planning readjustment of the rates. The insurance of babies, once too hazardous for many companies, is now so safe that rates need to be readjusted.

The business man is finding that he must change his wares. The departments selling children's supplies need to be contracted. Those selling supplies for people 50 years and over must be increased. Salesmanship now adjusted to younger minds must be readjusted. The size of houses and arrangement of houses will be changed, if not already changed. The number of school seats and the size of school buildings is another field in which there will be change. The food supply will change from one devised especially for children to one that especially suits older people.

CEMENT FLOORS.

W. H. B. writes: I know from experience that standing or walking on cement floors daily makes the calves of the legs and knee joints ache. In most factories in this section that have cement floors and workers have to stand all day we build false slotted platforms of wood for an insulator.

I would advise the purchase of shoes with rubber soles and heels, or have them applied. I personally have found it necessary to wear rubbers all the time when our work is on cement floors. Rubber makes a very good insulator for cement floors. Since cement floors have come into such extensive use we have had innumerable complaints about aching legs, and insulation is the answer.

REPLY.

There is advantage in having slats or some other covering for cement floors.

There is but one objection to rubber heels and soles when the floors are cement. It is the danger of slipping.

WILLS ALL TO WIFE.

Cedar Rapids, Ia., Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A man died and had willed all his property to his wife.

1. How does she proceed to have this transferred to her name?

2. Is she allowed to use the revenue from this property for her own personal use without making a report to the local court about it? She is executrix of the estate.

3. How should leases for rent of land and buildings, and insurance be carried now: in her name, or in the name of the estate? The man died in March, 1930.

4. Since there were no debts it is not necessary to carry the estate longer than a year, is it? L. F. T.

1. Probate proceedings are necessary in order to produce a merchantable title to real estate. For this purpose you should employ an attorney.

2. All that she receives by descent, including past due rent, should be reported for inheritance tax purposes, if that is what you mean to ask.

3. The latter.

4. No. If the estate is in such condition that probate can be dispensed with, then she might as well start using her own name at once. We do not have sufficient facts before us to advise you to advantage.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DUMPING ABATED.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—[Friend of the People.]—Can something be done to compel owner of vacant lot on Henderson street to erect a "no dumping" sign on premises? Last week the lot was thoroughly cleaned by the city, but now it is rapidly being filled. Please give this your attention. H. L.

Report is made that conditions complained of have been remedied and notices served on offenders to stop further dumping. If notices are not complied with, drastic action will be taken to enforce compliance.

P. J. DONOVAN,
Deputy Superintendent of Streets.

BOXES IN CLOSED BANKS.

Chicago, Feb. 2.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. In the event of a bank failure can the owner of a safety deposit box have access to the box? 2. Does the bank have any claim on money kept in the box? 3. Is there a law against keeping money in safety boxes? 4. Is there any statute against hoarding money? R. E. B.

1. Yes, subject to possible temporary delay to give the receiver opportunity to determine whether bank assets may be in some of the boxes.

2. In general, no.

3. No.

4. No.

VALENTINES.

From Any Mayoralty Candidate to Any Other Mayoralty Candidate:

Oh, brother dear, on this glad day
I pray you be my Valentine;
I sound your praises everywhere,
I drink your health in wine.

I pray your heart may brim with joy,
You'll never feel dejected;
You're first of all us candidates,
I hope you'll be elected.

I send this Valentine to you,
My loving thoughts to tell;
And wish your dreams may all come true—

Now comes the glad, the jocund day,
Which all our hearts entwine,
And so I haste to ask if thou
Wilt be my Valentine?

Just drink no more of bootleg hootch,
Oh let my prayer prevail;
But if you spurn my loving heart,

My love for you, my good sweet friend,
Is something grand and fine;
And so, although you are a dry,
Please be my Valentine.

You are so earnest in your views,
Our vices all to check;
I'm sorry that you give to me
A big pain in the neck.

From the Republican Elephant to the Democratic Donkey:

To you, oh humble little one,
I send these thoughts of mine;
I bear you only love today,
Please be my Valentine.

I love to hear your patient bray.
There's none to you compare,
For though you try so very hard,
You don't get anywhere.

You're bursting into song;
I really must remind you,
Twenty million can't be wrong.

Dear friend, I know you're very sad,
You sob and fret and pine,
Do let me cheer you up a bit,
Come be my Valentine.

With unemployment all around,
And everything in a flurry,
With starving farmers, bonus bills,
My dear, how you must worry!

But though right now you're full of woe,
There's peace for you ahead;
For after nineteen thirty-two—
Good-by! you'll be quite dead.

STATE RIGHTS have bobbed up again, and this time the north is preaching that doctrine to the south. How the pendulum does swing back and forth. Seventy years ago there was some kind of war on that very subject, and the answer then was that there was no such animule. Now, it commences to look like a pretty good thing. Oh, well, things are spinning around these days so fast that it makes one dizzy trying to keep up with 'em.

NOT THAT WE don't think it's a good idea to put more responsibility back with the states instead of lodging it all down in Washington—even the care and feeding of babies. The governor of a state ought to do a lot more than open the annual agricultural fair and lay corner stones for new buildings at the state university, or plan how to become a U. S. senator after his governor job is ended.

RIGHT NOW state pride is at such low ebb that people wouldn't know what state they lived in if they didn't have to buy a state license tag for their autos. And they know there are other states, because they see the names abbreviated on the backs of cars from those places. But if the national government ever takes that privilege away from the states they are sunk.

LONDON. — The Spanish government has made application to the powers in order to obtain joint action to end what is termed a state of anarchy in Mexico, according to a dispatch from Madrid. José Caro, Spanish minister in Mexico, is an involuntary fugitive on board the American battleship Delaware in the harbor of Vera Cruz. He has been expelled from the country by Gen. Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalists.

NEW YORK.—Matthew A. Schmidt, 34 years old, was arrested here as a fugitive from justice on an indictment found in Los Angeles in October, 1910, charging him with having been implicated in dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building, resulting in the loss of twenty-one lives.

BERLIN.—The German foreign office, after studying the American note respecting the declaration by Germany of a war zone in the waters around Great Britain and Ireland, intends to adhere to its own viewpoint. German officials are convinced that the naval campaign can be conducted on the lines laid down in the admiralty proclamation without involving difficulties with the United States.

PARIS.—Artillery and infantry engagements are in progress along nearly the whole of the western battle front. The official French war statement says: "The enemy has bombarded the villages of Bailly and Tracy-le-Val. Our heavy artillery has reached the railway station of Noyon. In the Champagne district in the region of Souain one of our battalions which had been successful in taking possession of a wood in front of our trenches was not able to hold its position before a counter attack of superior forces." Scattered airplane attacks are reported.

FEBRUARY 14, 1901.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Carrie Nation left Chicago bound for Topeka, Kas., with the promise that she would return some day and make her presence more effectively felt. Mrs. Nation's last night in the city was filled with experiences. She visited the bar of her grandson, Riley White, and addressed a ribald crowd from a wine table. Earlier she had called on Mayor Harrison and Chief of Police Kipley, both of whom were "out." She visited several saloons, ordering the bartender in one to drape a nude statue, which he did.

NEW YORK.—Plans for the machinery of wireless telegraphy to signal across the ocean have been completed and a site for the plant selected by Nikola Tesla, it has been learned. It is estimated that about eight months will be required to perfect the apparatus.

MANILA.—Maj. Maximo Angeles surrendered 132 rifles at Haganoy, province of Bulacan. Maj. Langhorne has had a successful engagement with insurgents at Tuy, fifteen miles from Batangas. A battalion of the Forty-ninth volunteer infantry attacked 300 insurgents at Tayabas, 91 miles from Manila, last Sunday. The insurgents had forty-three casualties and the Americans four.

FEBRUARY 14, 1881.

CHICAGO.—The west and northwest continues in the grip of the raging elements, although in some parts there has been a letup. Reports of phenomenal blizzards continue to come in from all sections of the northwest. The snow in many places has drifted as high as the second stories of houses. At Toledo, O., the city is still suffering from unprecedented floods.

LONDON.—The government continues to receive news of plots to blow up public buildings, and they are exciting much uneasiness. Among the buildings threatened is Windsor castle. Ipereasing activity of the Fenians in different parts of England is a source of anxiety to the authorities.

DURBAN.—The Boers have repulsed the British at Lang's Neck. Several of the British force, including six officers, were killed. The Boer losses were light.

LONDON.—An anti-coercion meeting was held in Hyde park. A man who by his oratory tried to incite the throng to riot was pursued out of the gates. There were many banners bearing inscriptions: "Release Davitt," "We want the land that bore us."

MILITARY TRAINING.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—A small article on the eleventh page of THE TRIBUNE'S Feb. 10 issue tells a tale that should be brought more to the attention of the few people who still have some pride and patriotism left. The article informs us that three bills are pending in the house of representatives: A bill to withdraw federal and war department aid from all public preparatory schools and high schools, a bill to prevent such schools from making military training compulsory, and a bill to withdraw federal aid from such schools requiring military training.

Perhaps the average citizen doesn't realize that under the wing of the pacifists such blows are constantly being aimed at the country's defense. Perhaps he doesn't know that the suspension of the R. O. T. C. in the Chicago high schools last year was not due so much to the need of the city for economy as to the action of a well known man in city circles who accomplished the suspension for pacifistic reasons.

The nation's defense is laid in the reserve system. A small standing army and a large reserve are what we have to fall back upon. Are we to let so-called idealists, the pacifists, wreck our defense system? Luckily during the last war we had some time to organize and train an army and officers. The next time, however, there may not be two large nations standing in the way of the invader. We may not have time to train officers and an army. What then? We must fight that battle now and get rid of the meddlesome pacifists.

WOMEN AS JURORS.

Murphysboro, Ill., Feb. 9.—Has the question of the eligibility of women to jury service been settled in Illinois? It appears that the vote taken last November on the statute enacted by the legislature in 1929 is considered by some as giving women the right to serve as jurors.

Paragraph 5 of the bill of rights of our constitution is as follows: "The right of trial by jury, as heretofore enjoyed, shall remain inviolate, but the trial of civil cases before justices of the peace by a jury of less than twelve men may be authorized by law."

At the adoption of the present constitution men only were qualified jurors and that is the kind of juries that must be kept "inviolate" until legally changed. The constitution cannot be amended by a referendum vote except on a proposed amendment. It certainly cannot be amended in an indirect way, as was attempted by the vote on the statute referred to. There must be a direct proposition to amend.

R. J. MCELVAIN.

NO.

Palm Beach, Fla., Feb. 5.—If, as stated in your editorial, "The Saloon, Old and New," on Tuesday, Feb. 3, there are 20,000 speakeasies in Chicago against 5,000 saloons before prohibition, wouldn't that figure one million speakeasies as against 250,000 saloons throughout the country; and if prohibition were repealed wouldn't the employés of these speakeasies add approximately 1,500,000 to the unemployed, granting that only two persons were employed in each speakeasy? H. C. EMRICH.

LYLE AGAINST CRIME.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Good, good, good, your editorial "Lyle Against Crime." Very few people love a crusader and that may account for the judge's unpopularity in some quarters. Human nature takes some mighty strange twists at times. Individuals who were most vociferous about crime conditions in years past have suddenly turned and are off on the back of candidates of questionable merit.

That a vote for Albert is a vote for Thompson should be plain to any person of age possessing common sense. Unless Mr. and Mrs. Average Citizen and Voter units behind this good man Lyle, we may wake up the morning after the primaries to find that the same incumbent of the hall is with us yet.

We who are fighting for a better Chicago had better take no chances on any one but Judge John H. Lyle.

RAYMOND R. BLACK.

MR. SCHMIDT'S CANDIDACY.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Why are you giving so little publicity to the candidacy of George K. Schmidt? To me it seems Mr. Schmidt is by far the best qualified candidate and that the best interests of the city warrant far more newspaper publicity than his candidacy has been receiving. W. FREIHAGE.

SCANDALIZED.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—Since I read your writeup of Lyle's rotten speech at the Apollo theater last night your paper is taboo as far as I am concerned. To think that a judge, representing the people of Chicago, and trying (God forbid he ever makes it) to be mayor, could make such a filthy, low down, scummy talk, is beyond comprehension. And to think that THE TRIBUNE could sponsor such a foul thinking man, or specimen of a man, is beyond me, as any decent, clean thinking citizen of Chicago. Come on, Thompsonites, let's go. REAL CHICAGOAN.

THE MAYOR AS SCHOLAR.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—In a radio speech Chicago's mayor talked to the young people of Chicago. He informed them that Jefferson wrote the constitution of the United States.

This is the same historically minded mayor who, with his faithful follower, Gorman, put Muzzey's American History out of our high schools. Perhaps the parents of Chicago high school students will demand some day that text books be picked by experts—the teachers of these subjects—instead of by a mayor who does not share the information of an ordinary eighth grader that the constitution was the composite effort of fifty-five men working four months. MARY SWEETSER.

THE CRIME OF SELF-PROTECTION.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—I note in this morning's issue an item relating the story of a cab driver who, having a gun, captured a man attempting to hold him up. When turning the holdup man over to the police, the driver himself was jailed for carrying a gun.

Why is it that so many criminals can carry guns unmolested and a workingman, who should have a right to this form of protection, in attempting to defend himself is put in jail when he succeeds in capturing a gun toting criminal? CITIZEN.

THE LONG LOOP

BY B. M. BOWER

SYNOPSIS.

Hiram Larrabee, head of the Whistling Creek ranch, was swindled in an oil well frame-up by Owen Gray, neighboring rancher and banker. Everything he owned, except the home ranch, was mortgaged. Dix, an orphan, keeps from his grandmother and his young fiancee, Chuck, the true state of affairs. Gram has her heart set on seeing Chuck a bride. Chuck has expensive tastes and his indulgent older brother has a hard task paying for his college tuition and material demands.

Mart McGuire tempts Dix with the idea of changing the brand of the cattle from Gram's O T ranch to a coffeepot, symbol of Dix's own.

Wun, an Indian helper, discovers a lost valley with a geyser on the Coffeepot ranch. Only one passage leads to it, through what is seemingly a blank cliff wall. It is an ideal pasture for cattle.

With vague misgivings Dix begins rustling from Gray's herd, hiding the stolen cattle in the lost valley. A blizzard obliterates all traces of the crime. After a second foray Dix is ready to call quits, but Mart and Tom continued night riding on their own. Dix's cattle vanished steadily after every shipping.

Chuck and a flyer friend named Frosty arrive at the ranch. Chuck confesses to Dix that he has given up a medical career for aviation. He and Frosty plan to build secretly a competitive plane for a prize. A shed built against the crevice hiding the entrance to the lost valley seems to them the ideal place for their work.

Owen Gray's aunt and cousin Helen visit the O T ranch. Helen knew Chuck in boyhood. From what Owen tells her, Helen guesses the true situation involving Dix, Chuck and her friend, Josephine Parker, drive over to call on Larry, their nickname for Dix. Dix's girl and avoids her. Chuck gives a big party at the ranch, and Helen and Jo stay till the next day. Helen probes through Dix's desk and learns a great deal about Dix's private business. When she returns to the O T ranch Owen is anxious for information. Helen tells him she believes Dix is innocent.

Chuck and Frosty buy an airplane, which they plan to use for commercial flying to earn money. Chuck complains about cattle being in the shed and trampling on the new airplane's wing.

INSTALLMENT XXIV.

CATTLE INTERFERENCE.

"That's the second time there's been cattle in our shed," Chuck stated, accusingly. "What's the big idea, anyway? The first time the gate was open and I thought I was the guilty party and didn't say anything. But it was no open gate last night. Looks to me like dirty work at the crossroads."

He stared hard at Mart's averted face.

"Meaning what?" Dix asked, too quietly.

"O, nothing—only I seem to remember there were objections to our coming here to build our plane——"

"Yes," said Dix, still more quietly, "I objected, for one."

"And why, for Pat's sake?"

"It plays hell with ranch routine."

"That's the only reason?"

"That's reason enough, ain't it?"

"No," said Chuck, hotly, "it isn't reason enough. Why don't you give the real reason? You were sore because I'd had nerve enough to choose my own job, and had gone into aviation instead of medicine. You've carried a chip around ever since Frosty and I showed up here. You didn't want to give us that shed to work in. You meowed around about how it would hurt Gram's heart to find out I wasn't a doctor—and it didn't faze her! Gram's a real sport. She's just as keen for me to help win this prize as I am. She——"

"Whatever you want, Charlie," the old woman quavered, patting his arm with timid affection. "You shan't be a doctor if you don't want to be. Dixon has no right to coerce you."

"Aw, hell!" muttered Dix.

"So that stall has gone blooey, and you didn't have any excuse to keep outa the shed, and so——"

"Aw, dry up. Chuck's doing all right."

"If you're going to accuse me of sneaking cattle in there to smash your damn plane, I'll show you how I work when I get started. I'll take a damn oath to it——"

"Dixon, Dixon, remember where you are!" shrilled Gram, rising from her chair to stop him. "You shan't talk like that in this house, and you don't touch Charlie's airplane, either! Don't you dare! If you so much as lay a finger on his work you'll have to go. Much as I love you, Dixon, I shall have to forbid you the ranch if you lay a straw in Charlie's way or interfere in his work. You mind what I tell you, now—I mean it!"

"Do you mean all that, Gram?" Dix stopped at the door and turned back, his face stony calm. "All you've got to do is say so and I'll go, all right."

"O, don't be a damn fool," soothed Chuck, leaning to pat his grandmother while he beckoned Dix back with a peremptory tilt of the head. "We don't want to crack up the whole family just because a cow got at our prize plane. I never said you turned 'em in, Dix. I never thought it. You made us sore, acting like I was just hunting trouble. Come back and eat." He grins to a closing door, however.

"I don't see what's got into Dixon lately," Gram said, carrying a handkerchief uncertainly to her face with her palsied hand. "All spring he's been so cranky and crabbed you never know when he's going to bite your head off. Ever since you came home I've seen such a change in him——"

Chuck was soothing her as best he could when Mart left the table, scowling.

"And there goes another grouch," said Chuck, as Mart went down the steps. "They oughta get married or something; give 'em some excuse for going around with their jaws hanging down. Don't you worry, Gram. You should care about two grumpy old bachelors like those two. You should wait till we pull down that hundred thousand prize, and I'll take you back to Baltimore."

Down at the corral Mart and Dix were having words neither pretty nor prudent for eavesdroppers to hear.

"Aw, I don't believe they touched his damn plane," Mart was saying, defensively. "One steer happened to get on the peck a little and tried to break back, but Tom got him right away before he done any damage. It sure was profitable. Put about a thousand dollars in yore pocket, right las' night."

"Aw, fergit them warnin's. We never took a chance, and we ain't goin' to. Them steers was ripe for the open range, and we took 'em out an' scattered 'em. Come next shippin' time, you won't do no bellyachin' around when yuh round 'em up. Way Chuck's throwin' money away, you're goin' to need 'em."

"Aw, dry up. Chuck's doing all right. Every dollar they make clear on the Blue Robin they turn it over to me."

"Yeah, and then reach out the other hand for five more'n what they give! Think I'm a damn fool? I got eyes in my head," Mart said, calmly. He looked at Dix over his shoulder as he lifted foot to the stirrup. "If it's Chuck gittin' wise that's worrying yuh, Dix, rest your mind easy. Between the girl and the airplane, Chuck ain't got no mind for nothin' else."

"Aw, dry up!" Dix unhooked the stirrup from the saddle horn where he had put it out of the way while he tightened the cinch on Coaly. "When I nailed up that door I aimed to have it stay nailed up till the boys are off the ranch for good. You and Tom took a good deal on yourselves when you went and pulled them nails. If you didn't put 'em back, you better—and I don't mean next week, either."

"O, all right," Mart grudgingly conceded, and rode off down the creek at an easy trot, his lean body yielding to the motion of the horse with that careless grace which gives the impression of a mind at rest. Dix was watching him meditatively when Chuck came down from the house, passed him, and went in after his own mount. Dix called to him.

"Just what did you mean, Chuck, about me sneaking cattle into that shed? What object do you think I'd have? Ain't you kinda overlooking the fact that job's costing me money? What would I want to pile on the expense of repairs for?"

"O, forget it! I never said you did it. Mart's got it in for me—anybody can see that. I don't trust him, if you want to know. I wouldn't put it past him to be in the pay of some rival flyer that's onto Frosty. Everybody knows he's here. The Flying Squaw story has gone back east already. Last Sunday there was a camera man from a news reel company in Graypoint taking pictures of Minny and Frosty when they landed. Didn't she tell you?"

"I'm not doing a thing to Mart, but you can't wonder we're keeping both eyes open since all that publicity went out. Frosty's known to have been working out a safety control device back in Baltimore, and one thing that drove us out here was the way they tried to get hold of his secret. They're afraid of Frosty. Now they know he's here, somebody's sure to be prowling around, and if they can't steal his ideas they'll wreck his plane. Turning cattle into our workshop is one way—and, say what you like, Mart McGuire's the lad that knows how they got in." Chuck mounted and rode after beside Dix. "You come on with me and I'll show you what they did."

"I'll take your word for it, Chuck. But lay off Mart. He's true blue, and I don't mean maybe. He'd kill any man that offered him money to double-cross this outfit."

"Well, maybe he wouldn't for money, but he sure would for a grudge, and he's got it in for me. Just for devilment, say."

"No, you got Mart dead wrong. If any cattle got into the shed and hurt the plane it wasn't Mart's fault. Better put a padlock on the corral gate tonight; or I will, and give you the key." Dix's face brightened a little at the thought, and his tone had a confident ring. "It won't happen again, you can bank on that."

Good Morning!

"The Truth About Youth" was known on the stage as "When We Were Twenty-one." Don't ask me why the title was changed, for I haven't an idea.

The picture is an entertaining little confection that manages to hold your interest because of a certain general charm. Its players are likable folk who give good account of themselves. The director handled the reins with ease and skill. Sound and photography please and the story is interesting.

The last would prove that youth will have its way—which is no unusual point to make. Many generations have realized THAT truth! Youth must travel its own road, and bump its own head on the wall of experience, regarding which it invariably refuses to heed warning.

In this movie, David Manners—nice boy with poise and charming manners—plays one Dick, nicknamed "The Imp." His foster father, Richard Carewe, desires to see him married to Phyllis, the elder Dick's housekeeper's daughter. Big Dick doesn't realize that, really, he himself adores Phyllis, and is entirely unaware of the fact that the girl has eyes for no one but himself. As for "The Imp"—he has other plans. He is infatuated with a luscious Kara, cabaret queen and gold digger extraordinary.

It becomes necessary for Big Dick, and a pair of old cronies who with himself have formed a "trinity" to protect "The Imp's" interests, all of them having loved the boy's dead father, to expose the leading characteristics of the Lady Kara. The result is surprising to everybody concerned—and you'll be for it.

Conwaly Tearle, J. Farrell MacDonald and Harry Stubbs are great as "The Trinity." Loretta Young gives a surprisingly facile performance as Phyllis. Myrna Loy is completely fascinating as the dangerous Kara, and all other rôles are excellently handled.

This is an interesting but unremarkable screenization of Sir Gilbert Parker's novel that was so popular some years ago.

Though the picture is well made, it somehow leaves you cold. It seemed to me that the hero at no time wins your sympathy and that climaxes which should be smashing are only sketchily drawn. Supporting players please but never electrify you.

Mr. Nagel portrays intelligently, but with little imagination, Charles "Beauty" Steele, brilliant lawyer and poseur, who is brought to sad passes by his craving for liquor. Steele is one of those strange beings who roam the world, incomprehensible to himself and to everybody else; consistently killing the thing he loves. Worshiper of beauty, he condescends to the gutter. Hating crime, he consorts with criminals and defends them in the courts. One eye he keeps paned behind a monocle, and the front he turns to the world is a chill, arrogant, and maddening one.

A blow on the head deprives him of memory. He is rescued from death by a man he has saved from the chair and taken to Joe Portugais' cabin a hundred miles from Quebec, where is the lawyer's home. Here in the woods Steele finds love, happiness, and health. He is about to be married to pretty Rosalie, the postmaster's daughter, when he learns his real identity—and that the wedding can never take place. His life becomes once more a menacing jumble—set straight finally by a couple of shots. . . .

"The Right of Way" has some beautiful scenery. Sound and photography are fine. Direction is able, though you can't get away from the idea that cast and story went stale on Mr. Lloyd.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—William De Mille, president of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences, today broadcast an appeal to girls and youths of the United States to stay away from Hollywood.

"A false impression has spread that golden opportunities lie within the power of a fairly talented or reasonably good looking young person who can manage to get to Hollywood," De Mille said. "The fact is, there is a reduction going on in the number of actors and actresses. Players of training and ability are in dire want. Of 17,500 extras registered at central casting offices during 1930, only 533 averaged as much as one day's work a week. Only ninety-five averaged three days' work a week. Of 7,000 actors and actresses registered at the 'call' bureau, only sixty-seven were placed each day. When the industry is hard put to it to care for its own tried and experienced players, it is sheer suicide for youngsters to try to break in."

Catholic Boy Scouts Honor Memory of Priest Killed by Auto

All day yesterday Boy Scouts of the archdiocese of Chicago visited Holy Name cathedral. There the body of the Rev. Raphael Ashenden lay in state. Father Ashenden, who organized the Scouts in the parishes last year, was killed on Tuesday night in an automobile accident. A Boy Scout guard of honor kept vigil beside the body of the priest until 10 o'clock last night. This morning the 5,000 Catholic Boy Scouts will meet at the 122d Field Artillery armory and march to the cathedral. Selected Eagle Scouts, the cardinal's guard of honor, will march beside the coffin and accompany the body to the grave at Calvary cemetery.

The Rev. Thomas Burke of St. Hilary church will be celebrant of the solemn requiem high mass, and the Rev. John McCarthy of St. Charles Borromeo church will preach. Bishop Bernard J. Sheil will assist with the services.

EUGENE O'NEILL NOW WRITES THREE PLAYS, ALL LINKED TOGETHER

New York, Feb. 13.—Eugene O'Neill, author of the nine act play "Strange Interlude," has digressed again from dramatic convention with three plays. The second and third are sequels of the first, the Theater Guild said today.

The guild expects to produce the plays simultaneously so they may be seen successively. It has not yet received the manuscript from O'Neill, who is in France.

Seen one after the other, the guild said, the three plays will make one. Each will stand alone, however, as an evening's entertainment and each will be a complete play.

Guild officials were not cognizant of the subject matter and the work still is without a title.

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—The Grand Duke Alexander of Russia, one of the leaders of that group of sad aristocrats who have taken refuge in Paris, arrived today on the French liner La Fayette to begin a lecture tour of the United States. The duke is an uncle of the last czar. He is 64 years old and wore a well cut double-breasted business suit of oxford gray and a dark fedora hat.

"The Wall street crash was a good thing for the United States," he said. "You were becoming perhaps a bit overconfident. The depression will bring you back to a more secure sense of values."

As to events in his fatherland he said the aristocrats are concerned chiefly with the welfare of the Russian people, whom he described as in a "terribly oppressed and depressed condition." He hoped something can be done to bring them back to the high ideals which were instilled in them before the "barbarians came into power."

"We are not interested in the immediate overthrow of the communistic state," he explained. "We don't know as much about the political and economic situation in Russia as you do over here. The press reports in Paris are not as reliable as they are in America. I haven't been in Russia since 1919, remember."

Questioned on whether he believed there were any members of the czar's family alive, the duke pointed out that he and other members of his group in Paris would have heard of them if it were true that some of them had escaped death.

The duke said that he is coming for his tour at this time because he believes the "first rays of gold are shining through the clouds" of depression. With this remark he broke into a wide grin. In New York he will stay at the Ritz-Carlton.

City-Run Art Show Is Idea of No-Jury Group

That the city of Chicago conduct local juryless art exhibits was advocated yesterday by the Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists, Inc., in place of the usual exhibits by the society.

"This would be a pioneer departure, for in no other cities are exhibits such as this municipally run," declared Hazel Hannell, secretary, in a letter circulated among friends of the society. "It would make possible the extension of the show to the dimensions of world-wide significance. Municipalizing the annual exhibits of the Chicago No-Jury Society of Artists would be, we believe, a significant step forward."

Two hundred friends and church members gathered in the parlors of the Englewood Presbyterian church, Yale avenue and 64th street, last night, to honor Dr. James E. Congon's third year as pastor of the church. He was presented with an automobile.

LIMA, Peru, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The prince of Wales and his brother, Prince George, danced last night with the wives of several South American diplomats at a dance which they gave for the British minister, Charles H. Bentinck, after the state dinner in their honor at San Cerro.

Prince George also danced with Miss Virginia Harris, private secretary to the American ambassador. Miss Harris is from Columbia, Mo., and is a graduate of the University of Missouri.

It was officially announced the prince of Wales will remain here until Sunday, when he will fly to Arequipa. Word from La Paz, Bolivia, where the brothers are due next Thursday, said high state and military officers would receive them. Later they will call on the president, visit the city council, and be taken on a tour of the city.

4,875 of Heart Disease Sufferers Treated at Clinics

During 1930 there were 4,875 men, women and children at the seventeen cardiac clinics in the city. This was revealed yesterday in the report of Mrs. Gertrude Howe Britton, executive director of the Chicago Heart association.

Of the total treated more than one-third were children. Only 19 per cent were discharged during the year, so that at the opening of this year there were 3,940 patients. Of 2,071 new admissions in 1930 approximately 35 per cent were under 14 years of ago.

At the present rate of increase Mrs. Britton estimated that the clinics will be taxed with 6,000 patients this year. In 1930 each patient averaged three visits to a clinic and the average time of each visit was two and a half hours.

Yankee Heiress Cancels Engagement to Londoner

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 13.—It was announced today that the marriage arrangements between Miss Caroline Ryan of New York and Ronald Lambert Bassett have been canceled. Miss Ryan is a granddaughter of the late Thomas Fortune Ryan, New York financier, while Bassett, who was educated at Eton, is the son of A. F. Bassett, a resident of London and a former high sheriff of Cornwall. He served in France during the war with the Household brigade. Their engagement was announced from New York last August.

Ice Creams' Prices Steady — Despite Slump

Farmers' Share Smallest in Last 20 Years.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Ice cream, that truly American food said by its makers to be approaching a year around favorite, yesterday was found to be the only dairy product that hasn't passed along in a lowered price to consumers the drastic reduction being absorbed by farmers whose cream constitutes nearly one-third of its entire manufacturing cost.

In a report issued by the federal bureau of agricultural statistics and in the announced current prices being paid the dairymen in four states that surround Chicago, the drop in butter fat prices since Jan. 1 was shown to have cut in half the farmers' prices of five years ago. Present cream prices are the lowest in over 200 years, according to these reports.

Each 100 pounds of milk testing 3.5 butter fat that goes into Chicago's bottle of milk nets the farmer $2.32. But if the same milk is sold for manufacture into ice cream, he gets 95 cents under existing conditions. As recently as in December, 1927, ice cream manufacturers were buying their butter fat at $1.77 a hundred pounds.

Throughout the present fall and winter ice cream materials have been from one-fourth to one-half of what was their cost five years ago. Chicago's annual bill for this food product is estimated by local manufacturers to be about $27,000,000.

A drop of five cents a quart on the output of the summer of 1931, based on previous rates of consumption, was said yesterday to mean a possible saving of $162,000 to the public. The nickel difference, according to cost accountants who studied the relation of cheaper ingredients to the total cost of producing ice cream, represents the retail cut necessary properly to reflect the reduction. Sugar, eggs, fruits, flavorings, and gelatin used in making ice cream also are cheaper than two years ago.

Chicago gets its ice cream, commercially, from 46 factories. These in turn buy from farmers in Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, chiefly, with some cream coming from Ohio and Michigan, and fruits from other localities. Two national firms now control the making of about 60 per cent of the city's market ice cream, according to an official of a local subsidiary.

"Although the state law requires ice cream to contain but 8 per cent butter fat, nearly all of Chicago's ice cream tests 13 to 14 per cent," according to this official. Records of the city health department support this declaration.

The frozen product is costing retailers from 90 cents to $1.30 per gallon [the average is about $1.15] from the manufacturers. At the retail price of 60 cents per quart the retailer is getting from 25 to 30 cents for each quart he sells. In most cases, it is pointed out, the manufacturers are either financing or supplying outright the refrigeration cabinets and advertising matter for the retailer.

According to the National Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers, the ice cream manufacturer's expenses are divided into about these proportions in a normal year:

Milk products	30 per cent
Other ingredients	13.5 per cent
Administration	7.5 per cent
Delivery	23.5 per cent
Selling	9.5 per cent
Manufacturing	16.0 per cent
Total	100 per cent

Local manufacturers yesterday reported that the decline from normal consumption of ice cream this winter had "just about offset the lowered costs of materials. There has been no cut in labor or other costs to warrant any thought of reduction in price."

Countess de Sales and DaughterHere from Canada

Janet Chase, Fred Hauck Are Engaged

BY THALIA

VALENTINE'S day wouldn't be right without an engagement announcement, and here is a good one:

"Mr. and Mrs. Samuel T. Chase announce the engagement of their daughter, Janet, to Frederick Hauck of Pittsburgh, son of Mrs. Charles Frederick Hauck of Los Angeles, Cal."

Miss Chase's riding attainments, her adventurous travels, and her art studies have been the subject of much newspaper "copy" and Mrs. Chase wrote the announcement to be perfectly formal. We must add, however, that she and Mr. Hauck became acquainted while they were both studying art in Munich, and that they've been engaged for ages. The wedding is to take place in May. Her sister, Elizabeth (Libby), is in the orient with Alice Patterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Patterson, flying, voyaging by ship, and planning some tiger hunting, but probably will reach Chicago in time for the wedding.

More Chicagoans Going South; Time to Shoot Quail.

In spite of all the letters from northern sojourners telling about the coldness of the atmosphere, the golfaway continue at quite a rate, and the answers to all queries about what is doing about town are something like this: "Well, really, everything is terribly quiet—there just isn't anything going on. Everybody's got the flu, and nobody's giving any parties." One bachelor who ought to know tells me there hasn't been a party of any size at all in Lake Forest since Christmas.

As for the latest of the departures—Mr. and Mrs. Philip D. Armour III. are leaving Chicago this week-end for a fortnight trip—they'll go first to be with the Wayne Chatfield-Taylors at their quail club in Macon, Miss., and then are going to visit the Jay Morse Elys at their place at Thomasville, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. James Ward Thorne have passage on the S. S. Augustus, which sails from New York on Tuesday. They're to go first to Algiers and northern Africa, and later will travel in Italy and France. They plan to be gone about two or three months, and during their absence their son and daughter-in-law, the young Niblack Thornes, are going over from the Lake Shore Drive hotel to occupy their apartment at 1200 Lake Shore drive.

The Lloyd Laflins have gone down to Palm Beach for a visit with Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., who is ensconced at the Franklin P. Smith villa, and Mrs. William C. Pullman, accompanied by her son-in-law and daughter, the John H. McIlvaines, and her niece, Mrs. Alexander H. Revell Jr., is to get off today for Phoenix.

Teacher in Rural School Writes of Parental Discipline

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

A Mother's and Father's Litany will be sent by Mrs. Bevans on receipt of name and address and postage.

After printing the letters from fathers who are as misguided as those that appeared a couple of days ago, I always want to quote the intelligent, wise and friendly ones who write me and who work with their wives each step of the way. At present those particular letters are snowed under. But I have before me an appreciation of fathers which comes from a source I seldom hear from—a teacher in the rural schools of Canada.

"Dear Mrs. Bevans: Re your article in the paper of last summer. No doubt there are fathers who do not take interest enough in the upbringing of their children, and who are too tyrannical. But as a teacher in the country I am more impressed with the unreasonableness of mothers than of fathers.

"Of course, fathers are away all day, working in the fields or open air, so their health and nerves are better, while mothers are with the children most of the time. But there is a nasty habit, that perhaps the majority of women have, that of countermanding every little order the father gives to the children, or else expressing their disapproval by shrugs, sniffs, dilation of the eyes, etc.

"I think it mean and unfair. Perhaps the children are making such a racket the elders cannot carry on a conversation and the father tells them to sit on chairs for five minutes. Or Marjorie has a prolonged giggling spell at the table and spills the drink, and he sends her to finish her meal in the kitchen. Well—what of it? There may be wiser ways of dealing with the cases, but father's offhand judgment may not be so unpedagogical, after all, even if he has not made an exhaustive study of child psychology.

"But if the mother says sarcastically, 'Your father is quite strict tonight!' or 'Now, daddy, leave her alone. I would rather see her laughing than crying,' I would call it poor husband psychology.

"As to a father's right to discipline his children, I think that both from a legal and a moral standpoint he has equal rights with the mother. He did not have to go through the ordeal of childbirth, but that is nature's decision, not his or his wife's.

"Of course, in case of cruelty or flagrant misdoing, either parent should interfere, but in minor matters [and what two people ever agree in practice in the management of children?] any differences of opinion should be discussed in private."

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMEN'S AND MISSES' DRESS.

The wrapped closing of this Russian blouse makes it particularly desirable, for it makes the mature figure appear gracefully tall and slender, and accentuates slimness for the youthful type. The scarf neckline is a becoming detail, and the wide suede belt marks the natural waistline. Canton crêpe, velveteen, and wool jersey are smart materials for this dress.

The pattern, 2830, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 4¼ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting and 1⅛ yards of 35 inch lining.

Marechal as Soloist Plays Rhythmic Satire

BY EDWARD MOORE.

MAURICE MARECHAL made a marked success of his assignment as soloist of the violoncello with the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and would have made a greater one had the program notes contained one item close to his heart.

It was that his second number, Arthur Honegger's Concerto in C, was not quite what its title held it out to be, but should have been considered as a caricature of all the old fashioned concertos ever written. Had that been known, there might have been less wonderment and more understanding and enjoyment on the part of the audience.

Certainly it was highly disrespectful to all the old fashioned composers, and no one is better fitted to be disrespectful in music than Honegger. The long drawn out, ungainly, meaningless cadenzas in the second movement, the melody, a real, four square, diatonic melody in the third, interrupted in its most plaintive phrases by impertinent tootlings of flute and clarinet, are good examples of his witty impudence. As to his harmonization, it is more difficult to be humorous, for people do in sober earnest nowadays what not so many years ago would have been considered a brazen jest or the ravings of madness.

Mr. Maréchal had not the slightest objection to making the caricature more pointed, because a few moments before he played one of the oldest of concertos, the one in D major by Vivaldi, where he showed himself, as for that matter in the Honegger piece, too, as firm of bow, fluent and dulcet of melody, and agile and easy in all tests of difficult technic. He appeared in the position first announced for Gregor Piatigorsky, who is seriously ill with pneumonia in New York, and the Honegger work was a first performance here.

For the symphony of the program Dr. Stock selected the third composed by Arne Oldberg of Evanston. It is a work of excellent material founded on stable, dignified themes which are developed with much skill. The construction is hampered a bit by too much use of the full orchestra, which hinders variety of treatment, but with this exception it is a highly able and attractive composition.

Handel's Concerto in D minor for string orchestra, first class Handel, began the program. Elsewhere there was a brilliant performance of Bulakireff's "Oriental Fantasy" in the Casella orchestration, and at the end there were some heavenly waltz tunes, the "Emperor," by Johann Strauss. This is one of Strauss' 500 or more compositions that has never become as well known as it should in this country, and one wishes that most American composers of light music could have been present to hear it, either to mend their waltzing ways or to stop trying, for as futile as nineteen out of twenty American waltzes of the last few years is a comparison that belongs in the English language if some one has not already put it there.

Chicago Girl Returns as Star in Talkie "Cimarron"

Miss Irene Dunne, who rose to stardom in musical comedy and in the films from a beginning in Chicago as a music student, returned yesterday for a brief visit to her old home town. Her latest screen vehicle is "Cimarron," in which she has the rôle of Sabra. Not long ago Miss Dunne was a student at the Chicago Musical college. She went to New York, where she achieved success in "The Clinging Vine." Last year she appeared in Chicago in Edna Ferber's "Show Boat." Miss Dunne subsequently journeyed to Hollywood, where she was given the rôle of Sabra in "Cimarron."

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Twenty years old—and as popular with the boys as a case of measles. That's "Mickey." She has parties, invites the bunch over. They come and fill themselves up and stay until morning and, to quote Mickey: "If they see me again they say 'Hello' and pass on. If they want a girl to go to a dance or anything, it is never I.

"I try to be sociable, but if you do not give in to them you're a wet blanket, and if you do, you're fast and loose—so where do I get off? I dance well, but when I go to a dance it's just a waste of money. I only get a few dances. I dress well and am not 'gosh awful' looking, but you can't go up and capture a fellow and tell him this is your dance, can you? So, I'm just about disgusted with the whole male population and life in general."

Don't be worried, "Mickey," about getting disgusted with life in general. That happens when you get disgusted with the whole male population. And there's a cure for the latter.

But let's go back in your letter, a bit—up to where you talk that claptrap about having to be fast and loose and even then getting nothing. Right there you commit yourself—and your greatest weakness in the eyes of men. You've got that idea in your head, and so long as you're going to hold to it, there isn't any use spending money for dance dresses and silver slippers. Better put on the bedroom slippers and the old Jap kimoner—and think things—yourself, chiefly—over.

You look good, you dance well and, I take it from your letter, you could have a line. Pert and chipper? Now, there's a weak chain in the link, somewhere. You get down to ferreting it out. If it isn't that belligerent attitude implied in "disgust at the whole male population," it is something else.

Supposing you did have an experience or two, or even three, that weren't what you'd want to tell your mother about. Well, just remember that some other girl, or girls, were party to the youth's code of behavior. Also, remember that that boy, or those particular boys, represent a very, very small minority, just as do the girl, or girls, who encourage the fast and loose behavior. Just straighten out your thinking apparatus, "Mickey," and believe in the other sex. It's worth trying, since the other system is not getting you anywhere.

WEDDINGS

The marriage of Miss Marie Agnes O'Connell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Francis O'Connell of 2130 Lincoln Park West to Charles Edmund Caestecker of the Parkway hotel is to take place at Holy Name cathedral at noon today.

Miss O'Connell is a graduate of the Convent of the Sacred Heart at Lake Forest. A reception is to follow immediately after the ceremony at the Drake hotel.

Mr. Caestecker and his bride are to go to Florida and Cuba for their wedding trip. Miss O'Connell's attendants are Mrs. J. J. Caestecker, Miss Marie Wade, Miss Margaret Lick, and Miss Helen Healy.

The wedding of Miss Dorothy Tocher, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James P. Tocher of Evanston, and Leroy J. McFaul, son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald J. McFaul of the Edgewater Beach hotel, will take place this morning at 11 o'clock in the chapel of the St. Ignatius church. The Rev. John Dunphy of Minneapolis will perform the ceremony which will be followed by a breakfast and reception at the Drake hotel. Miss Winona Bates of Memphis, Tenn., will attend the bride as maid of honor.

The sister of the bridegroom, Miss Isobel McFaul, will be the only bridesmaid. Thomas Mullaney will act as best man and the ushers will be George O'Bryan of St. Paul, Thomas Hartnett, and Frank Haggerty.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Elizabeth Lindskog, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Lindskog of 1317 Lunt avenue, to Walter Richard Neubacher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Neubacher of 217 Wodlawn avenue, Winnetka, will take place Monday at the Church of the Atonement. The maid of honor will be Miss Elenore Berger of Kenilworth, who is attending Briarcliffe Manor in New York, and who will return for the wedding.

Miss Alida Louise Freeman of Chicago, Miss Margaret Evers of Wilmette, Miss Helen Blake of Winnetka, and Miss Beatrice La Velle of Oak Park will be the bridesmaids. George Hughes of Glencoe will act as Mr. Neubacher's best man.

After that the members will go back stage to speak to Mrs. Fiske.

Stretching Is Easy Way of Losing Those Superfluous Ounces

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

How goes the reducing, these days? Stuffing a bit, lately? Feeling crowded-er than usual, behind the belt? Or, do you not dare to wear a belt?

Have you been doing any of the stretching work I told you about a while ago, to form a daily habit? Or did you forget—after a few days?

There's a bright and cheery letter on my desk, name signed in full, addressed and everything, to identify it as the genuine thing. Two paragraphs are devoted to the benefits derived from stretching.

The correspondent took me at my word and stretched before she got out of bed in the mornings. Just stretching and stretching, not minding, particularly, whether she was doing the exercise right or not, but just pulling herself down full length and up full length. Stopping midway in a household duty performance she would stretch up on high, from toes to top of head.

And this, which the correspondent thought up herself, she did frequently: She stood back up against one side of the hall and stretched to reach the opposite side, pulling on the waist and underarm muscles for all she was worth. Well, the report is one of inches and inches off waist, hips and abdomen. And that's pretty nice for about three months' work.

Stretching will put the youth back into your walk, too, while it pulls away at the fat on the midsector. Reducing interest is centered on the waist, hips and abdomen, right now.

Contrasting Ensembles Chic for Southern Wear

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special Correspondence.]—Contrasting jacket ensembles are putting it all over plain suits for Riviera, Palm Beach, and earliest spring wear. Some couturiers, like Lelong, make tailored suits with jackets lighter than the skirt and white wash tunic blouse cut along the same lines as the jacket. Others, like Maggy Rouff, like the inside blouse and jacket that match each other but are darker than the skirt. Jane Regny often uses the three colored contrast skirt, for example, of dark brown, jacket of rust red and blouse of plaid.

This is the formula sponsored by Worth in the new tailored ensemble, sketched here. The dress is of speckled plaid Scotmayah in brown, red and yellow. The stripes of the plaid are cleverly arranged to give interest to the skirt. In the back they run straight around; they turn diagonal and circular at the sides. There is a straight, front panel flanked by two diagonal flaring box plaits that run into a band at the top forming a hip yoke effect.

The upper blouse is cut on the straight. Two bias points running up on to it in front look like the prolongation of the upper skirt. The blouse buttons in the front with five plaid covered buttons. The scalloped collar is of white linen. The wide tailored belt is of plaid cut on the bias finished with a silver buckle.

Food Talk.

In my mail the other morning was a letter requesting information on the cooking of Frankfurters and uncooked link sausages. I take the latter to mean the little link pork sausages. The difficulty encountered is that the casings often split, sometimes the entire length of the sausage and the result is an unattractive food, lacking juiciness and without form and good flavor. When sausages split the trouble is that the casing can't expand fast enough to make room for the expansion inside.

There are two methods used in the household to keep the links whole. One is to prick the casing several times. The other is to start the cooking in cold water. The pricked links are put into a cold skillet and heated slowly at first, then more briskly at the last until the preferred brown color is obtained. The shape is preserved by pricking, but the juice is lost and the sausage is dry and without good flavor.

We have found in our own search for a satisfactory method that putting the sausage first into cold water and heating gradually is best. For links of raw pork sausage we use about 1 cup of water to each pound of sausage. Heating it slowly at first, turning over occasionally, then increasing the heat after a few minutes softens the casing and increases its elasticity or stretching power. All of the water must evaporate, however, before browning begins.

We find that it is best to cook both the raw sausage and the Frankfurters in an open pan. A tight fitting lid increases the air pressure on the inside of the pan, thus favoring the bursting of the skins. If the Frankfurters are cooked with sauerkraut put the sausage in the bottom of the pan and the juicy kraut on top. Heat slowly to the boiling point in an uncovered pan until both sausage and kraut are sufficiently hot. To be at their best both of these forms of sausage must be served just as soon as they have finished cooking.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Twin Baby Carriage Needed.

"I have been out of work for almost a year and have a pair of twins in my home. We can get care and treatment for them by taking them to the welfare, but the distance is too great to carry them and we haven't a carriage. If one of your readers would give us a twin carriage or stroller it would be a great help.

If your twins have outgrown their perambulator I know you'll want to pass it on to these babies, whose parents can't buy one. You may be certain it will be put to good use.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Dear Miss Blake: I am in love with a fellow. He says he does not wish to go steady for another year. Should I hold on to him or find some one else?

"CARRIE."

You may both have different reaction at the end of a year, dear, so add to your list of beaux in the meantime. You want to be on the safe side.

AMUSEMENTS.

TRIBUNE BOXING MEET GIVES WAR VETERANS A LIFT

Take, for Instance, Cases of Messrs. A, B and C.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Mr. A. was one of Uncle Sam's soldiers in the world war. He fought gallantly, put his life at stake many times, got a break in the luck here and there, and at times things went mighty badly for him.

But he came out alive, even though he was battered and maimed and his health had been shattered.

He came back to Chicago, married and became the father of two children. The little family thrived and was happy until the period of depression arrived.

Loses His Job.

Then Mr. A. lost his job. A short time later his youngest daughter died at the Cook county hospital following an attack of pneumonia. Mr. A.'s health failed and he became a patient at the Great Lakes Naval hospital, where he underwent a series of operations.

Mr. A. recovered from the operations. He would rather be at work than to be asking for charity. But he could not find a job. He found a day's work here and there, provided food for his wife and remaining child, paid his rent and made every effort to get along. But his electric bill, a trivial $3.45, became overdue. His household was to be thrown into darkness on such and such a date if it was not paid.

He appealed to William A. Schlupp, superintendent of the Veteran's Relief society. And from out of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves boxing fund his overdue bills were paid. His home was not thrown into darkness and today Mr. A.'s health is improving, he has found steady employment and his family is happy.

Case of Mr. B.

Mr. B. is another veteran and since the war has been a building construction laborer. But for four months Mr. B. has been out of a job. For three months he was unable to pay his rent and in the meantime his wife gave birth to twins, as fine a looking boy and girl as any proud father ever boasted.

But when Mrs. B. and the twins returned from the hospital three months' back rent faced the little family. "Pay up for two months or you must move," the landlord told them.

From THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves fund set aside for needy families of veterans the rent was paid. Mr. B. found a job and is now at work and the mother and the twins are doing nicely.

Mr. C. was gassed in the war and recently a gastric ulcer condition developed. It put him in the Edward Hines hospital at Hines, Ill. All bills were met until finally the rent became due. The mother and four children were told they would have to move if the rent was not paid.

They had no place to go. There were no relatives of means to ask for help. The Veterans' Relief society heard of the case and out of THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves fund the rent was paid. The father is improving in health. He will be released from the hospital soon and a job awaits him.

And That's Only Three.

Only three of hundreds of cases have been recalled in which the Golden Gloves fund during the last year has kept a destitute veteran's family going. Homes were saved when the Golden Gloves fund came to the rescue, paid rent, paid overdue gas and electric bills, and took care of other items of livelihood.

Call the professional fighters "bums," or "no good money grabbers," or any other name that strikes your fancy, but the 2,000 boys in Chicagoland who this month are fighting for THE TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves are not only developing the fighting strength of the great midwest, but they are carrying on a charity work that is not equaled anywhere.

Fight Decisions

Dundee Wins from Len Harvey Again; Fans Boo Decision

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Len Harvey, British middleweight champion, lost his second straight decision to Vince Dundee tonight in the opinion of two judges and a referee, while for the second straight time a crowd of 11,500 booed, cat called, and protested vigorously that the Englishman had won.

For twelve rounds the slender, red headed Briton splashed Dundee's rugged chin and body with left hooks and driving right crosses while the Baltimore Italian mussed and mauled him at close quarters. Dundee spent most of his time counter punching, rarely taking a lead, while Harvey, a counter fighter himself, tried to force the milling but scarcely knew how.

Yet out of the strange mixture of fighting technique came a thrilling battle with the ringside critics, the crowd, and even the referee and judges offering widely contrasting opinions as to the victor when it was all over.

One judge voted for Harvey, the other for Dundee, and Referee Arthur Donovan cast the deciding vote for the Brother of the former welterweight champion. The Associated Press score card gave Harvey seven rounds, Dundee four, with only one even.

BOXING FANS!

Buy now and you will be assured of a point of vantage from which to witness the tournament of champions at the Coliseum March 2, 3, and 4. In this great boxing show, the titleholders of fifteen cities will meet Chicago's leading amateur fighters. Then the winners will battle at Chicago Stadium March 11 to determine the team which will represent this city against New York at Madison Square Garden March 30.

Tickets may be obtained at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street. Prices of admission for the Coliseum bouts are $1, $1.50 and $2. Tickets for the Stadium fights are $1, $2, and $3.

Orders will be accepted by mail if accompanied by a check. Send application to Ticket Manager, Golden Gloves Tournament, the Tribune, Chicago.

Advance Squad of Cub Hurlers and Catchers Leaves Today

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

There appears to be nothing that will interfere with Secretary Bob Lewis' plans for escorting nine Cubs, two coaches, and one trainer in the direction of spring training. This collection of talent, officially known as the Cubs' first squad, will be herded aboard the Santa Fé's Navajo at 12:30 p. m. today, and for the next few days the boys will do a lot of fancy eating and play still fancier card games. The fun will cease suddenly next Wednesday at Catalina island when Manager Rogers Hornsby puts all the hired hands to work on the early phases of conditioning.

Because many of the players winter in California or get there as quickly as possible, the departure will be principally a matter of rookies, some of whom probably will not last long enough to complete the round trip. However, there will be plenty of skilled performers added to the squad before the Catalina camp is reached Tuesday noon. Most of these—fellows like Root, Malone, Blake, and Teachout—will get into the parade at Los Angeles.

Hornsby Awaits Squad.

Unless Manager Hornsby, who already is one the island giving his legs a workout, changes his scheme, the battery men can spend Tuesday afternoon refreshing themselves with the scenery at Catalina island. That afternoon of leisure will provide Mr. Andy Lotshaw, the sphinxlike trainer, with time in which to get the clubhouse and his torture tables in shape for a rush of business the next day.

Unlike training days during the Joe McCarthy régime, the daily grind will be condensed into one session. Hornsby will start 'em going about 11 o'clock and work will continue until about 2 p. m. The same program will be followed when the regulars reach camp. This will interfere with luncheon plans of the heavy feeders unless Hornsby has something in the shape of a soup kitchen established at the field.

Pick Up Hurlers En Route.

Those leaving from here today are Pitchers Bush, Herrman, May, Montague, Petty, Smith, and Sweetland, and Catchers Hartnett and Taylor. Pitchers Nelson and Warneke will join the march at Kansas City tonight.

The Cub infielders and outfielders, to the number of about ten, will start their westward journey from Chicago next Saturday noon. They will be escorted to camp by Undersecretary Danny Cahill, who has served in this capacity for years without losing a piece of baggage or missing a meal.

The first squad of White Sox performers also gathers here next Saturday. They leave at noon for San Antonio, Tex., and will be put to work the following Monday morning.

WISCONSIN TRACK SQUAD DEFEATS MINNESOTA, 66-38

Madison, Wis., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Scoring in every event and placing first in nine out of twelve of them, the University of Wisconsin track team opened indoor activities in the new Badger fieldhouse with a 66 to 38 victory over the University of Minnesota here tonight.

One Wisconsin indoor track record was broken when Capt. Bill Henke romped home first in the 440 yards in 50.7 seconds, with teammates in second and third places.

Ted Shaw won the high jump at 6 feet 2 inches, then cleared two inches higher and narrowly failed at 6 feet 6 inches.

Johnny Hass, fleet Gopher, was the only winner of two events, taking the 60 yard dash and the 60 yard low hurdles, both in fast time.

N. U. SWIMMING TEAM DEFEATS IOWA, 46 TO 29

Iowa City, Ia., Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Northwestern university swimmers submerged the University of Iowa tank team here tonight, 46 to 29. The Hawkeyes won only two out of eight events.

Wilson, Northwestern free style swimmer, turned in the outstanding performance of the evening, winning the 220 and 440 yard events. Iowa won the 300 yard medley relay and 150 back stroke events. Ray Mohl was the only individual winner on the Hawkeye team, with the time of 1:46 9-10 for the 150 yard event.

UNDEFEATED N. U. QUINTET MEETS CHICAGO TONIGHT

Tonight's Games

EVERY Big Ten basketball team except Michigan and Ohio State will take the floor tonight. The schedule follows:

Illinois at Iowa.
Indiana at Purdue.
Minnesota at Wisconsin.
Northwestern at Chicago.

The Maroon basketball team will get its big chance tonight to regain at a single stroke much of the prestige which it has lost in the course of the season's vicissitudes. The Midway five will be host tonight to the undefeated Northwestern quintet and Chicago supporters concede themselves at least an outside chance of victory.

This hope has been inspired by the performance of the Maroons on the Wildcats' floor last Saturday when the Big Ten leaders were held without a field goal all through the first half. In the closing period the Purple solved the Chicago defense and swept through to a 31 to 16 victory, but the Maroons believe that on their own floor it will be a different story.

Maroon Fans Hopeful.

During the last few games the Maroons have not shown the speed which carried them through their first two conference games with flying colors, but sentiment on the south side campus has it that the boys have more good games in their systems and will rise to the occasion tonight.

Now that the defense has been built up to an effective pitch, Coach Norgren has been able to concentrate on the offense. Size will be the Maroons' great handicap tonight, and it is expected that the Wildcats will get the jump at center and pick the ball off the backboards consistently. The turning point in last week's game occurred when McCarnes began taking the tipoff away from Parsons.

Yates Scoring Star.

The Maroons' ace, Sydney Yates, is in top form and hopes to pile up an imposing number of points on his home floor. He can flip them in equally well with his left or right hand and should keep the Wildcat guards on their toes all evening. In 27 shots this season Yates has put 9 through the hoop, and from the free throw line he has been even more effective, making 11 out of 16.

Capt. Fish, leading Chicago scorer, will be another man to watch. He has made 11 out of 51 shots from the floor and 15 out of 21 free throws. In the march at Kansas City tonight.

The Cub infielders and outfielders, to the number of about ten, will start their westward journey from Chicago next Saturday noon. They will be escorted to camp by Undersecretary Danny Cahill, who has served in this capacity for years without losing a piece of baggage or missing a meal.

The first squad of White Sox performers also gathers here next Saturday. They leave at noon for San Antonio, Tex., and will be put to work the following Monday morning.

DE PAUL QUINTET DEFEATS NORTH CENTRAL, 27-18

De Paul university's basketball team defeated North Central college at Naperville, 27 to 18, last night. De Paul led, 15 to 5, at the intermission. Rondinella, substituting for Powers, and Laritus led the Chicagoans' attack. Doernier was the leading scorer for North Central. Lineup

N. Y. AMERICANS BUY DUTKOWSKI FROM HAWK CLUB

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The New York Americans of the National Hockey league tonight announced the purchase from the Chicago Blackhawks of Duke Dutkowski, veteran defense man.

Although captain of the team, Dutkowski failed to play up to form for the Blackhawks, who recently asked waivers on him.

The Americans announced they would use the veteran at a wing position. He will report to his new club at Philadelphia tomorrow night.

Not Even a Shrine to Art Is Safe Now

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—Dave Lumianski of New Bedford, Mass., the manager of the Negro prizefighter, Al Brown, propounds an interesting idea in connection with the alleged desecration of a temple of art in Paris the other evening.

Al Brown defeated Nick Bensa, a Frenchman, in a ten round contest which appears to have been not so ferocious but that it might easily have been much more so, but the indignation of the customers was not due to the familiar complaint of insincerity on the part of the athletes. It was conceded, without argument, that they had done their best, or worse, but the patrons who carried on a subdued hissing throughout the contest, were protesting because the pugilists had invaded the Salle Pleyel where Padrewski, Kreisler, Chaliapin and others had been heard in times past. Lovers of music insisted that the prize fight was a profanation of a shrine of art and when the contest was over Mr. Lumianski spoke in rebuttal.

"What are they squawking about?" he demanded. "They say they want art and I will say that Al Brown is a much greater artist in his line than some of the ukulele pickers, piano destroyers and human hoot owls who have worked in the same joint before."

I am inclined to agree with Mr. Lumianski that the lovers of music too readily deify musicians. The fact that Paderewski, Kreisler, and so forth once performed in the joint referred to would not seem to be sufficient reason to isolate the place forever. Common tourists nowadays may sleep for a dollar a night in a thousand of the very rooms that George Washington slept in along the hot dog, hooked rug, and shore dinner trail in New England, and it certainly would be financially impracticable to fence off and paint with gilt and maintain inviolate forever all the opera houses and town halls in which all the great artists have appeared in the United States.

Anyway, who then would decide which artists were sufficiently great to merit this distinction, and wouldn't there always be some who would want to make shrines of all the theaters where Chic Sale and Eva Tanguay played. Otis Skinner must have played in a thousand temples, and Mansfield, Sothern, and Louis Mann in thousands more. To set this real estate aside and pay the wages of watchmen and those elderly ladies who always sit at the doorways of shrines selling souvenir booklets telling all about them, would run into money.

I dare say that already some of the opera houses where George M. Cohan performed his first jumpy fidgets and croaked his earliest routine out of the yanked down corner of his mouth in the evolution of the world's greatest song and dance artist, have been turned into garages, speakeasies, or nickleoden lunchrooms, where even a prize fighter may scoff his plate of beans. Mr. Cohan, however, has a sense of humor, and I am almost certain that he doesn't infer from this that his contribution to art in America has been insufficiently appreciated.

One of the shrines of art in New York is the old Manhattan Opera house erected by the late Oscar Hammerstein who had a curious genius for selecting impossible sites for his monuments to the opera. Many great artists of music performed in the Manhattan Opera house, but by far the most memorable and, I might even go so far as to say, the most artistic program ever produced there was discoursed by a herd of wrestlers in the fall of 1915, when the famous masked marvel was current.

A gentleman by the name of Samuel Rachman led his herd into town and stabled them at the Manhattan Opera house for a series of championship matches in Graeco-Roman wrestling. At the end of a week, however, the receipts were so meager that the artists, including Ed Strangler Lewis, Wladek Zbyszko and Alex Aberg were reduced to rations of synthetic vegetables out of the cornucopia and papier maché fried chickens, all from the operatic property rooms.

But then, with startling unexpectedness, one night, there arose in a box close to the stage a mysterious stranger in a dress suit who yelled down at the drowning customers concentrated in the first few rows, "this tournament is a fake. My man is

BULLETIN.

The Belgian-American team, Gerard De Baets and Tony Beckman, overtook the leaders in the bike race shortly before the 2 a. m. sprints began at the Stadium, and a five-way mileage tie for the lead was reestablished. De Baets and Beckman were the technical leaders, however, with a total of 196.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Freddie Spencer and Normal Hill, through the arduous expedient of stealing three laps in a half hour, last night pedalled to the top of the standings in the six day bicycle carnival at Chicago Stadium.

The lead accomplished by the New Jersey-California team was based on the fact that they had more sprint points than three other teams which were even with them in mileage. On the mileage basis, Linari-Belloni, Buschenhagen-Kroschel, and DeNef-Charlier were abreast the American pair as the race went into its final day.

See Thrilling Finish.

If the four ply tie, or even a two team tie, prevails until 10 o'clock tonight, when the final hour of sprinting begins, the race will have a wild finish for the first time in the last four competitions. In recent contests one team has had a lap advantage going into the finish. In each instance this made the windup tame, because the leaders merely had to defend their lap margin. With the prospect of a tie the special award of 72 points for first place in each one mile sprint in the final hour will determine the winner.

During last night's racing there was the customary shifting of leaders, with Linari and Belloni continuing constant in all the combinations. At 8:30 o'clock Linari-Belloni, Letourner-Guimbretiere, and Buschenhagen-Korschel were leading. At 9 it was Walthour-Walthour, Linari-Belloni, and Letourner-Guimbretiere. At 10 De Nef-Charlier, Linari-Belloni, and Richill-Grimm were bosses of the show.

Spencer-Hill Step Out.

At 11 o'clock rolled around Linari-Belloni, Buschenhagen-Kroschel, and De Nef-Charlier were at the top, but Spencer-Hill were in the midst of their jamming. When they completed the third of their half hour rush at 11:15 they became the technical leaders.

The possibility of a more complicated mileage tie seemed imminent on contemplation of the class of the second flight riders. Only one lap behind the leaders were Richill-Grimm, Debaets-Beckman, Georgetti-Brocardo, McNamara-Winter, and Letourner-Guimbretiere, as seasoned a bunch as is to be found in the six day bike profession.

The results of the 9:30 sprints follow:

SECOND—Kroschell, Horan, Beckman, Peden.
FOURTH—De Nef, Belloni, Buschenhagen, Le Tourner.
FIFTH—Winter, Charlier, Belloni, B. Walthour.
SIXTH—Horan, Ritter, Peden, Spencer.
SEVENTH—Horder, Le Tourner, J. Walthour, Kroschell.
EIGHTH—Horan, Elder, Buschenhagen, Georgetti.
NINTH—Horder, Spencer, Lands, Grimm.

174 Compete in Annual Tank Festival.

Violet Bayer, 13 year old Whiting, Ind., girl, stole the spotlight from veteran swimmers last night when she carried off first honors in the third swimming meet of the Illinois Women's Athletic club. Miss Bayer won the 40 yard back stroke in the junior class and a few minutes later took first place in the junior diving contest, the only one of 174 contestants to take more than one first place.

Her performance overshadowed that of the I. W. A. C. relay in its unsuccessful attempt to lower the world's record for the 600 yard relay event. The team was timed in 6 minutes 50 seconds, 1 3-5 seconds slower than the record of 6:48:2.

The meet was conducted under A. A. U. sanction and served as a preliminary to the national women's meet. Judges included Ethel Lackie and Caroline Smith Chapman, members of the 1924 Olympic team; Ethelda Bleightry McArthur, member of the 1920 team; Frank Snary of the Medinah Athletic club, and Mollie Miller. LOU GEHRIG AND YANKEES AGREE ON 1931 TERMS

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Lou Gehrig, Yankees' star first baseman, regarded as the club's most obdurate holdout this season, today came to terms with Yankee owners and accepted a contract for the 1931 season. Club officials refused to disclose the salary called for or the length of the contract. Gehrig had demanded $40,000, equal to half the present salary of Babe Ruth, his clouting partner.

It is probable that Gehrig received a substantial raise over his previous salary, generally believed to have been $25,000 a season. The Yankees have adopted a policy of giving only one year contracts and it is not likely an exception was made in Gehrig's case.

Five Other Yanks Still Out.

With Columbia Lou in the fold, five other Yankees remain to be signed. They are Herb Pennock and Henry Johnson, pitchers; Lyn Lary, shortstop; Sam Byrd, outfielder, and Allen, rookie pitcher.

Gehrig is the first major holdout of the three New York clubs to capitulate with only a week left before teams go south for early training. Next Friday the Yankees, Giants and Robins start southward and three days later the athletes will be practicing diligently.

Officials of the three clubs are apt to be kept busy during the next few days. Exact statistics are not available as to the number of players who are dissatisfied with their contracts, but the total is larger than in recent years.

Brooklyn Worries Least.

Brooklyn, which wanted to do well by its athletes and hit upon the happy idea of signing them early, is the least worried. Dazzy Vance and Babe Herman, Robins who draw the biggest salaries, have not yet signed, but there is no doubt about their coming to terms. Babe wants $1,000 more than he has been offered, which would provide him with an annual honorarium of $20,000. It is likely that he will get it without much more discussion. Dazzy wants $25,000, which is just about what the club is willing to give him.

It is the Giants who are in rather desperate straits. Terry, Lindstrom, Critz, Walker and Jackson are reported to be displeased with their contracts. No matter who may be right or wrong, this bickering will not help the club win a pennant.

LONDOS TO MEET REAL MENACE IN GEORGE ZAHARIAS

Jim Londos, claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship, will be in greater danger of losing his crown when he meets George Zaharias, Greek challenger, at the Coliseum next Wednesday night than in any other bout since he entered the championship ranks. This, at least, is the opinion of Chicago wrestling fans who have watched Zaharias in his last two matches here.

Londos has met and defeated all types of wrestlers, but in Zaharias he will face an opponent who outweighs him by 40 pounds and who, in addition, has established a reputation as one of the roughest grapplers in the game. Zaharias has defeated his last few opponents by brute strength and unexpected lunges across the ring, in which he has employed the flying tackle and other tactics, which, while not illegal, are a bit too rough for the ordinary run of wrestlers. Fans who saw him subdue Matros Kirilenko and Jim Clinstock by these methods doubt whether Londos, despite his record as a man mauler, will be able to withstand George's rushes.

IRISH DEFEAT WABASH, 18-17, IN FAST FINISH

Notre Dame, Ind., Feb. 12.—[Special.]—For the second time this season Notre Dame's basketball team turned back Wabash tonight. The score was 18 to 17, both teams resorting to a helterskelter game in last furious minutes.

The Irish led at the end of the first half, 9 to 8, after Ray DeCook, their star center, had entered the game with six minutes to go. DeCook, whose knee injury had been expected to keep him on the bench tonight, pepped up the Notre Dame offense. Notre Dame was trailing when he entered 8 to 3.

F. S. Wright, Former Trap Champion, Dies

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Frank S. Wright, national trap shooting champion in 1919 and 1920, died today from injuries received in an accident a year ago. In 1920 he was a member of the United States Olympic team that won trap shooting honors of the world at Antwerp. For eleven years he held the championship of New York state.

ANDERSON AND DELMONT FIGHT 10 ROUND DRAW

Eddie Anderson and Danny Delmont went ten rounds to a draw last night in the main event at the Cicero stadium. About 2,000 watched Delmont make a comeback in the last four rounds to earn a draw verdict.

Solly Schuman suffered his first defeat as a professional last night when he dropped a six round decision to Babe Keller in the semi-windup. Schuman was seeking his nineteenth victory. They fought at 128 pounds. Lou Petrone handed Jackie London a four round setback in the lightweight class while Harry Schuman beat Paul Schiffer in the four round opener. They are welter weights.

Armour Basketball Five Halts Augustana, 36-28

Armour Tech's basketball team last night beat Augustana, 36 to 28, at Armour gym. Rossing led the Tech forces with 10 points, while Thomon scored 8 for the losers. Augustana led at the half, 17 to 15. Lineup:

The customers blinked and the management, with a great show of indignation and vigor, which may not have been entirely sincere, ejected the mysterious stranger. But he returned to disturb the slumbers of the customers the next night, and, on the third, upon his interruption, Mr. Rachman, the owner of the herd, demanded: "Well we will call your bluff. Produce your man."

At this a large hummock sitting in another box came to life and stood up wearing a dinner suit and over his head a hangman's black mask, a sort of stocking with eyeholes and a breathing hole. The dramatic interruptions of the two preceding evenings had attracted a large number of customers by this time and as the man in the hangman's mask revealed himself, huge and ominous, his manager declared, "There he stands. The masked marvel."

So the masked marvel began to wrestle through the tournament. His success was so consistent as to be almost suspicious, but, of course, the manifest hostility between his own manager and the manager of the tournament allayed any thoughts of collusion. He wrestled every night for several weeks, and presently the late Alfred McCann, the pure food crusader, a sincere and slightly quixotic soul, began to denounce the tournament in print on the ground that the members of the herd were in league against the masked marvel and were wearing him down by brutal methods, hoping to keep the championship in their midst.

If the success of the program had been in any doubt up to this time, Mr. McCann's charge of brutality assured it. The masked marvel continued to win until one evening when Mr. Lewis, permitting his personal feelings to conquer his artistic instincts, grabbed hold of him and flopped him down with one mighty whop.

By this time the customers were becoming just a wee mite skeptical anyway, and they were convinced that they had been spectators at one of the greatest artistic illusions the world had ever seen when a few weeks later, the masked marver revealed himself as Mort Henderson, a second rate journeyman wrestler, in a suit against the management for his accumulated wages at the rate of $125 a week. It appeared that Mr. Henderson had been a stiff or plant and a regular employé of the management all the time.

I regret to remember that the illusion was fostered with considerable diligence and plausibility by Mr. Ben Atwell, the grand opera press agent, whose love of art had induced him to lend himself to this remarkable affair.

Mr. Atwell, however, has always maintained that the tournament of the masked marvel at the Manhattan Opera house was by far the greatest artistic production ever presented there. In fact, he is a man with no reverence for the musical artists, as is best demonstrated, I think, by his abrupt conduct one afternoon with a member of the Chicago Opera company, an Italian male tenor, who was in a bit of a sulk about something of no consequence.

Enduring the mood of this celebrated artist as long as his rather limited patience would permit, Mr. Atwell presently yanked him down over his knee in the presence of the other artists of the cast and whaled him resoundingly across the trousers with the flat of his hand.

"Temperament, is it?" Mr. Atwell yelled. "What the hell right have you got to temperament. You wear lace on your cuffs, you paint your face like a woman, and spend your nights walking up and down the stage breathing garlic and yowling like a tomcat on a fence."

I insist that there is something to Mr. Lumianski's proposition.

OAK PARK TRACK CHAMPIONS MEET FROEBEL TONIGHT

Froebal High school of Gary, 1930 national high school track champion, will meet Oak Park, last year's Illinois state champion and runner-up to Froebal in the national meet, in a dual track meet at the Oak Park fieldhouse tonight.

The meet will be in the nature of a grudge battle, as the first defeat that the Hoosiers experienced in two years was administered by Oak Park in a dual meet last season at Oak Park. The Villagers' margin of victory was a single point.

Oak Park has won all its meets this season, including one with Senn, Chicago city champions. The Villagers' lineup will include Randall Herman, national sprints champion; Capt. Ovson, weights, and Zinkil, 440, both Suburban league champions, as well as the half mile relay team of Norwood, Zinkil, Burling, and Herman, which holds the state record of 1:31.

Phillips Prep Cagers Defeat Tilden Twice

Wendell Phillips, City league heavyweight champions, defeated Tilden, 30 to 21, on the winners' floor yesterday, while the Phillips lightweights eked out a 17 to 16 victory over the visitors. Bray led the heavies' attack with ten points. Hudson's basket in the last five seconds brought the Phillips lights victory.

A free throw by Nick Danakas enabled the Lane ponies to hand the Roosevelt lights their first defeat of the season, 22 to 21, in an overtime period. The Roosevelt heavies evened the day by whipping the home team, 23 to 12.

Hyde Park handed Lindblom a double defeat on the winners' court yesterday, the heavies winning, 24 to 19, while Mayer and Chumpski led the lights to a 15 to 11 decision.

Shower Bath Mars Beauty; Hotel Must Pay $100,000

New York, Feb. 13.—[Special.]—Juanita Hansen, former motion picture star, who has been in retirement since she was severely scalded in a shower bath in the Hotel Lincoln here in 1928, won a $100,000 verdict against the hotel today. Previously Mrs. Hansen had been awarded $167,500 damages by a jury at the conclusion of the suit she brought against the hotel. This verdict was set aside by Supreme Court Justice Taylor, but today the Appellate division at Brooklyn handed down a unanimous opinion, reserving Justice Taylor's decision and awarding Miss Hansen $100,000.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

ERNEST E. COLE, SCHOOL OFFICIAL, DIES SUDDENLY

Mrs. Cole ordered the private autopsy because, she said, there had been no previous illness and also because her husband had made numerous enemies through differences, which went into the courts, over his position in the school system. In 1923 he was asked to resign as first assistant superintendent. He did so, but instead of being made an assistant superintendent, which, he said should have been the natural step, he was demoted to a incipalship. A suit for back salary is still pending. At the time of his death he was principal of the Eugene Field public school.

Mr. Cole is survived by two other daughters, Mrs. Alice B. Leeds and Miss Ernegene Cole, a student at the University of Wisconsin.

Born in Elgin, Ill., Hodgkins came to Washington at an early age and attended public schools here. He graduated from George Washington in 1893 and has been connected with the institution continuously since. In 1921 he was named acting president and held that post for two years.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Maria Wilkinson Hodgkins; two sons, Howard W. and George W.; a sister, Miss Jessie E. Hodgkins, and a brother, H. Grant Hodgkins.

U. S. Circuit Court Upholds DeForest in Radio Suit

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP)—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has affirmed the decision of the federal District court of Delaware in issuing a permanent injunction asked by the De Forest Radio company restraining the Radio Corporation of America from controlling the radio tube business by a pooling of patents with those of other companies. The Delaware District court had ruled that RCA had stifled competition in violation of the Clayton anti-trust law.

Luther Little, Metropolitan Life Official, Dies at 71

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—Luther B. Little, 71, former journalist and official of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company, died last night after a year's illness. He was born in Webstern, N. H., and did newspaper work in Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Washington. He had been head of the publication division of the Metropolitan for twenty years when he retired in 1928.

SMOKE AND YOU DON'T GRADUATE, CO-EDS ARE TOLD

Ypsilanti, Mich., Feb. 13.—(AP)—Charles McKenny, president of Michigan State Normal college, told women students today that no co-ed known to be an habitual user of cigarets or who smokes in public places will be allowed to graduate.

President McKenny told the co-eds that the people of Michigan do not want school teachers who smoke.

Miss Lydia I. Jones, dean of women, said that when a co-ed is found to be even an occasional user of cigarets such facts are noted on her record card and count against her chances of employment after leaving college

BUY 40 ACRES FOR A RABBIT PACKING PLANT

Michigan Firm Plans New Local Industry.

BY AL CHASE.

Chicago is to have a new industry—rabbit packing. Yesterday the Raisin Brook Packing company of Dundee, Mich., bought a forty acre tract at the southwest corner of Cicero avenue and Lincoln highway, about a mile and a half west of Matteson, and announces immediate construction of a large plant for the packing of rabbit meat. The Chicago Industrial Construction company has been awarded the contract for the design and construction of the complete plant.

The buildings will be of fireproof construction and of modernistic design in black and white. The entrance will have a glass inclosed display cage for live rabbits and a complete gas station. The main building will house the general offices and also the killing and freezing rooms, as well as rooms for the packing of liver sausage meat, mince meat, and other rabbit specialties.

Plan School for Breeders.

The building will also house a large schoolroom where breeders will be instructed in the care and proper methods of raising rabbits. Adjoining the main structure will be a building containing the rabbit hutches, shipping rooms, hospital, and government inspection quarters. Attached to this will be a smaller structure for the drying and curing of pelts.

On the Lincoln highway side will be Rabbit Brook inn, which will specialize in the serving of rabbit food products. The reported total investment in land and building will be $250,000. W. R. Samuel of the Central Manufacturing District bank was broker for all parties.

Architects Optimistic.

Predictions that 1931 will be a year of returning prosperity are made by leading architects in statements on conditions in New York City and other sections made public through the American Institute of Architects.

Harvey Wiley Corbett of New York, chairman of the architectural commission of the Chicago World's Fair of 1933 and designer of notable structures here and abroad, described the outlook as "very cheerful."

M. H. Furbringer of Memphis, Tenn., a director of the institute, declared, following a trip through the southwest, that "just as of the automobile industry led the country out of the depression of 1920 the building industry will lead the march back to normalcy in 1931. Mr. Furbringer went so far as to predict a spectacular upturn.

New Office Buildings Not Needed.

A survey just completed by the National Association of Building Owners and Managers and made public last night reveals a vacancy of 14.69 per cent in 1,935 office buildings checked in forty-one cities in the United States and Canada.

"It indicates that the building boom of recent years has anticipated the needs of American business by providing a supply of space sufficient to care for the normal expansion of business for at least three years," the survey states. "It also indicates that the construction of office buildings will not be a fertile field for the building industry for at least two years if common sense prevails."

BROKERS' LOANS RISE FOR FIRST TIME THIS YEAR

Reflect Advance in Stock Market.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The advance in stock market prices in the last six weeks, which has brought about an average appreciation of more than 10 per cent in market value since the beginning of the year, finally has resulted in a moderate expansion in the amount of credit used in speculation.

Thus, the first increase in brokers' loans this year was reported by the federal reserve board yesterday. The increase was only $33,000,000, but it marked the second expansion in twenty weeks, during which period brokers' loans declined $1,473,000,000.

The small increase in the face of the vigorous advance in stock market prices was regarded as indicating the considerable extent to which short covering has been responsible for the upturn in the market. But, conversely, it also indicates that much of the dollar short selling was absorbed by the cash buying of investors. However, the report shows that brokers' loans now total only $1,749,000,000, which is only slightly more than half the total of $3,450,000,000 of a year ago.

Boost N. Y. Bank Loans.

The upturn in the stock market appears to have been financed chiefly by New York banks, which increased their own loans to brokers by $48,000,000 in the last week. On the other hand, interior banks withdrew $3,000,000, and non-banking lenders, including corporations, drew down $12,000,000.

It again appears that bankers generally are not much disturbed by possible adverse effects of prices of government bonds resulting from the soldier bonus agitation in congress. The federal reserve banks, as a whole, added slightly to their holdings of government securities in the last week, although the New York reserve bank disposed of $5,000,000 of such securities. The gain for the whole system was $189,000.

Easiness in the demand for credit for commercial purposes also is shown again in the weekly statement of the federal reserve system, issued last night. Borrowings of the member banks receded $728,000 to a total of $22,189,000 and the reserve banks also absorbed credit by selling $16,536,000 of bankers' acceptances. Deposits dropped $37,448,000 but note circulation fell $4,264,000. Gold reserves increased $1,079,000 but total reserves declined $6,511,000. However, the ratio of reserves to liabilities rose to 83.5 per cent, compared with 82.9 per cent last week.

The report of the New York reserve bank showed an increase of $7,372,000 in member bank borrowings, which now total $51,461,000. Bankers' acceptances declined $3,795,000. Deposits dropped $28,004,000. Reserves declined $2,108,000 but the reserve ratio rose to 86.6 per cent, compared with 86 per cent a week ago.

Chicago Bank Reports.

The Chicago reserve bank yesterday made no change in its 3 per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed a decline of $8,797,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $18,-[illegible],000. Bankers' acceptances receded $1,445,000. Deposits declined $2,886,000. Reserves increased $6,057,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 83.8 per cent, compared with $2.7 per cent a week ago.

Another week of modest improvement in trade is noted by the weekly reviews. Dun's summary that gains may be detected in reports that automobile production has exceeded predictions, that large cement plants have begun to expand output, and that steel production has advanced.

Royal Typewriter 1930 Net Income Totals $1,766,031

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—The Royal Typewriter company today reported for 1930 net income of $1,402,905, equal to $4.24 a share on the common stock, compared with $1,766,031, or $5.33 a share in 1929, and $1,306,744, or $3.16 a share before the stock was split two for one in 1928. E. C. Faustman, president, said the total number of units sold last year showed a gain of two per cent over 1928 and a increase of only six per cent compared with the record year of 1929.

N.Y. Stock Exchange Seat Price Takes $50,000 Jump

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 13.—The price of seats on the New York stock exchange jumped $50,000 today with the announcement that arrangements had been completed for a sale at $275,000, compared with a price of $225,000 on Feb. 6. Price movements in exchange seats have been sharp so far this year, today's price comparing with a low of $189,000 on Jan. 2 and a high of $290,000 on Jan. 10.

January Sales of Kroger Chain Are $19,193,570

Oil Industry Investigation Is Proposed

Washington, D. C., Feb. 13.—(AP)—A congressional investigation of the oil industry was proposed today before the house ways and means committee as it opened hearings on the Capper-Garner bill to restrict oil importations. The measure would limit petroleum imports during the next three years to 16,000,000 barrels annually.

The suggestion came from Democratic Leader Garner, who asked independent oil producers appearing before the committee if "an investigation to find out why the cost of gasoline does not respond to the cost of crude oil would not be of benefit to the country."

Russell B. Brown, secretary of the governors' oil relief conference, indorsed the suggestion, and said he knew no economic reason why gasoline prices do not fluctuate with petroleum costs.

Makes Distinction.

Brown distinguished between the independents and large oil companies which both produce and import. The largest, he said, are the Dutch Shell, controlled by British interests; the Standards of New Jersey and Indiana, controlled by the Rockefeller interests, and the Gulf, controlled by the Mellon interests.

"I think and have thought for some time," Garner said, "an investigation by congress will be necessary to establish the true facts as to the operations of these four companies."

Brown and other independent operators indorsed the Capper-Garner bill to limit entries during the next three years to 16,000,000 barrels of crude petroleum annually.

Other Probes Pending.

Garner declined to say whether he will introduce a resolution directing an oil price investigation. One by Representative Hoch [Rep., Kas.], is now pending before the rules committee, while Senator Nye [Rep., N. D.] is author of a similar senate resolution.

Joining Brown in favor of the Capper-Garner bill were Edward F. McGrady of the American Federation of Labor, M. J. Flynn of the American Wage Earners Protective conference, H. C. Fremming of the International Association of Oil Field and Gas Workers, President John Simpson of the National Farmers' union, and W. C. Franklin of the Mid-Continental Oil and Gas association.

Garner advised the independents to center their efforts on an embargo bill rather than to attempt to obtain tariff protection at this session.

Thompson Chain Opens Another New Restaurant

The million dollar expansion program of the John R. Thompson company, restaurant chain, advanced another step yesterday when the company opened its new establishment at 27 West Randolph street. The new restaurant is fiftieth of the chain in Chicago and has a seating capacity of 370 persons. The company operates a total of 124 units in 42 cities throughout the country. The firm will open another restaurant Feb. 25 at 7 South Wabash avenue.

I. C. C. MOVES TO COLLECT EXCESS RAIL EARNINGS

Orders Norfolk Ry. to Pay $15,849,344.

It ordered the Norfolk and Western to pay over to the government as excess earnings during the period 1922-1926, inclusive, a total of $15,489,344.

The statute authorizes the recapture by the treasury of half the amount a railroad may have earned in excess of a fair return on the value of its property.

In the eleven years since enactment of the law the government's attempts to recapture have been in almost continuous litigation. The test case brought against a small railroad, the St. Louis and O'Fallon, was thrown out by the Supreme court because of its disagreement with the commission's method of valuing railroads.

Expect New Court Contest.

Reporting to congress two weeks ago, the commission asked the repeal of the law, partly because of difficulties in enforcing it and partly because of altered situations as to railroad earnings. It is expected that the order to the Norfolk and Western will become immediately the base of another court contest.

The commission said today that the railroad's value in 1922 amounted to $323,000,000 and that it had increased during suceeding years by new investment in equipment and extensions until in 1926 it was worth $379,500,000.

Its net earnings during the period ranged from $18,339,000 in 1922 to $41,574,000 in 1926 and amounted during the five years to $31,698,689 more than the total that would constitute 6 per cent per year on the changing valuation.

On that statement it was ruled that the railroad should pay the amount stated as equaling one-half of the railroad's earnings in excess of 6 per cent on its property.

It is expected that the order to the Norfolk and Western will be followed in due course by a series of like orders directed against other of the prosperous railroads.

Claims May Total $280,000,000.

Tentative figures prepared by the comission indicated that perhaps $280,000,000 would be sought from these carriers unless congress alters the law.

However, during the eleven years since the policy was placed in the statute, only about $12,000,000 has been collected by the commission and most of this sum came from small railroads whose managements did not wish to enter into the litigation and from the United States Steel corporation in token of excess earnings by its group of industrial railroads.

None of the amount which may be collected can under the law be used for government general expenditures, but must be set aside for loans to less prosperous railroads which need support.

WORLD SILVER MARTS ARE FLIGHTY, SO PRICE TUMBLES OFF TO 26⅛C

New York, Feb. 13.—(AP)—World silver makets were flighty today—perhaps Friday, the 13th, had something to do with it—and false rumors sent the white metal price tumbling, first in the far east and thence around the globe.

The New York market dropped 1½ cents an ounce to 26⅛ cents, duplicating the lowest level in history, reached last Saturday. The metal recovered a little toward the close of the day.

At the bottom this money making metal had completely lost the recovery achieved in the first half of the week, which started when the price in London rebounded from a shilling an ounce, a psychological resistance point.

There was a noticeable strengthening of the New York money market after denial of the rumors by the finance minister of the Chinese Nationalist government. Demand increased and offerings were small, sending the price up one-quarter to three-eighths of a cent just before the close, with prices ranging from 26⅝ to 26⅛ cents an ounce.

China's Hectic Day.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP)—China's silver market today underwent the most hectic session it has experienced in years as the result of unconfirmed reports that the Nationalist government was planning to declare a moratorium on gold obligations and would seek to establish a gold standard.

The Mexican dollar, China's principal medium of exchange, plunged to a new low level of 19.96 cents in gold. The market rallied late in the afternoon when the minister of finance denied the government was planning a moratorium or taking measures to adopt the gold standard.

PENNSY PLANS NEW BOND ISSUE OF $150,000,000

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—Stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad will be asked at their annual meeting on April 14 to authorize the board of directors to increase the funded indebtedness of the company through the issuance of bonds or other obligations to the amount of $150,000,000 it was disclosed today at the railroad's offices here.

The bonds would be issued, it was announced, "when and as might be necessary in enabling the company's management to continue progressive development of the property, equipment and facilities, as well as to retire outstanding obligations."

Finds Smoke Abatement Still in Pioneer Stages

BY SCRUTATOR.

Smoke abatement, despite all that has been said about it, appears to be still in its pioneer stages in American cities.

A conference of experts, engineers attending the fourth national fuels meeting at the Stevens hotel, yesterday gave a variety of views on what can be done, should be done and has been done along the line of cutting down the amount of smoke and of dust thrown into our breathing atmosphere by stacks and chimneys.

Only a few broad facts stood out at the end of the discussion. The first of these was the general consensus of opinion that Chicago had done more by legislation than any other city to keep down smoke. The second was negative, a general admission that the smoke abatement advocates and the makers of combustion equipment have not reached any agreement on standards. It was even pointed out without being discounted that the people who want less smoke have not clearly indicated what they want in such a way that effective work toward an end can be carried out.

Cites Uncertainty.

It might be said that smoke abatement and its companion, ash dust abatement, are still in the stage, in most parts of the United States, where men are discovering the ill effects of pollution of the air and demanding that something be done about it, but not knowing just what should be done.

The problem is nothing new. H. H. Bubar of New York, talking on flying ash from furnaces and fireboxes, related that Hippocrates as far back as two millenniums ago found that certain workers in stone died early from the effects of dust in the lungs. Mr. Bubar asserted that flying ash is now recognized as the first and most important of dust problems. A large central power station, he said, would discharge from seven to forty tons of dust into the air every hour.

Dr. O. P. Hood of the United States bureau of mines told the conference the bureau had distributed copies of the Chicago anti-smoke ordinances as the best model since 1924. While it took more than five years to get rid of 700 copies up to 1929, a new supply of 1,700 copies was taken in nine months. This would serve to show that interest in smoke abatement is increasing.

This tendency was also referred to by Ely C. Hutchinson, editor of Power, who recommended that large companies which have made experiments to reduce their smoke and ash abandon all secrecy and pool their knowledge on how to make things better for the breathing public.

Other possibilities advanced included the promoting of a greater consumption of gas and other non smoking fuels. One engineer even recommended legislation to make it illegal to burn anywhere anything but a smokeless fuel, an idea impractical in view of the higher cost in general of such fuel.

Must Show Savings.

Robert H. Kuss, a Chicago consulting engineer, declared that it was not possible for engineers to settle the smoke and ash question themselves, because they believed in exactness while public administration had to proceed by compromises. All the laws of combustion, without exception, had been formulated in 1857 by Wye Williams, he said. Attempts to apply this knowledge, when it comes into conflict with economical considerations, simply "puts engineers in a jam with everybody."

It is likely that the smoke abaters, or eliminators, will have to show the general public how money may be saved by complete combustion before they will make a great deal of real headway.

MILWAUKEE ROAD SUFFERS NET DEFICIT

The Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad preliminary report filed with the interstate commerce commission yesterday shows total railway operating revenue for 1930 were $142,569,632 as compared with $171,361,385 in 1929. Operating expenses amounted to $112,295,805 as against $128,800,860.

After rentals, interest, and other deductions, the road had a deficit of $4,885,410 in 1930 as compared with a net income of $7,074,014 in the preceding year. Profit and loss surplus sustained a shrinkage of $4,894,815 during the year as contrasted with net gain of $7,062,023 in 1929.

Dow, Jones & Co. says there is a considerable difference of opinion in circles close to the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad as to what payment should be made on the April 1 coupon on the adjustment mortgage bonds. Some interests favor payment of 1½ per cent, as was made Oct. 1, while others are said to feel that no payment, or a payment of ½ of 1 per cent should be made.

Directors will take action Feb. 19 or at a meeting early in March and Dow, Jones says it is reasonable to expect that a compromise will be reached on a payment of 1 per cent.

There is at present an accumulation of 1 per cent in unpaid interest on the bonds, which became cumulative at the rate of 5 per cent annually Jan. 1, 1930, and the semi-annual payment made Oct. 1, last, covering the first half of 1930 was for only 1½ per cent.

GREAT LAKES DREDGE & DOCK CO. SHOWS '30 INCREASE IN EARNINGS

A substantial increase in net income was the unusual record hung up by the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock company in 1930, a year in which industrial concerns generally sustained sharp reductions in profits.

The statement issued yesterday shows net earnings for the fiscal year ended Dec. 31 of $2,218,444, equivalent to $4.02 a share on the capital stock outstanding. In 1929 the company earned net profit of $1,599,699 which, on the present capitalization, would be equivalent to $2.72 a share and $21.73 under the former setup. During the year the company split its stock eight for one and changed the stock from $100 par value to no par value. At the close of 1930 there were 552,120 shares of the new stock outstanding, as against 69,015 of the old shares at the end of 1929.

The balance at the close of 1930 shows quick assets of $6,288,426 and current liabilities of $759,718, as contrasted with $5,136,041 and $1,134,543 at the close of the preceding year. Dividends paid amounted to $690,150, the same as in 1929. During the year $1,528,295 was added to surplus, bringing that figure to $7,639,969.

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD CO.

A Semi-Annual Dividend of $2.00 per share on the Preferred Stock and a Quarterly Dividend of $1.50 per share on the Common Stock of this Company have this day been declared payable on Wednesday, April 1, 1931, to stockholders of record at 3 o'clock, P. M., Monday, March 2, 1931.

EDWARD G. SMITH, Treasurer.

LOOKING AHEAD WITH BUSINESS

More than $2,000,000 is being distributed to two groups of workingmen through bonuses and profit sharing dividends announced by two companies yesterday. Directors of the Eastman Kodak company at Rochester have declared $1,401,389, or more than half of the concern's wage dividend, payable from three to six months in advance of the regular date in order to bolster financial resources of employés who have been discharged during the depression or who have been forced to work only part time. Procter & Gamble announced that almost $1,000,000 in profit sharing dividends would be paid to employés of 1930 who own or have subscribed for 333,599 shares of common stock.

Harry Blythe, vice president of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, said yesterday that the country is headed away from the economic depression of the last year. "We reached our depression valley last summer and started on a steady upgrade in October," he said. He declared the rubber industry was first to feel the depression, and likewise was first to be affected by returning prosperity.

Of the 1930 annual reports made public thus far, thirty-six have revealed earnings in excess of 1929, according to a tabulation compiled by Standard Statistics company. Of the successful thirty-six, six are either Chicago companies or have headquarters here. They are the Chicago Great Western, Commonwealth Edison, Cudahy, Peoples Gas, United States Radio and Television, and Wilson & Co.

The Nickel Plate is in the market for ten locomotives, according to Iron Age. The Bessemer and Lake Erie is reported to have purchased 1,200 hopper cars. Western Pacific is inquiring for five Mallet type freight locomotives.

B. C. Cobb, chairman of the board of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, announces that the 1931 construction program of the operating companies calls for expenditures in excess of $45,000,000.

A definite upturn in business and the fact that building costs are the lowest in years were factors leading to the decision of the General Electric company to erect a new $1,000,000 plant in Cleveland for the manufacture of gases and wire filaments for incandescent lamps. The contract for construction was awarded the Austin company.

January sales of Interstate Department Stores were $1,296,043, an increase of 1.4 per cent over $1,278,303 for January, 1930. A statement by the company said that in "view of the 20 per cent reduction in merchandise prices existing today," the figures do not represent the actual increase in volume of business done. "Profits for January, 1931," the statement said, "were greater than for January, 1930, which also were ahead of January, 1929."

There were nine Chicago building permits issued yesterday and their total costs amounted to $177,500.

BY FRED HARVEY.

New York, Feb. 13.—It was Friday, the 13th, for both factions of the Wall street speculative community. The bulls couldn't make any further headway with their advance, with all their heaving and tugging, but, on the other hand, efforts to "start something" in the other direction were just as fruitless. Final prices were about a standoff, with the extreme changes ranging from a loss of 5 points in the eccentric Auburn Auto to a gain of about as much in Safeway Stores.

Trading slowed down all along the line, the turnover being estimated at only about 2,700,000 shares, against 4,700,000 for Wednesday.

Oils Are Strong.

One worth while feature was an upswing of the oils group in the afternoon on buying supposedly based very largely on news from Washington that independent producers and oil tariff advocates had agreed to support a bill in congress proposing to restrict imports of crude oil. It is probable also that some of the activity here was due to a professional move on shorts. Standard Oil of New Jersey, Standard of Kansas, Atlantic Refining, and Mexican Seaboard ran up from 1 to 2 points or more before the buying wave began to spend its momentum. Most of them, however, had to recede a bit from their highs before the final gong came to their rescue. Sun Oil, on a nominal turnover, jumped 3½, and Houston Oil [old] rose 3 points, about a third of which it also surrendered in the later trading.

Earlier in the day the general list had made a show of going ahead under the impetus of some rather heavy buying in the coppers and utilities, but the backers of this demonstration found after a time that they were unable to attract a following. In the coppers group, Anaconda reached a new high for the year at 38¾, up 1¼, while the rally was on.

Overtake Public Service of N. J.

In the utilities Public Service of New Jersey was conspicuous, leading an advance of more than 2 points before the bears overtook it. Brooklyn Union, American Water Works and American Power and Light all moved along impressively, only to give way with the leader in the afternoon. The close found Consolidated Gas down 1½ points on the day, and minus signs showing elsewhere in the department where gains had bristled before.

Pivotal issues other than Westinghouse held at generally lower levels. Westinghouse was in rather sharp demand and was able to register a 3 point gain in face of the backwardness of its playmates. American Telephone was down nearly 2 points at the close, and American Can, United States Steel, General Electric, and the others were off from a fraction to a point or so.

Most of the leading rails lost ground, and the motors could never get going.

Would Be Taken by Creditors and Stockholders.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Grigsby-Grunow and Majestic Household shares experienced their first important market activity in several weeks on the Chicago exchange yesterday. Each issue reached a top price for the day of 5 as news of the new financing plans leaked out.

It was learned that the Grigsby interests expect to raise $5,000,000 through an issue of convertible debentures of which it is understood that the creditors have agreed to take $2,000,000 and the remainder will be offered to stockholders. Final action is expected on the plan early next week at a meeting of directors.

Early consolidation of the Grigsby and Majestic firms will take place preparatory to carrying out the financing program. The parent concern will take over the Majestic corporation through a share for share exchange of stock. The latter firm was formed last spring as an affiliate to manufacture electrical refrigerators.

May Carry Warrants.

In addition to being convertible into Grigsby stock at $5 a share, the debentures are expected to carry warrants entitling holders to purchase additional stock at a price between $5 and $10 a share. The purchase rights will extend over a two or three year period, it is reported. Not all the details of the issue have been agreed on, however, but it is expected that a decision on all of the features will be reached in a day or so. As far as could be learned, the issue will not be underwritten by any banking group.

Success of the plan depends largely on the attitude of stockholders who will be asked to take the majority of the issue. There are 1,997,897 shares of the stock outstanding. There are 500,000 shares of Majestic outstanding, of which 25 per cent is held by the parent company.

The improvement by Grigsby and Majestic in yesterday's trading was made in the face of general market irregularity. Neither issue, however, has shared to any extent in the recent upturn in the general market. Approximately 32,000 shares of Grigsby were traded in here, while the turnover on the New York exchange amounted to about 42,000 shares. Interests who have previously held a long position in the stock were reported to be heavy buyers here. Majestic's trade approximated 16,000 shares and the net gain in each case was about a point.

Narrow Price Range.

The majority of active stocks moved within a narrow price range. Insull shares inclined lower, with the same trend ruling Cities Service and U. S. Radio. The latter stock, which has occupied a place in the speculative spotlight for several weeks, eased a fraction to 27.

Bendix ran up a full point in the early trading, but settled back to finish with a small gain as favorable reports were issued by the company on the current business of two of its subsidiaries.

Gleaner Combine stock eased a fraction to end the day at 1⅜ as reports from Kansas City stated that the attempts to form a protective committee of stockholders were meeting opposition from certain interests within the company. The company now faces a 30c per share dividend, tax suit brought by the government, which seeks to collect $178,561 for taxes for 1929 and the first eight months of 1930.

Gains in one or two of the less active stocks developed. On sales of a few hundred shares, Goldblatt Brothers was marked up nearly 5 points. The movement was apparently in anticipation of the firm's annual report, which will be issued either tomorrow or Monday.

Chicago Curb Exchange Stocks

Chicago curb stocks were strong yesterday. Standard Oil stocks and Indiana Pipe Line led a general recovery in the gas and oil group. Chicago Local Transportation B common and A preferred were firm. Thomas Lux, Hammond Clock, and Chicago Rapid Transit common advanced fractionally. Corporate Trust Shares were weak.

BEAR SENTIMENT IN WHEAT TRADE IS ON INCREASE

Foreign Buyers Refuse to Follow Advance.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Bear sentiment in the wheat trade is growing as the result of foreign buyers refusing to follow the advance in the price of Manitobas with buying orders. There was a story circulated yesterday to the effect that the combined takings of Argentine, Australian and Russian wheat in the past week by the United Kingdom had been around 15,000,000 bu. The trade looks for world shipments of around 21,000,000 bu for the week, or well above the average of recent weeks.

Pronounced weakness in foreign markets when the American exchanges were closed on Thursday resulted in general selling of the new crop deliveries of wheat in Chicago at the opening. The July dropped 3¼c from Wednesday's finish to 67¾c, but after the first rush of selling there was little pressure and support from shorts and holders of bids prevented any further recession in values. Numerous sharp rallies were witnessed at times, but the close was at net losses of 1¾@1¼c with July 68½@69¼c and September 68¾c. Old crop months were off ¼c at the last with March 79¼, and May 82⅝@82¾c.

Winnipeg Wheat Rallies.

Stop loss selling orders were uncovered in the Winnipeg wheat market at the opening yesterday which carried the market off around 1c. At the inside May showed 3⅞c under Wednesday's close. However, support quickly developed despite a lack of foreign demand and a rally of around ⅞ from the inside followed, with the close at net losses of 2¾@2¾c as compared with Wednesday, and about ⅛ less than Thursday's finish. A good part of the buying was regarded as short covering.

No rain or snow of consequence was shown in the spring wheat territory. Liverpool closed 1@1⅛d lower and Buenos Aires ⅛@¼c lower as compared with Wednesday.

Plan Acreage Increase.

An increase of 16.8 per cent in the total grain acreage in Russia for the 1931 crop, which would make the total 180,000,000 acres, is contemplated this year, according to a report from Agricultural Commissioner Steere at Berlin to the department of agriculture. The Italian acreage is placed at 21,393,000 or about 1.1 per cent more than last year. Weather in France has improved but the conditions of the crop remains unsatisfactory.

Good rains were reported in Texas and parts of Oklahoma and from Missouri eastward which will furnish needed surface moisture for the new winter wheat crop, but the main producing sections in Kansas and Nebraska remain dry, and some complaints are coming from Nebraska. Low temperatures were reported in parts of the latter state which caused some apprehension.

BUTTER FUTURES FIRM

Butter and egg futures were firmer on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange yesterday, export improving. Potato futures were weak and lower, dropping down to previous low levels. Slightly later information relating to the storage movement occasioned a better feeling in butter. The close was unchanged to ¼c higher. Potatoes closing prices were 3@4c lower. Sales: Butter, 69 cars; eggs, 15 cars; potatoes, 28 cars. Receipts: Butter, 3 cars; eggs, 7 cars. Prices follow:

STUDEBAKER'S RECORD-BREAKING USED CAR SALE

DODGE SEDAN. This car was given very good attention, so it's still in splendid condition today. Will not remain long at $195.

CHEVROLET SEDAN. It's undoubtedly the best Chevrolet buy in Chicago. Appearance is attractive. Runs fine. $95.

STUDEBAKER ROADSTER. Here is a long-stung car with 5 good tires, windshield wings, and many extras. Has a world of power and pep. $145.

PEERLESS COACH. It looks and runs better than many cars selling for $500. Equipped with 4 whl. brakes, driving light, snubbers, etc. $145.

ERSKINE COACH. 1926 with 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, driving light, visor shades, bumpers, and five practically brand new tires. Has very low mileage, so will give new car satisfaction today. $295.

HUPMOBILE 8 SEDAN. This Hupp was oiled and greased every 500 miles by the original owner, and now it's in topnotch condition throughout. Has 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, driving light, snubbers, spare tire, bumpers, etc. A real pickup at $345.

FORD TUDOR SEDAN. One of the very latest Model A's that looks and runs as though it had never been driven a mile. Has very full equipment and will not remain 24 hours at our price of $345.

ESSEX COACH. 1929 that was only driven a few thousand miles. The finish sparkles like a new dollar and the upholstery appears unworn. 4 whl. brakes and a wealth of extras. $350.

BUICK SEDAN. 1928 Mast. 6 that was owned by a retired capitalist in conjunction with 2 other cars. Was used very little, and so it will give the second purchaser new car satisfaction. Has driving light, shock absorbers, 5 practically new tires and other extras. Only $550.

LINCOLN SEDAN. Here is an expensive car with a Brunn custom body. The equipment includes 4 whl. brakes, shutter front, wire wheels, side mounts, seat covers, bumpers, etc. This Lincoln is in wonderful condition throughout and it's a positive steal at $585.

AUBURN 8 ROADSTER. Late model with spacious rumble seat, new tires, side mounts, and new paint job. This is one of the snappiest looking Roadsters we ever saw, and it runs like clockwork. Only $595.

CHRYSLER SEDAN. 1929 model 65 with wire wheels and very full equipment. A thorough examination of this car, and a personal demonstration will convince you that it's in brand new shape today. Marked at $595 for immediate disposal.

LIBERAL TERMS. OPEN EVES., SUN.

SPAIN'S THRONE SHAKY, BUT KING OUTWITS FOES

Seeks New Cabinet Dictator Quits.

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Copyright: 1931: By The Chicago Tribune.]

MADRID, Feb. 14.—The royal decree cancelling the parliamentary elections in Spain has turned out to be purely strategic and tonight finds the that astonishing Bourbon, King Alfonso XIII., with a better hold on his crown and ready to extend his lease on it. It is strange to think that only 24 hours ago he had tactfully yielded to the idea of a constitutional assembly in which the Spanish nation could decide what to do with his royal prerogative—keep it or not.

Premier Damaso Berenguer, whose master seemingly ready, like Louis XVI., to don the Phrygian bonnet could only quit, which he did first thing this morning. And the parliamentary election, which he had called for March 1 and 15, had to be called off. This was done at noon.

But all of this was such a long time ago.

No Constituent Assembly.

For the king, no longer envisaging his trial by his people, tonight is forming plans for a government with a liberal complexion, with maybe a general and an admiral thrown in, to be charged with calling municipal and provincial elections to remove the last vestiges of the dictatorship and satisfy the scrupulous and the law. The plan after that is to elect an ordinary parliament, but not a constitutional assembly.

So declared Count Romanones, liberal monarchist leader, at 10 o'clock tonight, after he, acting in concert with the king, helped to bring down Gen. Berenguer.

Tonight, at Casa del Pueblo, representatives of the powerful general union of workers, with 300,000 members subjected to iron discipline, met to consider a general strike for Monday or Tuesday to support the demands of railway workers for a raise and incidentally to start things. A strike was decided upon "in principle," but events within the next few hours will determine whether it is to be sprung.

Armed Police on Guard.

Armed policemen are standing every ten feet along the streets of Madrid tonight, but thus far order here and elsewhere is complete. In Segovia, revolutionary nest, where a new party of intellectuals, called "into the service of the republic," were launched their campaign, the authorities stepped in and announced that the constitutional guarantees, as they apply to the liberty of congregation, had also been suspended. This goes for the Republican massmeetings scheduled for tomorrow. Censorship, however, remains off.

If Alfonso has turned away from the idea of a constitutional assembly it is not for want of hearing about it. He has had it dinned in his ears since early afternoon, when he consulted all former premiers still alive and former presidents of the chamber of deputies and senate.

Among these gray beards called to the palace were Sanchez Guerra, Melquiades Alvarez and others of the group that is avowed to bring Alfonso before the people's judgment.

Admiral May Become Premier.

The actual choice of a ministry will await upon the arrival tomorrow morning of Francisco Cambo, one of the richest men in Spain, who also helped to knife Gen. Berenguer. Santiago Alba, Liberal exile, is rushing from Paris and to see the king. Admiral Juan Aznar, captain general of the navy, is mentioned as a likely figure to become the next premier.

Señor Guerra, a traditional type of the Spanish caballero, much prized with points of honor, last called upon the king in San Sebastian in 1926 to warn him that if he dared Primo de Rivera's extraconstitutional assembly he must be considered a felon.

This old courtier, who has been on the outs with his lord, seemed greatly moved as he entered the palace after so many years to tell him that he meant it. He stayed three-quarters of an hour, and when he came out he was very pale, and simply stated that he had said what he had always said.
